MY WIFE AND I.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER.

From out the darkness of my window seat
I look into the far off starlit sky,
While o'er me fancy throws an incense sweet,
And thro' the silence breaks a plaintive cry.
From out my half closed eyes I dimly see
A figure rise—I am no more alone,
While two dark eyes, all glowing brilliantly,
Look thro' the shades of night into my own.

A soft, white hand moves slowly o'er my brow,
A fair, proud face bends down at the caress;
A tear falls on my hand, as if a blow—
I start enough my wonder to express;
But dear hands fondly press me back again,
And that loved voice sounds sweetly soft and low:
"'Tis but for joy these tears are falling, when I think of now, and of the long ago."

Five years ago I caught her as she fell
Upon the icy street one Winter's night.
Her pure, wan face entranced me, and—ah, well!
I since have made her erstwhile burdens light.
Till now, beneath the stars that shine above,
We watch the river idly flowing by,
And in the deep wealth of our true, fond love,
None are more happy than my wife and I.

THE WHEELBARROW FEAT.

A "BLONDIN" STORY.

FROM THE FRENCH FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER, BY H. LLEW. WILLIAMS.

The Kniesses, who used to work the country circuit in our parts, were not common mountebanks, but established features, highly respectable. They were known year after year, coming 'round regular as clockwork. The old, original Kniess, founder of the dynasty, died of apoplexy right before the folks in the middle of a pantomime. The growth of the troupe had been watched since the members were children, so that it was held in affection. They were all treated with kindness, and admired as some of our own sort.

The Kniesses came along one evening, too late to be seen entering. Early in the morning—astonishing good hours these performers at late hours do keep, to be sure!—they had begun running up their portable theatre, with rows upon rows of seats, a tall mast in the centre, and the walls of painted and waterproof canvas. All the company put a shoulder to the wheel—that is, a hand to the work. The clowns, who always wore a rakish air and swaggered when the pretty servant girls came by, in spite of the domestic reputation of the band; the musicians in rifle green, with silver braid and high hats garnished with cockades; the grooms, who hauled and lifted the Strong Men; the two Brothers Kniess themselves, handsome, curly headed young bloods, with fingers covered with brilliant rings, but who handled joists like reeds; and even Madame Kniess, the mother, very quiet and lofty, who directed the building according to the rules when she was young; while one or the other of her daughters repeated the instructions in a shrill, yet not unmusical voice.

The inhabitants came in shoals to see the ready made theatre erected, and the work of the circus men was criticised. Master Carpenter Lemenager, after hitting the beams with his brass bound foot-rule, pronounced them solid, and Prof. Boussot, a man of sound sense, though principal at the college, said:

"By Jupiter, this is reared on the lines of the Temple of Thespis at Spartademonium; and you may say what you like, these fellows who have preserved to our times the best traditions of the Greeks are no vagabonds."

Impatience to see their performances increased hourly. Still farther to whet the appetite, they had plastered enormous salmon colored posters in the lower part of the Main Street, where a property was in law, and the stores had the shutters up to invite this decoration, as well as in the stylish portion of the town, where the carriage folk used to shop. These pictures represented men and women in close fitting attire, handing by one toe or the little finger from trapezes flying madly, or striding on wires miles up in air, carrying exploding cannon on the shoulder, standing on one another's arms in pyramids, all seeming to realize the wish of the gentleman who wanted "gravitation to be suspended when he walked by." At each corner of these sheets a grotesque head grinned to send the weak into convulsions.

Everybody went into ecstasy before these delineations, and the younger wanted to know if all this was to be seen for the smallest silver coin of the Republic?

Their elders said: "Humph, it is clear that they are making progress—they did not do these tricks before."

For the good souls most appreciated in the Kniesses that they were hardworking, not content with hashing up the same old game, but seeking more and more incredibable deeds, and imitating whatever they heard of being executed elsewhere.

"These work for their money," said the populace, "and they are no sluggards."

At last the theatre was finished; and one evening the troupe made the grand entree, with the musicians in a buggy draped with the national colors, and the team two spotted horses. The Brothers Kniess, in gilded helmets, with hearse plumes and brass armor, rode horses which drew a car on which old Madame Kniess stood as Marianne, the Goddess of the Republic, with red cap and holding the tricolor. At her feet crouched the quagga, stuffed—for it died prematurely—the "only one reared in captivity from birth." The Kniess girls also rode horses, but their own steeds of the High Manege, as an English bystander said; they looked simply lovely. One wore a blue velvet habit, the other a maroon one, with skirts which swept the ground, and huge Rembrandt hats all over feathers. The rest of the company marched afoot, airing the wardrobe.

That evening wild horses would never have held back all the people from rushing up with their money to pay their way into the show past Widow Kniess, who took the cash, sitting at the door, in weeds by this time, and testing suspicious coin with teeth which many a girl of twenty might envy.

The ring was marked out by a circle of lamps, as if set for a vast conjuration. The odor of kerosene, orange peel, nutshells, damp sawdust, and the air fouled by keeping in under the painted canvas, also reminded one of a wizard's laboratory. Money was refused at the door! All the seats were taken, and papas carried their youngsters on their shoulders to give extra room. The restlessness of the spectators compelled the orchestra to tune up ten minutes earlier than was the wont.

For an inauguration, it was a hit. But after a while, although everybody said that the troupe could make a permanent stay of it, one must confess that dullness reigned. There was certainly a falling off even when the Elder Kniess juggled standing on his head and drank wine from four bottles with as many straws balancing them; or when his junior "introduced" his Intelligent Sloth, which was brought in hanging to a pole; aye, and ever to the Sisters Kniess in their double dance as Styrian Peasants.

It was the time when the experienced circus artistes bring out the "fetchers."

The salmon colored bills were replaced with blood red streamers, announcing their farewell performances, to appear before the Vizeer of Mecca, after several extraordinary matinees.

Everybody wondered what novelties they could possibly invent, and crowds gathered between the new bank building and the house of the water company, opposite one another, but united by a rope which had been thrown across by permission.

The Mayor's clerk, who had signed and sealed this permission, said the Kniesses had obtained it, as they would not surely abuse the concession. We were going to see a startler!

Soon it came out: The Kniess who was the rope dancer was going to wheel a barrow across the Main Street, horrible chasm at that height of fifty feet! and in that barrow was to be a living man!

"Who? one of the company, of course—no outsider would have the courage—better say the foolhardiness, to trust himself to that one wheel and the two hands, even of the trained balancer!"

That is where the general public was wrong. It came out that a volunteer had presented himself for the honor—perilous honor!—of being thus carried across the cord.

Great excitement—anxiety filled and thrilled every bosom, for the town had not dreamt of having such a hero in the midst.

There was some relief when the name of the destined victim to vain glory came out. "Madcap" Marius, Roch the druggist's son, was just the harebrained rogue to be led into this scrape.

But what made people think that he was a veritable ninny was in the assurance that he was courting one of the Kniess girls. It was hardly likely that her brother, the Blondin of the troupe, had not heard of her giving him the cold shoulder, as unfit for her hand. She had taunted him farther with being no horseman—for he had a horror of riding or driving; no grace in the dance, and she was dancing mad; in short, he had none of the qualities which seemed to her taste if she ever consented to marry out of the profession. And a druggist's clerk, too.

"It will be murder," muttered the spiteful crones and old maids, who were fit to cry their eyes out ever since the shapes of the Kniess sylphs had been pictured on the dead walls. "It is a pitfall. Edwie Kniess must have dared him into offering to be wheeled over the rope in the barrow, and her brother Louis has snapped at the chance of frightening the poor fellow into fits."

The word went round that some trick would certainly be played on the lover of Edwie; though the knowing ones whispered that he would back out at the last moment. Even these determined to go to the show, which was free—a great comfort—to see how the Kniesses would act when their butt escaped them.

The consequence was that the Main Street was gorged—packed with lookers up; the countrymen came in for leagues around.

The night before, the members of the Band of Merry Souls, to which Roch was the secretary, and Apothecaries' Benevolent Association, to which his father belonged, and the Lyrique Society in which he sang second alto, all his friends, in fact, gave him a supper at the hotel, and drank of a "punch," to give him Dutch courage. All the same, and though he wore a smile and had brave words, a special corps watched the railroad depot and the livery stables for fear he would elope before morning.

It was rumored that, though feverish, he was fairly ready to go to the fatal cord.

As this exhibition was gratis, and the troupe had no part in it with the exception of the two Kniess Brothers, the circus folk assembled on the porch of the bank. They seemed strangely ill at ease at the freshness of being spectators and not performers. Mother Kniess sipped seltzer for her nerves—as if she had any—while commenting to a gossip on the impudence of the jalap mixer presuming to make eyes at her daughter who had, in Bucharest, refused a boyard, who was strongly suspected to be a Russian Grand Duke in disguise. The Kniess girls laughed and prattled together, with great unconcern, said the female critics, when a life was at stake—of the fellow who loved Edwie better than his father's choice of the mayor's niece with thirty acres of the best arable land and a cow to each acre. Ah, the idiot! to fall in love with a circus rider, who cared so little for his affection, as to come here and laugh at his tumble out of the barrow from fifty feet aloft!

The rest of the troupe were more tranquil; they and the children, usually so restless, were silent. Even the youngest knew that the feat was one to try the soul, executed in broad day, in the cool air, without tinsel and music.

"It is a shame," said the college professor. "They will butcher the druggist's son to make it their holiday."

And he trumpeted in his red handkerchief like the flourish of the trombone for the performances to begin.

It was no longer among the acrobats, the carelessness amounting to recklessness, and the ease of the daily exercises; this time it was a real danger to the performer from the inexperience of the assistant. They spoke about one of the Kniesses, a grand uncle, who had fatally injured himself in walking across a cataract of the Rhine. They said that Louis or Charles would probably end in the same way—especially Louis, who could not resist this chance to punish the blade who had courted his sister by frightening the life out of him.

"Roch has had cranks in the family," muttered the townsfolk. "You will see that Marius will simply go ripstaring, staving mad!"

With all these dread surmises in the air, be certain that the multitude, already packed, became intolerably compressed.

When Marius came out of his father's store, where his progenitor embraced him like a Roman bidding farewell to another Marius going to Carthage—a deep hush! sounded all over the mass of people. He was smiling, but that was only bravado.

Charles Kniess came to meet him and took him by the hand:

"I say, Marius," for they had been on the same side in the football match two seasons, "I will take your place in the barrow if you do not feel just the thing. But you may be determined?"

"I think I am," was the reply.

"Say what you like, Eddy," said Charles to his sister, 'he is a brave one."

But she, proud and haughty, only turned up her nose, as the doomed one passed by.

This decided bearing of Marius turned the tide in his favor. The men began to admire him, and the woman made spiteful faces at Edwie Kniess—the shame of it to force that nice boy to break his neck under her scornful eyes!

Attention was called off the ground by the sudden appearance of Louis Kniess on the roof of the bank. Down the peaked shingles from the mansard window, he proceeded to the ornamental gutter. He was in fleshings, and the spangles glittered fresh, put on as they were overnight by his sisters for this gala.

His mother and sisters had gone into the bank, to embrace him, and wish him well through the feat.

Something like a bloated barber's pole was thrust through the attic casement—it was his balancing pole, supplied with which, he stepped on the cord, and walked out to the sag to test it.

Then, swaying slightly, but graceful as a Puck on the rushes, he made signs to his brother below.

"Tighten the guys," said Charles to the spectators nearest the side ropes, reaching down to the windows of adjoining houses, and they were obliging enough to help the circus grooms in their work.

The rope being secured to his satisfaction, Louis retired, after some slight feats, which failed to excite enthusiasm, as all were engrossed in what they anticipated to be a tragedy—but they would not have had a postponement now on any account.

Such is curiosity, overpowering humanity.

Marius Roch appeared on the roof of the water company, sustained by two of his friends, young men, who were a good deal more nervous before the thousand eyes than he. Charles Kniess, to bring back the spectators to a sense that the feat was possible enough to such adepts as him and his brother, relieved the latter and gave him the time to prepare by throwing off his overcoat, tied round his neck by the sleeves, and appearing also in fleshings and trunks. Over his head he placed a flour sack and without balancing pole, he walked backwards, wheeling after him the barrow in which his brother was to carry the unfortunate Marius.

Anxious murmurs alone arose at the point where he feigned to make a false step. However, he crossed, and the barrow was left in the gutter. He disembarrassed his head of the sack, and bowed to the beholders, with the traditional kiss of the finger tips to the fair sex. These, lady or maid, choked up the windows, high or low, as far as the eye could see.

Louis then took the barrow, secured it to his waist by a thong from his girdle to the handles, and thus having his hands free for the balancing pole, with it commenced the transit. His brother remained by the gutter, to welcome him on the return and assist if the burden should prove to be troublesome.

"Not afraid?" said Louis to Roch, who left his friends and came down to the gutter of the water company's, perhaps not easily but with little trepidation.

"I am ready," he said, eluding the direct question.

"Then, avanti, vorwarts, go ahead;" said the acrobat, who jabbered a few words of every language.

He had turned round and reversed the barrow, into which Marius mounted firmly enough, but he seemed suddenly to have a weakness at the joints, for he sank down doubled up, as if glad to be in the box.

Louis grinned as though he had expected no less.

"You had only to say so," he observed, "and I would have had straps to tie you down in the barrow."

"You will see whether they were wanted or not," he replied.

The rope dancer took a forward step, pushing the attached vehicle before him. From below they could see only the feet dangling of Marius and a little of his scalp at the end nearer the man. He was slowly wheeling him—so slowly that you would think he was trying to prolong the novice's agony.

Probably he was frozen with terror now that the progress on the doleful way was begun. He did not move a muscle. A sort of grin on his mouth made Louis fancy he was chilled by that apprehension of death which makes the slain by panic wear the risus sardonicus.

The mountebank had put on trunks and hose of a scarlet hue, which gave him, in the sunshine, a Mephistophelian aspect, and those who had superstitions, saw some likeness in the situation to the old print at the barber's, a Callot copperplate, representing the Foul Fiend wheeling a condemned soul to the hot regions.

As in all solemn moments, all were still; alone the voice of Louis Kniess sounded at intervals to the mob below:

"Keep off those ropes."

The least touch to the guys might indeed precipitate the two—the wheeler and the motionless man in the barrow—to the earth.

Whatever their fate, the balancing pole might fracture an arm or a skull.

This stern voice made all quiver.

In the midst of the rope, where the slack showed in a curve, whatever efforts had been made to make it taut, the two paused, none knew why.

Louis looked gloatingly on the civilian, this outsider who had presumed to make love to one of the Sacred Legion of Artistes; he played with him as the cat with the mouse, hoping, no doubt, that he would have a touch of the mania seizing most at heights—the vertigo.

"Are you ready?" he said, using the stereotyped phrase.

What was his stupefaction, as he drawled this out, to see the supposed coward fix his calm eye quite cooly on him, and reply in a voice low like his own, not to be heard by the spectators below and around:

"You irritating rascal, if you do not give me your sister Edwie in wedlock, by thunder I will spill myself out of the barrow and queer the pitch!"

Marius had profitably employed the time he had given to the Kniess family while particularly aiming at Mlle. Edwie, to have caught the very phrase of slang which suited the position. It signified a great deal to Louis Kniess—the toppling over of Marius, the tradesman's son, whether he were killed or not, would make the troupe outcasts. There would be a judicial investigation, laying by the heels in prison, that part of the country banned to them for all that age which rustic enmities endure—in short, for the desperate lover to carry out this desperate threat—which, none the less, he clearly intended—would make a stronger, more obstinate man quail.

"No, no—you can have her, if willing!" he gasped out, and, not to give the other an opportunity to work any evil, he put all his vigor in a rush.

The wheel of the chariot dear to Mr. Punch, flew around like one with a tire having invisible spokes.

"Catch and hold, Charles!" shouted Louis, even as he was bounding forward towards the bank building.

And with a neat but powerful effort, he shot poor Marius out of the barrow clean into the arms of Charles Kniess.

The spectators had no idea of what really had happened; some surmised that Roch had shown the white feather, and that the rope walker had hurriedly got rid of him in this effectual manner.

A universal roar of relief went up from the many headed as they saw Charles, embracing the druggist's son, carry him back to the window in safety.

At the next moment Louis reached the same goal, with the wheelbarrow slewed to one side by a jerk of the hips, while he laid down the pole in the gutter.

Edwie was inside the garret, having foreseen that the proof would have some remarkable feature.

"Oh," she said, holding out her hand frankly to Marius, with the masculine energy peculiar to herself, "I am real glad that you did not flinch."

And she kissed him on both cheeks, though her mother was now by.

Though all was well in the end, the risk of Marius moved the authorities; never more were the streets lent to the performances on the rope.

But if the good folk lost that sight, perhaps another, of a merrier aspect, replaced it. Never was such a wedding procession as that of Edwie Kniess and Marius Roch.

All the troupe turned out in their finest apparel—but the guard of honor was strengthened by the members of a freak museum, which happened to miss seeing the dates of Kniess' farewell and clash dates with them. The door of the mayor's office was therefore crowded with the starers.

"And you were not afraid?" often would be asked of Marius, the married man.

"Afraid of showing my fear, yes," he would answer; "but if I had been a bilk and got killed I believe that woman would have hun'ed me up, horsewhip in hand, in the other world."

That was gammon, for they are the happiest of couples, and the circus rider never regretted that she "leaped through the garland" into The Family Circle.

FRANCLYN REGLID.

This clever and promising young comedian, whose portrait appeared on THE CLIPPER'S first page last week, is a native New Yorker. He made his debut with Aug. Daly's Co., as Picker Bob in "Pique," at the Grand Opera House, Brooklyn, N. Y., in the Winter of 1884. He showed considerable talent, and a flattering future was vouchsafed for him by friends and knowing ones. During the season of 1885-6 he appeared under the management of Chas. Gayler and Col. J. L. Burleigh, creating a distinguished role in "The Bohemian." The two following seasons he played light comedy roles in support of Effie Elsler, appearing with marked success in leading theatres throughout the country. In 1888 Mr. Reglid returned to Aug. Daly's home company as an understudy in "A Midsummer Night's Dream." His ambition proved too potent for such a position, however, and he soon obtained a release, then joining "The Stowaway" Co. to play the part of the Adventurer. He was next engaged in 1889 by Stuart Robson, with whose company he has remained for three seasons, playing light comedy roles. His work in Mr. Robson's support has been highly commendable. Lord Arthur in "The Henrietta," Nicolas Lamb in "Is Marriage a Failure?" Silas Tuttle and Hastings in "She Stoops to Conquer" and Mr. Younghusband in "Married Life" are among the several character essays in which he has distinctly triumphed. Mr. Reglid is an intelligent and studious young actor. He was educated at the University of Berlin, where he often appeared on the amateur stage in German and French plays. Previous to his adopting the profession in America he was engaged in literary work, being at one time connected in a reportorial capacity with Truth, in this city. Socially, as well as theatrically, Mr. Reglid is popular to a degree. His right name is C. Franklyn Dilger, and a couple of years ago he became heir to some valuable property at Brooklyn, where he now has an elegant residence. When at home Mr. Reglid leads quite a luxurious life, his geniality, refinement and admirable personality winning for him a large and loyal circle of friends. He will close with Mr. Robson's Co. at the end of their tour in May, and he is already considering a number of good offers for next season.

ISABELLE COE.

This charming and talented actress, whose portrait forms our frontispiece this week, has honestly gained a very high rung on the histrionic ladder. She was born near Buffalo, N. Y., and first came into prominence in the 80's as a contralto singer in church choirs. She made her first appearance on the stage about eight years ago in the support of Denman Thompson, playing one of the best roles in "Joshua Whitcomb." She displayed marked ability, and was soon engaged by Chas. Hoyt to create the role of Mrs. Brooklyn Bridge, in "A Tin Soldier." Her success was true and thorough. Later her Schoolmistress essay in the production of "A Midnight Bell" at the Bijou Theatre, this city, helped no little toward the triumph of that farce, and won for her many flattering encomiums. She was next engaged by N. C. Goodwin Jr. for the role of Mrs. Meredith in "A Gold Mine." Again, her success was emphatic and deserved. Still supporting Mr. Goodwin, she won wide recognition for her capital portrayal of leading roles in "The Bookmaker," "Col. Tom," "The Nominee" and "Lend Me Five Shillings." In every role she so successfully essayed, Miss Coe exhibited a singular, yet wholly commendable, congeniality with the characters assigned to her. While comedy drawings seem best suited to her talents, her versatility and intelligent conception of assorted characters accord her a recognized and indestructible stronghold. Last season her public work was brief, yet none the less brilliant. For eight weeks she was seen to splendid advantage at the Garden Theatre, this city, in "Dr. Bill," under the management of T. H. French. This year, Miss Coe has been winning unqualified praise for her admiral portrayal of the title role in "Niobe," under the direction of Abbott & Teal. She is a beautiful, winsome woman, possessed of remarkable grace, and an exceptionally fascinating stage presence. Miss Coe is married, her husband being handsome, manly Frank McKee, Hoyt & Thomas' shrewd and able general manager. A pretty child gives delight to the McKee household.

RHODE ISLAND.

Providence.—The observance of Holy Week had a depressing effect upon local theatricals. The attendance at all the theatres was light, and managers who came out even were probably well satisfied. Easter week opened with a fine list of attractions, and a return of good business is expected.

KEITH'S GAIETY OPERA HOUSE.—"Dr. Bill" opened a week's engagement April 18. The attendance last week to witness "A Hole in the Ground" was considerably below the average at this house. Tony Pastor's Co. week of 25.

LOTHROP'S NEW PROVIDENCE MUSEUM.—"The Duke's Motto," presented by Lothrop's stock, No. 1, Ethel Tucker and Charles Barringer leading, is the principal feature of this week's bill. The drama is preceded by "A Leap Year Ball," and John and Nellie Macarthy in musical specialties. "Jessie Brown' drew fair attendance last week. J. Francis Kirke had a benefit 15, when he presented "Asleep at the Switch" to large audiences. Charles Barringer will be tendered a benefit 22, when he will present "The Irish American." Mr. Barringer will appear in the leading role of Ferguson O'Toole, supported by Ethel Tucker and the stock. Week of 25, "The Mariner's Compass."

WESTMINSTER THEATRE.—"The Boy Tramp" 18. James Reilly played to light business last week. Gus Hill's Novelty Co. week of 25.

DYER'S OPERA HOUSE.—This cosy little uptown theatre will open as a permanent place of amusement 20, under the management of J. Gordon Edwards, who for several seasons has been a prominent member of one of Lothrop's stock companies, and A. Baker, a non professional, of this city. A concert will be given in the afternoon by the lady orchestra of eight pieces under the direction of Miss Helena Turnure of Brooklyn, N. Y. The initial performance will be given in the evening, when "Monte Cristo" will be presented with J. Gordon Edwards in the leading role, supported by May Prindle, Annie McVeigh, Justin Paige, Herbert Colby, Vernon Ramsdell, Chas. McElroy and others of the stock. The house has been completely repainted, the decorations brightened up and considerable new scenery provided. The theatre is located in the centre of a district the population of which approximates 25,000, and it is fully three miles distant from any of the other city theatres. Lewis A. Stanton has been engaged as treasurer, and W. C. Richardson, late of The Philadelphia Item, as press agent. The prices will be 10, 20 and 25 cents. Week of 25, "A California Detective."

NOTES.—George G. Merry, who attempted to kill Ethel Beaumont, of Nashua N. H., in a Boston boarding house, 13, was arrested in this city, 15, by Detective Parker, and handed over to the Boston authorities. Mr. Merry is twenty-nine years of age, a native of Pawtucket, and is well known in this city. During his somewhat checkered career he has been more or less allied with the show business. At one time he was employed at the old Theatre Comique, this city, and for the past two years has been engaged in giving store shows in towns in this vicinity. Mr Merry professes to regret his act, and claims that he came to this city to secure money to send to his victim. While in the custody of Detective Parker he made several attempts to take his revolver from his hip pocket, and indications are that had he succeeded he would have shot himself. The members of E. A. McFarland's "Old Homestead" Co. were in town 15, en route from Fall River to Pawtucket, where they opened to meagre attendance.....Frank A. Hills left, 18, to join the Irwin Bros.' Circus.

Boston, Chicago, Kansas City, St. Louis, Milwaukee, Etc.

[Special Dispatches to The New York Clipper.]

BOSTON, April 19.—Easter week opened to splendid business, every house in town being literally packed.....Miss Heylett" was given at the Hollis, and Louise Leslie Carter was favorably received.....The Councillor's Wife" received its first presentation on any stage, and made a big hit at the Museum. It is a comedy of a very creditable order, and the desire to be funny has not driven the author, J. K. Jerome, into inappropriate jokes or impertinent "business." Humorous situation is never emphasized and insisted on until it becomes farce. Character, finally, and not situation has been mainly relied on to produce the comic effect, and the people are not farcical puppets put upon the stage. These are novel statements in this day and generation, but they are accurate.....The attractions at the other Houses were: "Eight Bells," Globe; E. S. Willard, in "The Middleman," Tremont; "Gloriana," Columbia; "The Country Circus," Boston Theatre; "Dangers of a Great City," Grand Opera; "Natural Gas," Bowdoin Square; Burgess' "Circus," Park; Pastor's Co., Howard, and vaudeville at Keith's Bijou.....The dime museums also did great business.

CHICAGO, April 19.—Sol Smith Russell is again taxing the Grand for the second time this season, with but a few weeks intervening. At the opening of his three weeks' engagement there was not an inch of room left unoccupied, and Mr. Russell was given a most enthusiastic reception.....'A Poor Relation" was the bill.....Denman Thompson, at McVicker's, began his seventh week to good attendance.....The Lilliputians, at the Chicago Opera, appeared to another excellent opening, and a crowd witnessed the beginning of "Niobe's" third week at the Hooley.....At the Columbia, the second week of "Mr. Wilkinson's Widows" (No. 1 Co.) was ushered in by a good house.....West Siders filled the Haymarket and applauded "Mr. Barnes of New York," while at the Academy "The Dear Irish Boy" drew well.....At Havlin's, the first Chicago presentation of "The Pay Train" was seen by a large house.....The Paise of New York" and Gracie Emmett were the Alhambra attractions.....North Side patronage was divided between "A Fair Rebel," at the Windsor, and "The Danger Signal," at the Clark Street, with good attendance at each place.

THE following from Silas Robinson may be interesting: "Last Summer, when the Forepaugh Show was billing Sells Bros.' on the Coast, one Sunday night the bill brigades of each met for a chat in an Oregon town. One word brought on another about the respective shows, etc., until the 'number of shows' caused a discussion as to who was the 'inventor' of the 'different tents' idea. I claimed then and now that Yankee Robinson was the inventor, basing my claims on the following facts: In 1857 we started from Chicago with bills which read: 'Yankee Robinson's Quadruple Show—four separate shows in four separate tents for one ticket—40 cents.' We had a 75ft. round top and a 20ft. middlepiece. In one end a portable stage was erected, 9x15ft. scenery (some of the remnants of the late Harry Waugh, 'Billy Fay, the Shanghie clown'), and 'The Days of '76' was played in the afternoon, and 'Uncle Tom' at night. We had posturing, tumbling, la perche, ladders, rings, trapeze, etc., ahead of the drama. Such people as Henry Waugh, A. S. Burt, Oliver Dodge, Yankee Miller, Jimmy Fitzgibbons, the 'Don Santiago de Gibbmoise,' John Wolfington, of Indianapolis, the first to balance a plow on his chin, etc., were with the trick. The 'after concert' was not known in those days. The only new features that year were the 'four shows' and the overland calliope, which Nixon & Kemp took over Illinois by team—the first so to do. We had three sideshow canvases, large enough to hold one cage, and these three completed the Quadruple. The menagerie, one cage, contained a black bear, wolf, coon, two monks, badger, white rabbits, Guinea pigs and a parrot. This was the menagerie. The 'museum' —one wagon, glass sides, contained a large rib, some quartz specimens, petrifications, etc. The 'minstrel organization'—wagon, box off, planks on; middle man and two end men, orchestra on the ground. When the crowds gave up their tickets at the big show, they paid to see it all, and wondered how they'd see the rest without a ticket. When the big show was out, the side canvases of the sideshows were dropped, and all on the lot viewed the wonders. If I mistake not, Johnny Booker was with the minstrel company. Father was born May 2, 1818, died Sept. 3, 1883, and, as the anniversary of his birth is at hand, I here give, as a memory to his name, the above facts."

EDWARD SHIPP and his wife, Julia Lowande, are still with the Orrin Bros.' Shows in Mexico, and from present indications they are likely to remain there a good while. Reports of their having signed with an American circus are wholly without foundation.

KI-BO, the Congo warrior, will be one of the many features with the Downie & Gallagher sideshows this Summer.

Anderson, boss canvasman, with ten assistants; James Carnahan, boss hostler, with eighteen drivers and sixty heads of stock; Fred M. Black, with troupe of trained stallions, ponies and dogs; Wm. WILLIAM F. CODY, "Buffalo Bill," arrived in town April 18, from the West, on his way to England. He has been in this country for about two months, attending to his ranch affairs and arranging for a place to give the Wild West Show at Chicago at the time of the World's Fair. He has secured a place, which he says is about five blocks from the Fair grounds, and his show will be kept there as long as the Fair lasts. Mr. Cody said that he had brought about ninety people with him from the West, sixty of them being Indians. All these sail for London 20 and Mr. Cody himself will go 23. When his show is again ready to open it will have 300 people in the saddle, the largest number which it has ever had before, Mr. Cody says, being 225. The show will open in London, May 7, at Earl's Court, West Kensington, the place originally arranged for the Wild West in the jubilee year. Buffalo Bill himself will be the star as of old. He has missed only five performances at which he was advertised to appear in twenty years. The show will be given this time in connection with the International Horticultural Exhibition, under the management of J. T. North. A new addition to the exhibition this year will be called "Rough Riders of the World," and will consist of bands numbering from ten to twenty-five each, of Cossacks, Algerians, Chilians, etc., to show their characteristic styles of riding, and to compete with the Americans in races. The company will return to this country after the Summer at London, and will have no Winter engagement. Mr. Cody says that he has no plans beyond those for the World's Fair, and that he thinks he is getting a little old to exhibit himself at the head of his company year after year. If this is the case he does not show it.

THE ACTORS' FUND FAIR.

Substantial Aid from Everywhere, and Prospects of a Great Success.

As THE CLIPPER goes to press, April 19, we are enabled to announce that thus far the subscriptions to that worthy charitable enterprise, the Actors' Fund Fair, aggregate about $56,000. In a week the cash donations and advertising subscriptions have amounted to nearly $12,000. We append a list of some recent contributions from professional sources:

The New York Clipper	$650
Helena Modjeska	500
B. F. Keith	400
Henry Dazian	500
Robert Fulford	100
Peter McCourt	100
Mary Anderson-Navarro	100
Wilbur Opera Co	75
"Mr. Barnes of New York" Co	53
Roland Reed's Co	35
Maggie Mitchell	50
Brent Good	25

That THE NEW YORK CLIPPER'S sympathy is with this highly creditable enterprise, it is hardly necessary to record. Our news columns have from the first lent their space and assistance to the furtherance of the various committees' work, and we have been glad to note the brilliant success achieved thus far by the earnest women who have devoted themselves to the noble project. But there are several ways in which to express substantial sympathy for the Fair, and THE CLIPPER has pursued both courses. On April 19 a check for $500 was forwarded by THE CLIPPER to Manager A. M. Palmer, President of the Executive Committee of the Fair, as the second donation of this journal, which had some weeks previously contracted for $150 worth of space in the official programme of the Fair. THE CLIPPER'S contributions, therefore, aggregate $650.

The women's executive committee of the Fair met April 14. It was decided that the price of admission to the fair should be 50 cents afternoons, $1 evenings and children 25 cents at all times. Mrs. A. M. Palmer, who presided, said the display would be worth the price of tickets. The decorations of the Madison Square Garden would be unique, and the electric light effects would alone justify the charge. A proposition had been made to have a small theatre in the Garden, with performances every evening. Georgia Cayvan objected to the introduction of a theatrical display, on the ground that it would detract the attention of the visitors from the fair proper, would consume too much time, and its receipts would not compensate for the outlay. The plan was abandoned. In regard to suitable attire for the ladies who were to preside at the booths, there was no dissenting voice when Mrs. E. E. Kidder said that the dresses should be of the plainest character, and no one should wear low neck or short sleeves. The single exception made to this rule is to be in the case of the Japanese booth, which is to be attended by Mrs. Peeple, Mrs. Eugene Clarke, Mrs. Curtis Bond, Mrs. A. H. Warner (Louise Paullin) and Mrs. St. John. These ladies are to be dressed in Japanese costumes. To purchase badges for those taking part in the work of the fair the sum of $570 was subscribed. Among the announcements made of donations was one from Mrs. Edward Harrigan, to the effect that a committee of the New York Press Club was engaged in the preparation of a magnificent autograph album, containing the sentiments of writers on the stage. Included in the contributions already received are poems by William D. Howells, Julian Hawthorne, Amelia Barr, E. C. Stedman and Amos J. Cummings, with prose sentiments by George William Curtis, St. Clair McKelway, Kate Field, Margaret E. Sangster, Eli Perkins, Brander Matthews, John Hay and T. W. Knox. A unique feature of the book will be cartoons by Keppler, Gillam, Nast, De Grimm and others. Lotta has given a solid silver punch bowl, with a ladle and twelve cups. They are valued at $1,200.

The boom is still in a very vigorous condition, and the phenomenal success which has been promised for the fair is now assured. Money and gifts flow in upon the committee from all sides. Dazian, the costumer, sent $500, and a china and bric a brac dealer has contributed a beautiful French china dinner service. Mrs. Palmer received April 11 a charming letter from Mrs. Mary Anderson Navarro, in which she expressed every desire for the success of the Fair, and inclosed her check for $100. Marie Carlyle, who has been working for the fair at Boston, has sent in $600—a remarkably large amount to be collected from business men who can have no local or business interest whatever in the Fair. Scenic Artists Hoyt, Merry, Young, Fox and Voegtlin have volunteered to assist in the decoration of the interior of the Garden. An all star cast of the representative children of the New York stage will appear in "Pygmalion and Galatea" at Palmer's Theatre, for the benefit of the fair, afternoon of April 26. This cast will include: Pygmalion, Tommy Russell; Leucippe, Rosalind Webbling; Chrysos, Wallie Eddinger; Agesimus, Walter Lean; Mimos, Nanon Fowler; Cyniscа, Bijou Fernandez; Galatea, Olive V. Berkley; Daphne, Lucy Webbling, and Myrine, Gertie Homan. The affair will be under the management of Mrs. Louise Dickson Berkeley, who is rehearsing the little company.

Milton Nobles writes to THE CLIPPER: "We 'take a rest' during Fair week, May 2-7. Our individual services will be given to the managing committee for that week. I produce 'A Son of Thespis' at Brooklyn May 9 and week, then closing my regular season of thirty-seven weeks." Helen Barry is so disappointed in not being able to take an active part in the interest of the fair, owing to the production of her new comedy, "Her Ladyship," at Philadelphia early in May, that she has, with the co-operation of A. M. Palmer, who has generously placed his theatre at her disposal, arranged to give a matinee of "A Night's Frolic" Wednesday, April 27, to help along the good work. Every member of her company, including Mary Shaw, Ellen Prom, J. H. Gilmour, Owen Westford, Alfred Fisher, Neil McLeod and Burt Adams, has volunteered his or her services, and Miss Barry brings to New York all her special scenery.

A matinee will be given at Palmer's Theatre April 20, under the direction of Mr. Palmer, Charles W. Thomas and Margaret Townsend, the daughter of John Townsend, the lawyer, for the benefit of the proposed orphanage. Two one act pieces will be presented, "A Modern St. Anthony," by Miss Townsend," and "A Stag at Bay," by Arturo Cuyas and Miss Townsend. Louis James will play the principal part, that of a priest, in the first named play, and the other characters will be played by well known professionals. A benefit will be given for the fair at Montchair, N. J., 22, when Mrs. Laura Schirmer-Mapleson will be among the volunteers. "Aunt Louisa" Eldridge and Mrs. Fernandez will have a booth at the fair for the sale of articles made by women of the stage and others. "Aunt Louisa" says she already has a room full of pretty things, which she expects to sell at a good price.

VARIETY & MINSTRELSY.

CAPT. W. W. PUTNAM, proprietor and manager of the Richmond Va., Theatre Comique, is in this city on his annual Spring pleasure trip. He is accompanied by his genial son, Deacon Putnam, and he has timed his visit so that it coincides with the engagement in town of Capt. Putnam's son-in-law, John W. Ransone, of Fanny Rice's Co. The Messrs. Putnam and friends occupied a box at the opening of Miss Rice's Co., at the Bijou, April 18. Capt. Putnam occupies the distinction of being Richmond's only vaudeville manager. For nearly a quarter of a century the Comique has delighted lovers of the variety stage with brisk and clever entertainments, and among those who have appeared under Capt. Putnam's auspices are many who are now famed on the legitimate boards. His friends are legion, even in this city, where his repute long ago preceded him. As for Richmond, it is a popular belief that the Captain owns a small slice of that town. The Comique is flourishing, he reports. Capt. Putnam expects to stay in New York five or six weeks. It goes without saying that he will be well cared for while he remains.

PEGGY PRYDE, the pert and popular English character comedienne, will bid good by to the vaudevilles at the close of the present season. Miss Pryde has decided to try her fate on the legitimate stage. She is already considering a number of very flattering offers from prominent managers of comedies and farces, and it is not altogether unlikely that she will be a principal card at a metropolitan theatre next season. At any rate, a starring tour in a good comedy drama is known to be within her possibilities. Miss Pryde is sprightly and quite versatile, and her present tour with the Reilly & Wood Co. has resulted very flatteringly. She aspires to a higher aim in the drama than her special repertory of character sketches, and her years of experience, studious methods and ceaseless energy should help no little toward the fulfillment of her hopes.

CHICAGO is to have a new vaudeville house. W. M. Teschner has just concluded negotiations for the erection of a theatre to be finished in September. It will be under the management of his son, Edward W. Terry.

AT Lavin's Casino Theatre, Parkersville, W. Va., this week: Lewis and Elliott, Albert Langley, Laura Jackson, Nellie Smith, Ida Hall, Lottie Preston, Lulu White and Mamie Sullivan.

WILL A. AND AGGIE BARRON have severed their connection with the Theatre Comique, Kansas City, Mo., and have joined Nibbes' Burlesque Co. for the balance of season.

JOHN CAMPBELL, late of Campbell and Dempsey, was tendered a benefit at Perth Amboy, N. J., April 14. The affair is reported to have been a success.

AT the World's Musee Theatre, Altoona, Pa., week of April 18: Emery and Russell, Chic Kehoe, Ida Rainer, Dick Alden, Carrie Munroe, Prof. De Vere and wife, James J. Morton and Rooster Orchestra.

ROBERT MANCHESTER'S NIGHT OWLS will close their tour at New Haven, Ct., May 15. They will take the road again Aug. 22. Mr. Manchester's French Folly Co. will close June 11 in this city. Both companies are booked solid for next season in the best houses, and week stands only will be played. Neither company goes west of Pittsburg. Last week Mr. Manchester was presented with a handsome ebony cane with an owl for the handle. The owl is of black ivory. There are rumors that B. S. Hodges, the hustling agent of the Night Owls, will shortly take unto himself a wife. The young lady is said to be one of the handsomest girls in the Night Owls Co. Pauline Markham has been re-engaged for next season.

W. S. CLEVELAND has pulled himself together rapidly, and is now well along on the road to thorough recovery. He is traveling with his minstrels in Maine. The latest additions to his company include Harry Leighton, Chas. Reinhart, Leonard Somers, Chas. Maynard, Steven Grubbs, Jas. Pendergast, G. D. Webber, Barney Binberg, Ernest Sinclair, Three Martin Bros. and the Mound City Quartet.

HARRY JAMES, soft shoe dancer, is at his home, Philadelphia, with the grip.

PEOPLE at Smyth's Opera House, Manchester, N. H., week of April 18: Tamborine McCarty, Kelley and Bertha, Ed. Chrissie, Armand and Raymond, Helen Conklin, Wilson and Brevarde, Lizzie Otto, Sadie Nelson and Alf. T. Wilton.

GORTON'S MINSTRELS will close their tour at Duluth, Minn., May 3, for reorganization purposes. Their tour will be resumed 9.

JAMES MCAVOY, a clever writer of parodies and topical songs, has entirely recovered from a recent severe illness, and is making a hit with Manchester's Night Owls Co.

BERTINA LESLIE will leave the Lilly Clay Co. April 23. She will rest in this city for a few weeks. Miss Leslie is considering several offers for next season.

KITTIE PROCTOR presented her husband and partner, Thos. Morrissey, with an Easter offering in the shape of a twelve pound boy baby. Mother and child were doing nicely at last accounts.

LILLIAN CLEAVER, of the Howard Burlesque Co., who was injured in a street car accident at Newark, N. J., about three weeks ago, is still confined to her room at the Continental Hotel, that city, but is convalescing slowly.

THE COPARTNERSHIP between T. E. Miaco and Harry Morris, which had covered a period of five years, was dissolved by mutual consent April 16. Mr. Miaco will manage the City Club Burlesque Co. next season. The following season he will have two companies. The second company will be headed by the Rogers Bros., a team of clever German dialect comedians. Mr. Miaco promises a strong company in the City Club and has already secured some excellent people. Harry Morris will manage the May Howard Co. The company will be headed by May Howard, who is as strong a drawing card as any burlesque company could have. Mr. Morris will, to a certain extent, depart from the present style of female shows. He has already engaged the Washburn Sisters, Ada Stockholm and several other well known people. Daly and Devere have not signed, as made known on another page. Mr. Morris promises a strong company for next season.

NAT BROWN, of Carroll and Brown, has dissolved partnership, and will work with Ed. H. Ward, of Ward and Dailey. The team will be known as Ward and Brown.

OMENE has joined Lester & Williams' "Me and Jack" Co., to do her serpentine dance.

LUCIER'S CONSOLIDATED MINSTRELS are now on their fifty-first week this season, and are said to be meeting with success in Vermont and New Hampshire. Manager Straffin writes that Holy Week was the banner week of the season. The Luciers will introduce a new musical act next season, carrying special scenery and effects. Their act is based on events in the last war, giving the only blind actor and musician, J. R. Lucier, an excellent character to portray.

CHARLES CONNOLLY, Chas. T. Ellis' former musical director, is conducting the orchestra at the New Park Theatre, this city, for Mr. Ellis' new "Count Caspar" production.

ONE of the happiest men on the road at the present time is Lew Dockstader. In addition to the many ducats flowing in from his minstrel company at every point, the comedian has just become the father of a bouncing baby heiress, weighing nine pounds. The vigorous little lady is said to be a veritable prize, as healthy as its paterfimilles and as pretty as its mother. Lew has endowed his jewel with the euphonious patronymic of Mildred Haviin Dockstader.

ANNIE RILEY, the winsome balladist, is said to be making a hit in the various vaudeville theatres with a new song, entitled "Yes, You Are!" in which the male element of the audience usually join with a vim denunciatory of their own deficiencies. The song is a clever local lilt, and is well rendered by the singer.

It closed Sept. 8. "The Wandering Jew" was first acted here Sept. 9, with Geo. L. Fox as Goliah, D. H. Harkins as Dagobert, F. Hardenberg as Rodin, Chas. Leclercq as Jaques, Fanny Hayward as Cephise and Marie Gordon (Mrs. John T. Raymond) as Blanche. Every evening during the drama Little Fay Templeton's specialty, "The Spoiled Child," was acted. "Haunted Houses" was done Sept. 23.

Mr. Daly resumed specie prices of admission, Oct. 20, admitting to all parts of the house, except family circle, 50 cents. Reserved chairs, orchestra and parquet circle, 50 cents extra. Family circle, 40 cents.

Max Maretzek commenced a season of Italian opera Oct. 6, with Pauline Lucca and Tamberlik (first appearance in New York) as the stars. On 7, Ilma Di Murska made her American debut as Amina in "La Sonnambula." She was announced as "The Hungarian Nightingale" and created an actual furor. After her first air all her claims to distinction as a bravura songstress were acknowledged by an outburst of applause which, in spontaniety and enthusiasm, has had few equals on the American stage. Sig. Vizzani reappeared as Elvino; a new basso, Sig. Rossi-Galli, made his debut as Count Rodolfo. Di Murska appeared 9-13 as Lucia di Lammermoor: matinee 11, "La Sonnambula;" Tamberlik as Edgardo in "Lucia;" 16, joint appearance of Pauline Lucca and Di Murska in "The Magic Flute." Di Murska closed 17.

On Jan. 18, 1889, Di Murska died at Munich in extreme poverty, and the same day her daughter (about 20 years of age) committed suicide by taking poison. Accounts differ as to the date of her birth—some say 1838, others 1843. She studied under M. and Mme. Marchesi, and made her debut at the Pergola, Florence, in 1862, and after singing with great success at Pesth, Berlin and Hamburg, obtained an engagement in Vienna, whence she went to London, where she made her debut May 11, 1865, at Her Majesty's Theatre. She carried the musical world by storm, and was commanded to appear before the Prince of Wales at Marlborough House. When in the height of her professional lustre in Europe, kings, emperors and princes were at her feet. She created an intense sensation at Monte Carlo by her magnificence and prodigality.

Di Murska and Pauline Lucca appeared at the Fourteenth Street Theatre, this city, Nov. 24, 1873, as Leonora and Azucena in "Il Trovatore." Tamberlik was the Manrico. Di Murska sang in concert Sunday evening, April 5, 1874, at the Grand Opera House making her first appearance in New York since her Western tour. She commenced a season of six nights of Italian opera at the Academy of Music, April 6, same year. On May 7, 1874, she appeared in German opera in "Robert the Devil" at the Stadt Theatre. On 17 she appeared in concert under the management of Herman Grau, at Terrace Garden, Fifty-eighth Street, between Third and Lexington Avenues, this city. On 20, she appeared in the second act of "Dinorah," at the Fifth Avenue Theatre (Broadway and Twenty-eighth Street), for the benefit of James W. Morrissey. She introduced in costume the shadow song. She commenced a series of concerts under the management of D. De Vivo, Sept. 26, 1874, at Steinway Hall.

Her last appearance in opera here was at Booth's Theatre, season of 1878, when the loss of voice was so marked that her friends advised her to retire from the stage before public favor deserted her. She had grown prematurely old and feeble, and her voice had lost its quality; but, acting under the extremely bad advice of injudicious friends, she gave a concert at Chickering Hall, which only demonstrated that she was no longer the brilliant Di Murska of old. Her last visit to this country was in 1888. She was engaged as an instructor by Mrs. Thurber for the National Conservatory at a salary of $10,000 a year, but was paid a sum of money by the management and "requested" to resign. She starred through the country in the Ilma di Murska Opera Co. In February of that year she broke down at Wilkesbarre, Pa., from a cold contracted at Scranton, and from that date her life was despaired of. She came on to New York, where her struggle against poverty was the theme of comment. A subscription was taken up for her, her jewelry taken out of pawn, a ticket to Europe purchased, and just before the steamer was about to sail the balance of the money (nearly $300) was handed her, and in November, 1888, she left our shores. She was the greatest stacatto artist of her day—a woman of majestic presence, magnificent appearance and great physical strength. Her voice was a pure and flexible soprano, of nearly three octaves in compass, and of remarkable flexibility. Among her favorite parts were Linda di Chamouni, Amina, Astrafiammante and Senta. She was successful as Dinorah, Isabella, Ophelia, Marguerite de Valois, Gilda, Marta, Filina and others of similar character.

On Oct. 20, "Under the Gaslight" was acted, followed, 27, by "Round the Clock," and Nov. 10 "A Flash of Lightning," with this cast:

On Feb. 19 a charity benefit was given for the poor of New York, when the following novel features were introduced: G. L. Fox superintended the sale of tickets in the box office, Jessie Vokes had charge of the ticket gate, Frederick and Fawdon Vokes acted as ushers, Victoria Vokes sold bouquets and Rosina Vokes sold the programmes. The prices of admission were raised. The performances commenced with the second and third acts of "London Assurance," performed by the company of the Fifth Avenue Theatre; followed by the Martens in Tyrolean trios; "The Belles of the Kitchen," by the Vokes Family; "The Sculptor's Dream," by Betty and Emily Rigl and coryphees; and the fifth act of "Richard III," with G. L. Fox as Richard and Fred Vokes as Richmond. Fox closed March 14. The Martinetti Family opened 16 in "Harvest Home, or The Four Lovers." The season terminated March 21.

The house reopened April 6, Joseph H. Tooker, manager; Geo. F. Devere, stage manager. The Florences were the stars, in "Eileen Oge." Ione Burke, Minnie Conway, Hart Conway, John W. Jennings, Owen S. Fawcett and James Peakes were in the company. For the week commencing 13 "Eileen Oge" and "The Ticket of Leave Man," given on alternate nights. The following week "The Ticket of Leave Man" and "Inshavogue" were acted alternate evenings. Oliver Doud Byron commenced 27 in "Donald McKay, the Hero of the Modoc War." This closed the season, May 2, and the house remained closed until the Strakosch Italian Opera Co. opened Nov. 4 in "La Traviata," with Mlle. Heilbron as Violetta, Sig. Benfratelli as Alfredo and Giovanni Tagliapietra as Germont. S. Behrens was musical director. Sig. Tagliapietra is at present residing in this city, devoting himself to the cultivation of the voice and preparing pupils for the operatic stage.

The Kiralfy Bros. were the next lessees, who opened Nov. 23 with "The Black Crook." In the dramatic company were Eliza Weathersby, Kate Fellows, Julia Neuville, George Atkins, Geo. Elliott, Annie Kemp Bowler, Carrie Pierson, Edmund K. Collier, William Street and Master Martin. The ballet was led by Marie Bonfanti and Eugene Lupo; Kathi and Emilie Kiralfy, character dancers; and the specialties were the Lenton Family, acrobats; Kynock and Smith, roller skaters; the Vadais Children, Ulm Sisters, Persian Twin Sisters and Madrigal Boys. The Kiralfys closed Jan 2, 1875.

This house was reopened March 29, under the management of Mrs. Julia E. Dunn, for the production of her spectacular drama, "Ahmed." It was handsomely presented with scenery by Matt Morgan. Kathi Lanner arranged the ballets. Guiseppini Morlacchi was premiere danseuse, with Galetti and Rachel Francesco. William Withers Jr. was musical director. Adah Richmond commenced in the role of Ahmed April 19, but had to withdraw in a few nights, in consequence of illness. Annie Kemp Bowler acted Nymphia. The play was withdrawn April 28, and the house closed to reopen May 15, with "The Twelve Temptations." Joseph Wheelock, Henrietta Irving, Charles Stanley and Lillie Andrews were in the company. Kathi Lanner was mistress of the ballet, and Withers musical director. Several specialty acts were added 17, including Fay Templeton in songs, Prof. Nelson and sons, acrobats, and Prof. Davis and performing dogs. The piece was a failure, and the house closed May 25.

It reopened Aug. 16, 1875, with Pillet and Connolly's dramatization, "Around the World in Eighty Days." The company: Joseph Wheelock, R. D'Orsay Ogden, Louis J. Mestayer, Marion Sackett, Theo. Hamilton, J. J. Wallace, Robert Johnston, May Gallagher and Hattie Arnold. The admission prices were 50 cents; reserved orchestra seats, 75 cents; gallery, 20 cents. This play ran two weeks, and the next managers were Joseph Wheelock, Theo. Hamilton and Robert Johnston, who commenced Aug. 30, with E. L. Davenport as the star. "Hamlet" was the initial performance, cast as follow:

Hamlet	E. L. Davenport	Polonius	John P. Sutton
Laertes	Joseph Wheelock	Horatio	R. D. Ogden
King	Geo. F. Metkiff	Ghost	Robert Johnston
Osric	Theo. Hamilton	Ophelia	Laura Don
First Gravedigger			L. J. Mestayer
Second Gravedigger			Thos. Owens

This was the first appearance in this city of Laura Don. Sept. 1, 2, "Richelieu;" 3, 4, 9, "Richard III;" 6, "Macbeth;" 7, "Hamlet;" 8, "Othello;" 10, "The Merchant of Venice" and "Oliver Twist." Harry Watkins commenced 13 in "Pioneer Patriots;" 20, first time in this city, the drama, "Red and Black, or a Gambler's Life"—Joseph Wheelock as Maurice, Angie Montague (first appearance at this theatre) as Pauline. The season terminated Sept. 21.

John P. Sutton died at Brooklyn, N. Y., Jan. 2, 1887, of pneumonia. His last appearance in this city was in "The Jilt," at the Standard Theatre, a few weeks before his death.

Laura Don, right name Annie Laura Fish, died at Greenwich, N. Y., Feb. 10, 1886.

This theatre was reopened Oct. 25, 1875, with "Uncle Tom's Cabin," and closed at the end of one week.

After being closed for several months, it was reopened Feb. 12, 1876, with Lucille Western as the star in "Oliver Twist," J. B. Studley as Bill Sykes. "East Lynne" 14, "Child Stealer" 24, "Uncle Tom's Cabin" 28, Edward Tullidge's Jewish play, "Ben Israel, or From Under the Curse," was acted March 6 for the first time on any stage, J. H. Vinson in the title role, Amelia Waugh as Rachel, Jordan as Sir Walter, Harry Dalton as Charles II and Mrs. W. G. Jones as Meg. One or two performances was all the public wanted of it, and the house was again closed.

The next lessees were John F. Poole and Thomas Donnelly. The house was considered, in theatrical parlance, a "Jonah," and it was almost impossible to find any responsible manager to take it. Poole & Donnelly took it with the understanding that if they made money a small percentage of the profits was to go to the Erie Railway Co., the owners of the property. They made the house popular from the start, by lowering the prices of admission and catering for the West Side. They opened Sept. 18, 1876, with the Alice Oates Co. in "La Fille De Madame Angot," Alice Oates as Clairette. The organization consisted of Charles H. Drew, John Howson, Henri Laurent, Jos. H. Jones, A. W. Maflin, H. Amburg, R. H. Nichols, John Merritt, C. W. Decker, Rose Temple, Julia Chapman, Venie Clancy, the Winner Sisters—Gussie, Annie and Carrie—Ella and Jennie Caldwell, Susie Parker, Bessie Temple, Tracy White and Jesse Williams, musical and stage director. "Giroflé Giroflá," 25, 26, and the company closed 30. "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was revived Oct. 2, with Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Howard as St. Clair and Topsey, George Kunkel as Uncle Tom, and Gracie Wade as Eva. Slavin's Georgia Minstrels (colored), donkeys and blood hounds were introduced. It had a run of five weeks to large business, and was taken off (owing to prior engagements) for Buffalo Bill, who played one week, commencing Nov. 6. "Uncle Tom" was revived 13, and ran for three weeks, when it gave way to Henry Morford's "Crabbed Age," produced Dec. 4, with Lettie Allen (first appearance in this city) and J. B. Atwater as the stars. In the supporting company were Ida Jeffries, May Gallagher, J. Clarke, J. Morrison, G. W. Reed, George Morris, William Scallan and Thomas Owens. "The Black Crook" was revived Dec. 18, and the principal dancers were Mlle. Morlacchi, Cora Adriana, Mlle. Antonino, and Malvina Evers. The specialties were the Sawyer Family, bell ringers; Kynock and Smith, skaters, and Crossley and Elder, athletes. The cast:

Rudolph	Mark Bates	Greppo	Louis Harrison
Hertzog	E. J. Mack	Count	Shirley France
Zamiel	Geo. Morris	Dragonfin	J. C. Franklin
Amina	Phosa McAllister	Rosetta	Ida Lee
Stalacta	Lulu Jordan	Carline	Theresa Wood
Dame Barbara			Genie Howard
Von Puffengrunts			Hudson Liston

Guisseppini Morlacchi died at her home, East Billerica, Mass., July 23, 1886. First appeared in America at Banvard's Museum (now Daly's Theatre), Broadway and Thirtieth Street, with De Pol's Troupe in "The Devil's Auction," Oct. 23, 1867. In 1873 she was married to J. B. Omohundro, professionally known as "Texas Jack," who died at Leadville, Col., June 28, 1880.

Mark Bates died at Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 15, 1879. He was found wandering hatless on the streets, and gesticulating in a manner that led to the belief that he was deranged. When asked his name and residence he replied: "Maguffin, and I live on the Grampian Hills; and I want to get there soon, because I've got important business." He was locked up, and the next morning he was found dead. His last appearance in this city was at Niblo's Garden.

J. C. Franklin (real name J. C. Cobey) died of consumption, at Philadelphia, Pa., July 25, 1879. His last appearance on any stage was with Tony Denier's traveling pantomime troupe in January, 1879. He was sick for a long time. Tony Denier was especially kind to him, sending him a remittance of ten dollars every week, and the last words Mr. Franklin ever spoke were words of affection and gratitude for Mr. Denier.

— The suit of Charles A. Byrne and Archibald Gordon against John R. Rogers, the husband of Minnie Palmer, for $5,000, was tried before Judge Barnard and a jury in the Queens County Supreme Court at Long Island City April 13, and resulted in a verdict for the plaintiffs for $4,500 and costs, amounting to some $400 more. Messrs. Byrne and Gordon wrote "My Prima Donna," several years ago, under contract, they claim, for Mr. Rogers. The price was to be $5,000. Although Mr. Rogers accepted the play, he failed to produce it, and paid only $500 to the authors. The authors brought suit to recover the remainder. Mr. Rogers testified that he sent the play back to them because it was lacking in "stage business," which the authors failed to supply.

— Geo. Thatcher and Harry J. Sayers, believing that the constantly increasing number of 'cyclists in this country would be attracted by a well written and meritorious comedy play based upon a 'cycling incident, have had constructed such a play, which should prove a novelty and gives promise of being a stage sensation. In securing the services of the Three Powers Brothers (James, Andrew and William) and the sole and exclusive right to use their patented stage bicycle race for a term of years, Thatcher & Sayers feel that they have laid the foundation for a theatrical venture which cannot fail of success. The interest of the play centres on a bicycle race, which takes place in full view of the audience, with all the realism of an outdoor event. Neither money nor endeavor has been spared to make this a startling footlight sensation. To this end they have secured the services of several professional 'cyclists of national reputation, who will participate in the race. The story of the play is one of human interest, and will be staged in strict accordance with the requirements of first class productions, and interpreted by a company of capable and efficient actors. On 10 mules others of the party and myself, with two horses, attempted the trip for West Point, thirty-six miles distant, abandoning our baggage, as it will be a week more, at least, before that railroad is running. The high water forced us to send back the horses, after making about eight miles. Procuring a shaky little skiff, we started across, meeting with many floating logs carried swiftly by the fierce current, any one of which was enough to upset our frail craft. We managed to land about three miles lower down on the other side of the stream. Then we walked trestles, in some places two and three inches under the water, all of us wondering where a misstep would land us. We had to bridge three or four narrow but deep washouts in the hills. Darkness coming on, we spent the night with the only man we could reach, having got ourselves entirely hemmed in. We reached West Point at noon today, worn out. I lost three guarantee dates on account of the floods."

FOREIGN SHOW NEWS.

A DISPATCH from Monte Carlo states that Sir Arthur Sullivan is suffering from renal calculus. His pain is so intense that it is necessary to use morphine to ease it. The first symptoms of the trouble appeared early this year. It became acute early in March. His physicians have decided that an operation at present is not expedient. He is unable to leave his bed or take solid food. His diet consists of calves' foot jelly. He must keep to his bed for another month, when he will then return to England to undergo an operation. There is no immediate fear of a serious result. His work has been entirely stopped. Even the reading of letters is not allowed. The new opera on which he was working, and which was three-quarters completed, has been abandoned.

She says she is the wife of Sampson, the American strong man, who was sentenced 7 to 12 weeks months at hard labor for stealing the jewelry and money of his "dear, darling Maggie," Mrs. Bernstein, who became infatuated with him. Sampson's hair was taken off at the jail, and he was set to work picking oakum.

She was soon able to resume her part, and the play went on. Miss Hawthorne wisely curtailed her season, and Edmund Tearle opened at the Olympic 18 in "Julius Cæsar."

W. S. GILBERT has had a tilt at law with Horace Sedger of the London Lyric. When "The Mountebanks" was produced at that theatre, Sedger covenanted with Gilbert that no alteration should be made in connection with the opera except with the author's consent in writing. Sedger recently, of his own volition, discharged eight choristers, and Gilbert sought for an injunction to restrain him on the ground that a reduction of chorus would injuriously affect the proper playing of the opera and the gross injustice to the chorus who devoted weeks of unpaid hard labor to rehearsals on the understanding that they would be engaged for the full run. Sedger asserted that the choruses are not a part of the cast of an opera, and that interference with his managerial discretion would make the maintenance of discipline impossible. The Judge made an order indefinitely postponing the hearing of the action, and Gilbert wrote to the newspapers yesterday, saying that, as his main object is to secure the immediate reinstatement of the unfortunate choristers had failed, he had decided to withdraw from the suit. Gilbert's kindly action has drawn attention to the fact that it is quite a common occurrence for light opera managers to engage a very strong chorus for a new piece, and when success has been assured to dismiss a considerable proportion. Newspapers are now denouncing this system as fraudulent and unfair to the public, and the Actors' Association is being urged to take some action in the matter.

VARIETY & MINSTRELSY.

SAM T. JACK'S MADISON STREET OPERA HOUSE CHICAGO, ILL.—Manager Sam T. Jack calls attention elsewhere to the fact that his companies, and he names them all, are the biggest, and, as he says, the best, in the burlesque line in this country. He says that his Chicago Madison Street Opera House is situated on the velvet tipped, gold edged side, and away up on "Easy Street," and that his various companies are marching up that street on the amber blocks "right behind the band." This is a little flowery, but it is true. His moulding success from failure in his Madison Street Opera House is worthy of record on the bright side of theatrical annals in this country. The Chicago house, indeed, has been playing to phenomonally large business ever since this astute manager took the helm, and this, too, notwithstanding the fact that some of the tip-top hustling managers of the country had met with failure after failure there. This goes to prove that "there be hustlers and hustlers," to paraphrase a familiar axiom, but even hustling may be directed down the wrong path. It is methodical and wise hustling that tells; the knowing how, when and where to advertise, and the full knowledge of what and when to book a house. These are the things upon which success waits. The feature about the Madison Street Opera House is that novelty is ever given the first place. It has nothing in common with any other theatre, and it possesses the unique distinction of being the only theatre in the world entirely devoted to burlesque. With his own five burlesque companies, and another one in contemplation, Manager Jack can almost furnish all the bookings for his Chicago house, as no company plays to less than two weeks, and many play three and four weeks at a time.

Murphy, a Reading half man, both legs dismembered about the same as Mr. Willis'. Mr. Murphy won the first and Mr. Willis the two succeeding heats. There is a possibility of their doubling up, as they are both good acrobats, and can give a creditable exhibition, which drew a large crowd the evening of the race. LEWIS EPSTEEN, proprietor of the Randolph Street Dime Museum, Chicago, was at Philadelphia last week in the interest of organizing a dime museum trust. He was in consultation with Charles A. Bradenburg, proprietor of the museum here, and Mr. Bradenburg has consented to go into the proposed trust. It is intended to organize the trust with a capital of $2,000,000. So far, Boston, New York, Chicago, Cincinnati, Detroit, Buffalo, Rochester, Toronto, Can., and Philadelphia are to be represented in the trust by one museum each. In the case of New York, both Worth's and Doris' Museums want to join the scheme, but only one will be taken. To decide which one shall go in, Mr. Epsteen has secured the advice of Mr. Bradenburg, and both gentlemen came to New York April 14 for that purpose. The details of the proposed trust have not yet been arranged. It is unsettled at present as to whether Denver and San Francisco shall be represented in it. It is claimed that there will be many advantages in a dime museum trust. In the first place this country will be enabled thereby to get the best freaks in European museums. At present many freaks will not come across the water because there is not enough money in it for them, and they are guaranteed no circuit. The trust will be able to keep them on exhibition during the whole season. In the next place, the museum proprietors will dictate the terms and not the freaks, as the case is now. It is the intention of the proposed trust to give Mr. Bradenburgh the power of securing the freaks. He has also been asked to pay personal attention to the Chicago Museum, and this he has promised in the event of the trust being formed.

NEW YORK CITY.

Last Week's Doings.—It would be difficult to successfully deny that the close of Lent came as a glad relief to the city managerial fraternity. Although the penitential period opened with fewer than the usual signs of depression, it was not long in asserting its conventional influence. During the past month no playhouse in town has been steadily crowded. The more pronounced successes continued in their runs, but on some occasions there were marked indications of a diminution of patronage. Two or three productions, intended for protracted runs, weakened under this Lenten apathy, and their close was accordingly hastened. Already two theatres are dark for the season, and several others will close their doors earlier than has hitherto been their custom.....The chief novelty of the week which ended April 16 was the double bill, "Husband and Wife," and "Hearts," with which, on Saturday night, 16, the GARDEN reopened, having been closed since 9. The new plays were watched with eager interest by a fine house, and one of them may be said to have gained considerable favor. This was "Husband and Wife, or the Tiger Lillies' Club," a farcical comedy by F. C. Philips and Percy Fendall, both of London. This was the first New York performance, the American premier having occurred night of 15, at New Haven, Ct., when, also, "Hearts" was originally performed. In both plays Cora Tanner assumed the leading role, and thus inaugurated her new venture, which is under the joint control of Col. W. E. Sinn and T. Henry French. "Hearts" is the one act play, by W. Echard Golden, which was awarded The New York Herald's prize of $200, and was subsequently bought by Managers French & Sinn for $1,100. It was skillfully acted, but it was not very successful, and thus again proof was supplied that "prize plays" are like many other things in life—"mighty onsartin." The English farce lacks originality, but it is continuously amusing and droll, and as it was very briskly acted it gained in value accordingly. Miss Tanner, who was gorgeously gowned in both pieces, was very cordially welcomed, showing that she is now an established metropolitan favorite. Her comedy is quite natural, and her charming personality accentuates her work. There was no gainsaying the extent of her individual success. Edith Kenward, making her New York reappearance in a low comedy role, was quite effective, and Graham Henderson, Ada Dwyer, Mrs. Eldridge, Harold Russell, Cuyler Hastings and Harry Brown were also conspicuously valuable in the cast, Mr. Henderson playing a leading role with much spirit and care. Mrs. Eldridge was very cordially received. A handsome basket of flowers, tied with the national colors, was handed to her. Everybody knows what a staunch American "Aunt Louisa" is. We append the casts of both plays: "Hearts"—Mrs. Cavendish, Cora Tanner; Marion Carew, Tessie Butler; Lucy, Mary Penfield; Cuthbert Devlin, Harold Russell; Jerome Rutledge, Cuyler Hastings. "Husband and Wife"—Adolphus Greenthorne, Graham Henderson; Sir George Muddle, Lionel Bland; Montrevor Smith, Harry Brown; Alfred Stepit, Cuyler Hastings; Phillip Softdown; Ernest Foster; Mr. Delamere, Theodore M. Brown, Inspector Thickhead, Robert McNair; Officer Blunt, J. B. Atwell; Usher, J. Wilson; Clerk, Albert Steele; Reporter, Charles Diehl; Waiter, Percy Hunter; Mrs. Greenthorne, Ada Dwyer; Mrs. Montrevor Smith, Mrs. Louisa Eldridge; Mrs Phillip Softdown, Tessie Butler; Mrs. Delamere, Mary Penfield; Mary, Edith Kenward, and Mrs. Springfield, Cora Tanner. "Husband and Wife," by the way, was originally acted at the London Criterion, April 30, 1891. Miss Tanner is to play four weeks at the Garden. The Henderson "Sinbad" Co. follow for the Summer season.

.....The theatres dark on Good Friday night, 15, were Daly's, Palmer's, the Casino, Proctor's and the Lyceum.....Continued bills last week were these: "The Last of the Hogans" at HARRIGAN'S, "The American Minister" at the STAR, "The Lion Tamer" at the BROADWAY, "Uncle Celestin" at the CASINO, "Incog." at the STANDARD, "Merry Gotham" at the LYCEUM, "A Night at the Circus" at the BIJOU, "A Trip to Chinatown" at HOYT'S MADISON SQUARE, "Gloriana" at HERRMANN'S, "The English Rose" at PROCTOR'S TWENTY-THIRD STREET, "The Foresters" at DALY'S, "Col. Joseph Humphreys returned to the cast of "Gloriana" 11, relieving Frederick Bond, who, on that date, joined one of Chas. Frohman's road companies. The prosperous run of "The Last of the Hogans" ended at Harrigan's 16, having lasted since Dec. 21, 1891. On April 16, also, "Gloriana" finished its nine weeks' stay at Herrmann's, and "The English Rose" its six weeks' engagement at Proctor's. "Uncle Celestin," which had held the Casino's boards since Feb. 15, was withdrawn April 14, and the house was dark the remainder of the week. Nellie McHenry's stay of a month at the Bijou ended profitably 16.....The THALIA was dark all the week .. At the METROPOLITAN OPERA HOUSE a special performance of "Shenandoah," by the Hayman-Frohman Co., was given night of 11, under the auspices of Encampment No. 38, U. V. L. The house was crowded, and Bronson Howard, the author, was called upon for a speech. The Hayman-Frohman Co. closed their season with this performance. .....Emil Thomas and the stock continued in German plays at the AMBERG. Fraulein Wolf benefited 15, in a revival of M. Sardou's "Georgette.". ...At the ACADEMY, the two weeks' engagement of Adele Sandrock and the Rosenfelds' Meininger Co. ended 16. On 12 Fraulein Sandrock gave the first American performance of "Sophie Dorothea." On 15 she was seen for the first time in this country in "Die Hochzeit von Valeni" ("The Wedding at Valeni"), by Ludwig Ganghofer and Marco Brociner..... Variety held forth as usual at TONY PASTOR'S, the LONDON, HARLEM OLYMPIC and MINER'S BOWERY and EIGHTH AVENUE.....The week stands ended 16 were: Rose Coghlan in "Dorothy's Dilemma" at the GRAND OPERA HOUSE, Alfred Kelcy's "O'Flynn in Mexico" at the NEW PARK, Lydia Thompson in her triple bill at the FOURTEENTH STREET, Prof. Herrmann at the PEOPLE'S, Joseph Haworth at the HARLEM OPERA HOUSE, "The Midnight Alarm" at the COLUMBUS, Webber's "Uncle Tom's Cabin" Co. at the WINDSOR, "A Dark Secret" at H. R. JACOBS' and "Christmas Bells" at the HARLEM THEATRE .....The Henry Burlesque Co., with Boxers Hall and Choynski, at NIBLO'S, had a prosperous opening week, and remain 18-23.....The first week of "Spooks" at the UNION SQUARE was played under rather inauspicious circumstances. After the first night Charles Barnard, author of the play, altered the third act to its original form, and the improvement was quite helpful. But the piece is not yet a go, by any means .....The Barnum-Bailey Circus continued to big business at MADISON SQUARE GARDEN.....J. L. Stoddard's morning lectures filled Daly's with the usual brilliant audiences.

MLLE. MARIA PACRA finished her engagement at Koster & Bial's April 15, and sailed for France 16. She goes direct to Paris, and thence to St. Petersburg, where she begins a two months' engagement at the Court Theatre.

AT PALMER'S, "Col. Carter of Cartersville" has a fortnight longer to run before the Summer opera season opens, with the first New York performance of "Jupiter," by the Digby Bell Opera Co.

THE NEW STAGE CHILDREN'S LAW.—Theatrical managers of this city, and juvenile aspirants to stage honors, will hail with delight the news that the bill introduced in the Legislature, permitting children under the age of sixteen to take part in theatrical exhibitions, has become a law. The matter first came up several months ago, when the leading managers, protesting against the interference of Mr. Gerry's society, decided to have a bill introduced in the Legislature to remedy the evil. Mr. Gerry asked leave to intervene, in hopes that a bill might be framed that could be submitted to the Legislature without his opposition. The bill was drawn by Ex-Judge Dittenhoefer, and introduced by Assemblyman Stein. It was referred to the Committee on Codes. Here it again met the opposition of Mr. Gerry, and, at a meeting about six weeks ago, at Albany, between Frank W. Sanger, T. Henry French, Mr. Gerry, ex-Judge Dittenhoefer and others, it was agreed to prepare a new bill, which is the one that has passed. Gov. Flower signed it on April 16. It is an amendment to Section 292 of the Penal Code, relative to the licensing of children under sixteen in theatrical exhibitions. The italicised words in the following are the amendments: "But this section does not apply to the employment of any child as a singer or musician in a church, school or academy, or in teaching or learning the science or practice of music, or as a musician in any concert, or in a theatrical exhibition, with the written consent of the Mayor of a city, or the President of the Board of Trustees of the village where such concert or exhibition takes place. Such consent shall not be given unless forty-eight hours' previous application shall have been served in writing upon the society mentioned in Section 293 of the Penal Code, if there be one within the county, and a hearing had thereon, if requested, and shall be revokable at the will of the authority giving it. It shall specify the name of the child, its age, the names and residence of its parents or guardians, the nature, time, duration and number of the performances permitted, together with the place and character of the exhibition. But no such consent shall be deemed to authorize any violation of the first, second, fourth or fifth subdivisions of this section." Section 2 of the act provides that it shall take effect on Sept. 1 next. A small license fee is required, also.

THE ground upon which the Lyceum Theatre stands was advertised to be sold, with the lease, at the Real Estate Exchange April 12. The sale, however, did not take place, and the differences which were forcing the sale have been settled. The sale was to have taken place by the order of Peter A. Hendrik, the referee, in a suit brought by John S. Ellis against the Lyceum, the New York Theatre Co. and Franklin H. Sargent, in pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale dated Dec. 15, 1890. The proceedings in this suit have been very complicated. The Lyceum was the name of the corporation which first acted as the lessee of the ground. Its first lease, from May 1, 1884, was for twenty-one years, with the privilege of two renewals of twenty-one years each at a rental of $4,000. The following year the Lyceum borrowed $20,000 on its 6 per cent. coupon bonds, in order to finish the building. Before this, however, the theatre had been leased to Steele Mackaye and Gustave Frohman for $12,000 a year for ten years, with the privilege of an additional ten years' lease at a rental of $15,000 a year. Brent Good, Stephen R. Pinckney and others succeeded Mackaye & Frohman in 1887. They bought the majority of the stock, and organized the New York Theatre Co. New directors were then elected, and they celebrated their accession to office by refusing to pay the interest on the bonds, and they also failed to declare any dividends. This was the cause of the litigation, which has been almost endless. The New York Theatre Co. began suit in the Superior Court to declare the bonds void. This was defeated, and in November, 1888, John S. Ellis, as trustee for the bondholders, began a suit to foreclose the mortgage. The Lyceum defended this action, but it was defeated twice. Then the notice of the foreclosure was printed. Hubbard Hendrickson, the attorney for Mr. Ellis, said that his clients were paid every dollar of the face value of the bonds, both principal and interest, together with the costs.

ALL the details about the next play from Bronson Howard's pen was settled April 14. The last play that he wrote was "Shenandoah." On 11 Hayman & Frohman, who managed the play, closed up the "Shenandoah" books, disbanded their companies and laid the play off until a year from next October, when it will be revived at Baldwin's Theatre, San Francisco, and started on another tour. Mr. Howard writes his plays in a leisurely way. He came over here last year from London for the purpose of getting his material in shape, and as a preliminary he traveled around to the different watering places, making character studies and forming his play roughly as he went along. He has now retired to his house at New Rochelle, and is engaged upon the practical work of turning out the manuscript. A rough draft of the play has been finished, but it will be changed many times before the public sees it. Meanwhile Palmer's Theatre has been rented for the production in November next, all the actors in the cast have been selected, and rehearsals will begin in August. The leading man of the company will be Wilton Lackaye, and the leading lady Viola Allen. William Faversham has been engaged as the juvenile actor, and the character part goes to Frederick Bond. The play tells a story of American social life. There will be no elaborate scenic effects, and the whole action of the play will occur in New York City.

THE LAMBS' "gambol," which will take place at the Broadway Theatre April 28, will present an extraordinary array of people. The performance will consist of a number of entertainments peculiar to this club, which are given weekly at their little theatre on Twenty-seventh Street, and are enjoyed by every one that attends them. Heretofore they have been exclusive to members of the club. One number will introduce William H. Crane, N. C. Goodwin Jr., Ed. Collier, Thomas Q. Seabrooke, Harry Connor, Charles Harris, Maurice Barrymore, Wilton Lackaye, Robert Hilliard, Hubert Wilke, Ralph Delmore, James Neil and Morton Eddy in a play written specially for this occasion by Sydney Rosenfeld and Augustus Thomas. Another play of a similar nature, written by the same authors, will be acted by THOMAS J. HERNDON, the veteran actor, who was taken to Bellevue Hospital on April 11 by his daughter, for examination as to his mental condition, was adjudged insane 12 by Dr. Fitch. He is probably suffering from senile dementia. The Actors' Fund will provide quarters for him. Mr. Herndon has been an actor nearly forty years, and in the country was considered almost a rival of Joseph Jefferson as Rip Van Winkle. Two years ago he retired from the stage, on account of weak memory. His daughter, Isabel, also an actress, living at No. 359 West Eighteenth Street, was compelled to take care of him. She obtained quarters for him in a theatrical boarding house at No. 65 Irving Place, and there the old actor stayed until 11, when Dr. O'Hanlon, of No. 321 East Twentieth Street, one of the physicians of the Actors' Fund, ordered his removal to the hospital for examination. The trustees of the Fund would have taken care of Mr. Herndon previously had they known anything of his condition. Dr. O'Hanlon, who is the specialist for insanity of the Fund's staff of physicians, was notified, and calling at the veteran actor's residence found him very vehement and highly excited. Apparently the old man is suffering from aphasia, or loss of memory of language. While at Bellevue Hospital, when Mr. Herndon wanted his hat he asked for "that there book." While desiring a drink of water he ordered the nurse to bring him "his coat," etc. There is hardly any hope for the old gentleman's recovery, as it is thought that his complaint will turn into paresis. Mr. Herndon was born at Springfield, Ill., Sept. 11, 1831. His father was one of the early settlers of the place. A printer by trade originally, he got his first lessons in acting when he came to New York, in 1852, and joined the Excelsior Dramatic Club under the name of Charles Walker. His first engagement on the regular boards was at the National Theatre, Boston, in September, 1853, as James in "London Assurance." He made a hit as Bill in the drama of "Hot Corn" while still at the National. He served through two years of the war, leaving the army as a first lieutenant in the Ninety-ninth New York Volunteers in 1863. He traveled with J. Wilkes Booth, and first appeared in New York, June, 1863, as Swig in "Swiss Swains" at the Winter Garden. He also played Asa Trenchard in "Our American Cousin at Home." He married Clara Wilton in 1866, at Louisville, Ky. Through the '60s he took a company bearing his name through the West and the interior of this State and New England with considerable success. His star performance at this time was Rip Van Winkle. The afflicted man will probably be sent to the Bloomingdale Asylum for the Insane to spend his remaining days.

COL. WM. B. HAYES, formerly the backer of Lole Fuller in a dramatic enterprise, was arraigned in the General Sessions before Recorder Smyth April 12, for trial upon an indictment charging him with perjury. Annie M. Keating sued Mr. Hayes for $2,000 in one of the upper counties of the state. She said he had given her a note for this amount. In his sworn answer to her complaint, Mr. Hayes denied that he had ever given her the note. On the ground that this statement as to the note was false, Col. Hayes has been indicted. The trial was adjourned until 26.

FREDERICK EUGENE POWELL, a magician, who had recently been exhibing his mysterious feats in several South American countries, appeared for the first time at the Eden Musee, April 12. He proved to be a skillful entertainer. Majilton, the Japanese juggler, also appeared for the first time at the Musee.

AMELIE CONSTANCE, a colored woman, describing herself as a Bowery museum ex-Circassian Princess, was sent by Justice McMahon to the Island for a month April 12. Miss Constance, who was nearly bald, attributed her downfall to the sudden loss of her hair, which had ruined her as a "freak" and had driven her to drink.

"MERRY GOTHAM" will be continued at the Lyceum only through this week. It will be followed April 25 by "The Gray Mare," the rights to which Mr. Frohman has again secured, after having once surrendered them.

THE BARNUM & BAILEY CIRCUS is in its fifth and final week at Madison Square Garden. The attendance continues very large. Next week the big show moves over to Brooklyn.

SARAH BERNHARDT was a volunteer, in recitations from Victor Hugo and other French authors, at the Damrosch Sunday concert, April 17, at Carnegie Music Hall, in aid of a local charity. On 19 and 20, she appears in "Leah" at the Metropolitan Opera House, repeating the performance afternoon of 21, for the benefit of the Actors' Fund. Her farewell appearance will be made night of 22.

THIS is the last week of the season at Daly's. "As You Like It" will be done for the farewell performance, night of April 23. "The Foresters" will continue until then. Rosina Vokes takes Daly's for her annual Summer engagement, during which she will produce a new play.

EDWARD LLOYD, the English concert tenor, made his American debut April 19, at the Madison Square Garden concert hall. He is to give a series of six concerts in this city.

"SPOOKS," the new and disappointing comedy by Charles Barnard, is in its second and final week at the Union Square.

"INCOG." has three weeks longer to run at the Standard. The Charles Dickson Co. will then have played nearly one hundred nights in this city. E. M. Royle's comedy, "Friends," will have its New York hearing May 9.

THOMAS H. PRATT, who opens the Fifth Avenue Theatre on May 16 with Barrymore's opera, "The Robber of the Rhine," has engaged C. Hayden Coffin, the well known baritone, to create the role of Waldemar. This forestalls T. Henry French, who had engaged Mr. Coffin to support Lillian Russell next September. Edith Kenward is also engaged for the new opera.

A. M. PALMER does not bring his stock company into his New York theatre until next January. Digby Bell, with his comic opera company, have possession of Palmer's Theatre during the Summer months, closing in September. Then Chas. Frohman has the house for October, November and December. He opens there with John Drew in October, and follows with Bronson Howard's new play. Mr. Palmer will have only one company ("Alabama") on the road next season.

MYRON CALICE, Nestor Lennon, John T. Ward and Mrs. John Rickaby have been engaged by Manager Mart Hanley for the production of "Irish Inspiration," at Miner's People's Theatre, May 23.

"THAT COWBOY," by Mary Adelaide Keeler; "The Charms of Music," by Alex. H. Laidlaw, and "A Modest Model," by Ada Carpender, three of the unsuccessful plays from The Herald's late prize play list, will be produced at Hoyt's Madison Square Theatre afternoon of April 20, under the management of Ogden & Pratt. Others are to follow.

MANAGER J. WESLEY ROSENQUEST, of the Bijou and Fourteenth Street Theatres, sailed for Europe April 13.

SUNDAY NIGHT BENEFITS.—There were three benefits given in this city Sunday night, April 17. At the Academy of Music, the fifth annual entertainment for the benefit of the Theatrical Mechanical Benevolent Association was given, and about $1,300 was cleared. The entertainment was very enjoyable, and such well known professionals as Joseph Haworth, Maurice Barrymore, Charles L. Harris, Jennie Yeamans and Jennie O'Neill Potter assisted..... At the Union Square, Gus Phillips (Oofty Gooft) was the recipient of a benefit. An excellent house assembled, and a good bill was presented. Robert Recker's orchestra and the following appeared: Edward Parker, Master Leon, Harry Fisher, Harry Kernell, W. Andrew Mack, John Walsh, May Wentworth, Dutch Daly and the beneficiary Wm. S. Clark, advertising agent at the People's Theatre, received his annual benefit at that house 17. The audience was a very large one, and a long list of volunteers gave an entertaining performance.

BUSINESS at the Grand Museum continues large. The principal attractions this current week are Wallace's World's Fair in miniature, Bufrane (stone breaker), Flo Wallace (lightning scarf painter), Tiebor (Swazi glass dancer), Will Elmourne (magician of the wire), Ganilleau (boy magician), Mme. La Jaskia (Egyptian fortune teller), Carroll and Brown, Callahan and Watson, Harry Weaver, Dolly Howe and Maude Grant. Whale Oil Gus and Little Monday were booked, but were not satisfied with the stage, which was the best in the house, and canceled, much to the satisfaction of the present manager. "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is the play presented by the stock. Next week: Jo Jo and Uncle. G. H. Schoof, Reede Brothers, Sol Stone, German Rose, Robert Watson, Maude Bruce, Bryan Collins and Raymond Brothers, with "The Mischievous Nigger" in the theatre. Since the engagement of Col. Millken as manager, the policy of the house has undergone a radical change.

GAIETY MUSEUM.—Manager Albert A. Bernstein celebrated his birthday April 11, and received some handsome presents from the attaches of the house. Business last week was large. This week's bill: Curio hall—Swipes, the Newsboy, and his wife, Minnie Rosenblatt, a female six day tug of war, Master Hyatt, Alma, Prof. Von Bloch, Prof. Thomas Edwards, Prof. Davis, Mlle. Gray and Campbell's Punch and Judy. Stage—Harry T. Stewart, supported by the stock, in "The Border King."

MINER'S EIGHTH AVENUE THEATRE.—The Night Owls Co are here this week. No important changes have occurred in the make up of this popular company since their last appearance at this house. The organization is one of the most complete now traveling, and, under the management of Robert Manchester, it has had a most successful season. Next week, George Dixon's Co.

"MR WILKINSON'S WIDOWS," by Charles Frohman's No. 2 Co., with Wilton A. Lackaye specially engaged as Percival Perrin, was put on at Herrmann's, April 18, for a fortnight's revival, and to close Mr Frohman's tenancy of that theatre. The house 18 was fairly large, and the droll play was greeted with continuous laughter and applause. Mr. Lackaye was quite successful in his new role. Essie Tittell was well liked as Mrs. Perrin, and clever Margie Harold Davidge gained emphatic approval for her highly comic portrayal of the Cook. The cast also included Seymour G. Hess, droll Will O'Brien, Nina Heyward and John Lange.

CHAS. DE FOREST, formerly of De Forest and Manning, and James C. Campbell appeared at the box office of the Fourteenth Street Theatre April 13. Mr. Campbell presented his card to Doortender Thompson, who refused to recognize it. Mr. Campbell became abusive. Manager Ernest Hutchinson, representing Lydia Thompson, put in an appearance and tried to argue with them. They howled and yelled, became profane and abusive, and threatened Mr. Hutchinson with assault. Mr. Thompson went after a policeman, and, while he was gone, the two men assaulted Mr. Hutchinson, knocking him down with heavy canes, and kicking him in the head. By standers interfered, and a policeman took them to the Thirtieth Street station house, where Capt. Reilly heard their story, and held them. On 14, Mr. Hutchinson's physician presented a certificate to Justice Grady, to the effect that he might not recover. His nose was broken, and there was a severe contusion at the base of the skull, besides which congestion of the brain is feared. His condition is very bad. De Forest and Campbell were held in $3,000 each, to await the result of Mr. Hutchinson's injuries. Manager Hutchinson suffered a relapse and was very low indeed night of 17. Aside from the present effects of the attack made on him, the ultimate results will make Mr. Hutchinson an awful sight, as his nose has virtually been beaten off, and the other scars will mar a countenance that was handsome before the assault. The inflammation subsided somewhat, and unless blood poisoning sets in the manager ought to be out in the street in two or three weeks. The nervous reaction added to the concussion of the brain has made him delirious. De Forest asked to have Hutchinson examined by a police surgeon. His request was denied. De Forest's examination was set down for 19, as Dr. Fleming certified to the Court that Hutchinson's condition was such as to preclude all possibility of his appearance at court at present. Dr. Fleming regards the outcome as uncertain.

FREDERICK PAULDING, in "The Struggle of Life," opened to a big house at the Windsor Theatre April 18. The piece was well received, and Mr. Paulding was given several curtain calls. Next week, Edwin F. Thorne in "The Golden Ladder."

JACOBS' THEATRE.—"McCarthy's Mishaps" drew two large audiences April 18, when it began a week's engagement at this house. At both performances liberal applause was given. Next week, "Hands Across the Sea."

LULU GLASSER had another opportunity on Saturday night, April 16, of emphasizing the good impression she made some time ago in the role of Angeline in "The Lion Tamer" at the Broadway Theatre, when she essayed the part at short notice through the illness of Miss Jansen. Miss Jansen was again suffering from indisposition. Miss Glasser's efforts met with most pronounced favor on the part of the audience. Francis Wilson seems to have found a young actress and singer of exceptional natural ability in Miss Glasser. She has youth, beauty, a good voice and genuine comedy talent. Miss Glasser is a Pittsburg girl.

MINER'S BOWERY THEATRE.—John D. Hopkins' solid aggregation of specialty talent opened to packed houses at the matinee and evening performances Easter Monday, April 18. The name of the Howard Atheneum Co has become even more potent since it has been used by its present manager, and the season has been one of gratifying success. The Evans, Figora, Falke and Lemons, Melville and Stetson, the Allisons and the Braatz Brothers are all favorites. A. O. Duncan amuses every one by his ventriloquial imitations. Dutch Daly, who lately closed with "U and I," made his usual hit. Edna Bertoldi, the serpentine little contortionist, has introduced many new features in her remarkable act since her last appearance in New York. Kara bewilders all who see him by the rapidity of his hands and his accuracy of touch. The company is to close next week and the following weeks will see many of the performers on their way to Europe. Next week, The Night Owls.

LONDON THEATRE.—Manager John A. Flynn contemplated the two packed houses on Monday, April 18, drawn by his attraction, the London Gaiety Girls, with an expansive smile. The company is composed of very good burlesque and variety talent, giving a performance well calculated to please all. The opening sketch, "The Artist and the Model," introduced Lida Gardner, May Smilox, Louise Llewellyn, Jessie May, Billy Arnold, Dan McAvoy and John Thompson. Then followed this olio: Mabel Hart, serio comic; Guff Williams, in a banjo act; Joe La Flower, in a good pyramid act; Lida Gardner, character changes; La Salle and Vedder, agile skirt and Spanish dancers; Leona Lewis, the pleasing little soubrette, with songs; McAvoy and May, in a funny sketch; the Mendoza Sisters, in their trapeze act, and Walter P. Keen (late of Marion and Keen) in character songs. The burlesque, "The Stolen Princess," by the entire company, with fine scenery and costumes, concluded the jollification. Mr. Flynn has three weeks booked ahead, and will undoubtedly quit a winner. Next week, the Rentz Santley Co.

PEOPLE'S THEATRE.—Evans and Hoey, as I. McCorker and Old Hoss, indulge in their revels at this popular East Side house this week. The large audience on Monday night, April 18, greeted them with effusion, and their every move, as well as the talent of the entire company, met with continuous laughter and applause. Innocent Kidd, too, came in for her share, and the little lady sang and danced like a fairy. Needless to say, all this happened in "A Parlor Match." The materialization of the World's Fair characters is well conceived. The charming Sisters Levey pleased the eye and ear. Lillian Elms, in several cute songs, and the "Parlor Match" Quartet were heartily encored. Next week, "Kidnapped."

NIBLO'S GARDEN.—The Henry Burlesque Co., in conjunction with Wm. Muldoon's Athletes, opened their second week to splendid business April 18. At the conclusion of the entertainment by the variety and burlesque people, the brawn, muscle and science of the ring held the audience by wrestling and boxing, to the drop of the curtain.

PETER S. CLARK, advertising agent for Miner's Bowery Theatre, was presented with a handsome diamond-studded gold watch April 17, by his brother, Wm. S. Clark, advertising agent for the People's Theatre.

"CHILD OF FORTUNE," a three act comic opera, by Carl Millocker, written by Hugo Wittmann and Julius Bauer, was sung for the first time in America April 18, at the Casino, before a crowded house. It immediately scored, and is likely to have a long run. This work, called "Das Sonnstagskind" in its original form, has been sung very successfully at Berlin and Vienna. The English translation of the libretto is by Mrs. Helen F. Trebar, and is fairly clever. The music is in Herr Millocker's best vein, gay, graceful and original. The work is an addition to the list of modern-costume operas, and hence its success is all the more significant. In the cast, which follows, the best work was contributed by Lilly Post (specially engaged), Annie Meyers, Charles Bassett and Jeff. De Angelis. Lady Sylvia Eckhill, Lilly Post; Betty Fornell, Annie Meyers; Mis ress Tras, Jennie Reifferth; Bopp, Clara Coudray; Miss Annie, Mabel Potter; Page, Nina Farrington; Sir Edgar, Chas. Bassett; Sir Lothair, Wm. Pruette; Sir Hannibal, Henry Leoni; Ralph Butterfield, Harry Macdonough; Sheriff Plunkett, George Mackenzie; Superintendent Warren, Maurice Abby; Mr. Pudding, Wm. Conrad; The Count, A. W. Maflin; Bob, James Furey; Tristan Florival, Jeff. De Angelis. The opera was staged by Heinrich Conreid. Henry E. Hoyt painted the scenery, which is not specially elaborate, and Mr. Kerker led an excellent orchestra.

AT HARRIGAN'S THEATRE on Easter Monday night a crowded house saw with palpable delight a spirited revival of "Reilly and the 400." John Wild, Jos. Sparks, John Decker, Mrs. Yeamans, Ada Lewis, Emma Pollock, Jas. McCullough, J. B. Radcliffe, Chas. Coffey and Mr. Harrigan reappeared in their old roles, and all were enthusiastically greeted. The revival bids fair to carry the season to a very prosperous close.

PARK THEATRE.—A string of domestic incidents which revolve around the pleasing personality of Chas. T. Ellis, entitled "Count Caspar," was presented for the first time on any stage at this house April 18. The house was quite large in numbers, the applause was frequent, and flowers for the favorites were in abundance. No especial preparations in the way of scenic effect had been made, nor were any necessary, as the resources of the house proved ample in every way. The new piece has been in the possession of Mr. Ellis for some time, and the author, Herbert Hall Winslow, has adhered closely to his evident intention to write a purely domestic play. There are no startling effects or climaxes, and the star sings and dances his way through the scenes and incidents which ensue with at all times the full favor of the audience. It must be conceded that the major portion of Mr. Ellis' success in this and other plays in which he has appeared is due almost entirely to a pleasing personality. His singing and speaking voices are of extremely light calibre, or they at least so appear in the manner in which they are handled by Mr. Ellis. His songs in this piece, some of which are new, are selected with good taste, and, though rendered in a taking manner, yet there is always a desire on the listener's part that the singer would use more force and expression in their rendition. The slight plot of the play hinges upon the love of a wealthy man's daughter for Caspar, whom we see in act one as a village vagabond. There is a wind sort of villain, who is in love with the same young lady, and who accuses Caspar of the theft of a valuable diamond pin belonging to the girl's mother. This bad man is the cousin of the girl's mother, and, for some unexplained reason, has the power to demand money or jewels from her at will. The diamonds are stolen and pawned by the villain, the accusation against Caspar is made and the pawn ticket is rescued by Caspar in act three, just as it has been cast into the fire by the guilty cousin. This is all there is in the way of plot to the play. The bright and engaging love story between the young girl and Caspar, which begins in act one and permeates through the entire three acts, saves the play from becoming at times slow and tiresome. All ends happily at the close, Caspar becomes, by the death of a relative, Count Caspar, and secures his sweetheart. Of course, there are bright children who materially help to carry many of the scenes, especially when they are sung to by the star. Of the songs, all were encored, that entitled "The Sweetest Rose of All," and "Up and Down," gaining the most applause. Mr. Ellis made one change of costume, in act three appearing as a German housemaid and doing his best work in a song and wooden shoe dance. Of the company the children, Mattie Grier and Florrie O'Brien, are bright little tots; Chas. W. Swain and Clara Moore (Mrs. C. T. Ellis), as Irish servants, were amusing; James Vincent, as Gen. Comstock, was easily the best of the male support, and Marion Ballou did the best of the female characters. The sudden death of a brother to Mr. Ellis caused him to labor under a severe strain on Monday night. The engagement is for two weeks. Following is the full cast: Casper, Chas. T. Ellis; General Comstock, James Vincent; Terry McFadden, Chas. W. Swain; Walter Mason, J. K. Hutchinson; Lord Cecil Tufthunter, Vivian Osborne; Rose Comstock, Marion Ballou; Nora O. Hoolihan, Clara Moore; Mrs. Comstock, Raynore Briscoe; Tot, Florrie O'Brien; Little Herman, Mattie Grier. Mr. Ellis' tour is under the management of L. C. Behman, of Hyde & Behman, who controlled the star last season also. There is no truth in the report that W. M. Dunlevy is to manage Mr. Ellis. The Park, by the way, is in the market for next season. Hyde & Behman the owners, advertise it for rent in THE CLIPPER this week. Mr. Dunlevy's retirement is announced as due to his ill health.

BIJOU THEATRE.—Fanny Rice opened a month's engagement at the Bijou, April 18, presenting "A Jolly Surprise" for the first time in a downtown theatre, and also making her first Broadway appearance since she left the Casino. Miss Rice, who was in her gayest mood, was enthusiastically welcomed by a large audience. Handsome floral tributes were awarded to her, and her personal success was in the nature almost of a triumph. The play is as light as thistledown, but it is clean, clever and continuously amusing. We have already given a sketch of its main incidents, and many of our correspondents have awarded it praise as a highly diverting and skilfully constructed vehicle for the display of the little star's dancing and singing abilities. The Bijou's audience applauded the comic hits frequently and fervently, and thus the metropolitan verdict was entirely in favor of "A Jolly Surprise." Of the support, the newest and best feature was the appearance in a droll character roll of John W. Ransone, whose invariably clever comedy work was quite boisterously greeted. He has made a success of no little value in this piece, and he will be congratulated by both his old and his new admirers. Charles H. Bradshaw was original and earnest, as he always is, and good acting was also supplied by Lawler and Thornton, Eva Turner, Mrs. Sol Smith and others in a generally commendable cast. Miss Rice's changes of costume were quite effective. The company is under the control and management of Dr. G. W. Purdy, with Harry St. Ormond as business manager, A. C. Pell as leader, and Edwin F. Browne as stage manager.

FOURTEENTH STREET THEATRE.—Annie Pixley, an American comedy favorite for ever so long, made her reappearance in opera on Monday night, April 18, when "Polly Middles," styled a "fantastic operetta," from the pen of Archibald Clavering Gunter, had its first hearing on any stage. A good sized, yet over friendly, audience did their best to make Miss Pixley's entry into the lyric field triumphant. But, in all candor, it must be said that she fell somewhat short of the mark. While she did not utterly fail, for she is too experienced and intelligent an actress for that, neither did she fully attain success. To be frank, the results were only mediocre. This is said in all kindness, too, for it should be remembered that Miss Pixley's environments were all that wealth and good judgment could dictate. True, and it may as well be explained first as last, that the vehicle chosen was rather shaky, yet with sufficiently potent propelling powers it might have safely and readily reached the goal of victory. As it is, the half way house of dubious favor is the present stopping place of Miss Pixley in "Polly Middles." The detailed plot of Mr. Gunter's work is deferred until later. It is only necessary, therefore, to state that it deals with the familiar theme of modern Ham transplanted into ancient times. Through an elixir furnished by a peripatetic German savant, nineteenth century tourists, amid Pompeiian surroundings, are made to walk and talk as Romans of the first era, and an antidote from the same source as easily reverses things. This is all very whimsical, and should furnish excellent ground work for an interesting and amusing entertainment. Yet, in "Polly Middles" there is vast room for improvement, particularly from the view of absurdity. Opportunities for sparkling wit, advantages for humorous byplay, and occasions for jollity, refined and diverting, are totally lost. There are a few bright and original gems of dialogue, of course, but their refulgence is sadly dimmed by the dullness of their setting. The score, by W. W. Lowitz, possessed defects like unto the libretto's. Some of the topical and sentimental numbers were rich in color, and the choruses were now and then strikingly effective, yet, taken all in all, the framing was bad and ruefully reminiscent. In its pictorial adjuncts, nothing but the highest words of praise can be spoken of "Polly Middles." The four sets of scenery, from the master brush of Henry E. Hoyt, were marvels in splendor and appropriateness, a prospective view of Pompeii being wonderfully fine. The stage mechanism left nothing to be desired, and the costumes were sumptuous and quite accurate. Aside from Miss Pixley, whose obesity had a deal to do with her giving an incorrect portrayal of the titular character (a supposedly sprightly English soubrette), the cast was generally good, though a little uneven. George C. Boniface Jr. disappointed his friends as a first class fun maker. He labored hard and earnestly, but the outcome was not always agreeable. The burden of the production of pleasure was borne by that boisterous comedian, Alfred C. Wheelan, who gained his object more through grotesque facial work and knockabout methods than by any unadulterated cleverness. In the character line, Charles Allison and Yolande Wallace easily divided first honors. The former, in the role of an old Dutch chemist, was always natural and highly commendable. Miss Wallace, as a young English woman, with marrying propensities, did very creditably, yet she seems to overlook the fact that the strut of the forum and the perambulation in these days are quite different. Her singularly stagey stride marred her otherwise capital work, but this is a fault easily remedied. Others well placed in the cast were Charles J. Campbell, W. P. Guiberson and Lucy Coote. "Polly Middles" was staged under the personal direction of Richard Barker, and, to his credit be it said, the groupings and general movements of the players were excellent. A word, by the way, about the chorus. Under colored lights it was passable, but, barring a few fairly good lookers, it was the worst seen on the contemporary stage in many a day. The complete casts: Polly Middles, Annie Pixley; Marc Antony Dobbs, George C. Boniface Jr.; The Earl of Poverty-Towers, Wm. P. Guiberson; The Hon. Cecil Howard, V. C., Chas. J. Campbell; Herr Max Von Settenbach, Chas. Allison; Hamlet Mayolio Brown, Alfred C. Wheelan; Giuseppe, J. B. Simpson; Tuscanni, G. Krimer; Lombardi, F. W. Smiley; Bimbini, J. A. Thompson; Lady Cornelia Poverty Towers, Yolande Wallace; Amy Battledown, Lucy Coote; Mrs. Belinda Battledown, Rosa Cooke, Paula, Annie Pixley; Marcus Antonius Dobonius, Geo. C. Boniface Jr.; M. Crasas Pansa, William P. Guiberson; L. Cecillus Dudonius, Charles J. Campbell; Maximus Sentuoris, Charles Allison; Horatius Brumpus, Alfred C. Wheelan; Sestio, J. B. Simpson; Cornelia, Yolande Wallace; Chloris, Rosa Cooke; Lesbia, Lucy Coote. The executive staff: Nat. Roth, manager; Sig. A. Tomasi, musical director; T. Kinnaird, stage manager. "Polly Middles" is expected to have a Summer's run, when it has properly been whipped into shape.

KOSTER & BIAL'S.—The new policy that has been adopted by the management is evidently being endorsed by the better element among amusement seekers, and the attendance is constantly increasing. The programme this week is an excellent one. It comprises Harry Kennedy, the well known ventriloquist; Cain and Serene, burlesque trapezists; Geyer and Goodwin, unique gymnasts, and the Sinnons, Carmencita in a new Spanish dance, called "La Jota," the most difficult number in her repertory, has created renewed interest in the lovely dancer, who is still the strongest drawing card that this resort has ever known. The new finale, "The Three Black Cloaks," lends new charms to the bright travesty on "Fra Diavolo," which is one of the very prominent features of the programme.

HUBER'S PALACE MUSEUM.—The tide of business flows strong and full at this popular establishment. Mahomitt, the talking horse, is the star curio hall attraction for the week of April 16. The female bicycle contest, between a quintet of young and sturdy limbed women, continues a good drawing card. Other features this week include Quebo, Cuffro, Minnie Warren, Capt. Decourcey, White Eagle Bill, Zulu Zanese, Herman, Levanion and Zanes, Maida, Anna Leak Thompson, Prof. Kruger, Chas. Ellsworth and inanimate curio almost without end. This array is certainly varied and interesting enough to please the most exacting amusement seekers. Yet there is an admirable addenda in the stage contingent, headed by Herbert Albini, the card king, and including Clara Belle, Louis Beauvais, Ed. Rogers, Sam Archer, Brooks and De Witt and others. Jo-Jo and Uncle are underlined bookings at an early day. Prof. Langdon, who has been the lecturer and director of amusements here for several seasons, has closed his engagement, and will open with the Wallace Circus at Peru, Ind., April 23. He will make the concert announcement, and will be the general orator for the show.

PROCTOR'S TWENTY-THIRD STREET THEATRE.—In "Across the Potomac," which received its first performance on any stage April 18, at this house, the authors, Aug. P. Tou and E. M. Affriend, have offered nothing absolutely new in motif nor brilliant in language. The boom of musketry, the suffocating odor of powder smoke and the heroic platitudes of the parlor soldier permeate nearly every scene of the new drama, and we have had them in almost every war drama since the Rebellion was ended. We find lovers, companions and friends separated in the good old familiar way after the firing on Fort Sumter, and much in the same fashion as we saw in "The Drummer Boy of Shiloh," "Shenandoah," "Held by the Enemy," etc. And, too, we see them all happily reunited when the South capitulates, just as it is expected they would be, and as they have always been since the hegira of war dramatists came upon us. In these days of stage realism it has become necessary to do a powerful lot of battling back of the footlights. "Across the Potomac" is extremely realistic in that respect at least, although the scene nowhere near approaches a similar one in "Shenandoah," where Gen. Sheridan's ride is so excitingly portrayed. But perhaps that may be, in a measure, explained by the crudity of the initial performance. The soldiers were too anxious to "play dead" on Monday night and they fell over each other in ludicrous heaps in their feverishness to be strewn among the corpses on the gory field. Briskness in the performance will undoubtedly be gained with repeated presentations, and perhaps there should be no especial fault pointed out, on that account, at this writing. The love theme in "Across the Potomac" is not handled by the authors in any other than the conventional fashion, and there are no climaxes offered that cannot be quickly discounted. Everybody foresaw that the Union hero, Col. Baker, would surely be reunited to his sweetheart, Edith Garland, a daughter of the South, and that, too, despite the fact that he stood with folded arms before a file of Confederate soldiers, awaiting the order to fire, which was to inflict upon him the death of a spy. Apparently the effort was intended to make the plot of "Across the Potomac" easily understood, and it stands out pre-eminent for its simplicity. By far the best situation in the piece is that in the final act, where Col. Baker, Madge Hanford (the female spy, who obtains plans of the Confederate fortifications for Gen. Grant) and Ebenezer Short (the sole funny man of the piece) are drawn up in line, awaiting the command for their execution as captured prisoners and spies. It was an unusually exciting scene. The play's pathos is confined to a death scene in an old mill in the third act, where Joe Wilson, brother of Madge, passes away. He had enlisted with Jack Harper, Madge's blackguard husband, in Col Baker's company, to escape arrest for burglarizing a bank and murdering the cashier, and on his death bed he confesses the truth. In those two instances the authors are to be unreservedly commended for capital work. The first performance was a clear lengthy one, and in one scene, the opening one in act five, the effect was spoiled by the stubbornly inoperative electric lights. A great deal of bad acting also militated against the first production. Only a change in the cast, however, can remedy the glaring defects in that respect. Then "Across the Potomac" will run along smoothly, and should round out as a pleasurable performance, even if a bit familiar. Robert Hilliard was very successful as Col. Baker, although he was hideous in an eye patch, the use of which was necessitated by an injury received at rehearsal night of 15. He was forceful and valorous enough to win a dozen Southern daughters. As Madge Hanford, Alice Fischer gave the finest performance of the evening. She was thoroughly artistic, and scored a hit. Mark Price made a capital Jack Hanford. Long association with villianous roles makes it easy for Mr. Price to score in such parts. Henrietta Lander was not equal to the requirements of the role of Edith Garland. She was distressingly stagey in the more powerful moments of the play, and in only one instance did she evince cleverness; that was when, disguised as a Sister of Charity, she visited the old mill to minister to the wants of the wounded. Add Weaver was an unctuous negro servant, and J. H. Bunny was quietly humorous as a country pumpkin, who makes a brave soldier. This is the cast: Capt. Ralph Baker, Robert Hilliard; Silas Baker, J. O. Le Brasse; Alfred Garland, E. A. Eberle; John Garland, Mason Mitchell; Capt. Noah Walker, William Harcourt; Charles Baker, Lorimer Stoddard; Gen. Heath, Charles Nevins; Ephram, Ad. Weaver; Jack Hanford, Mark Price; Joe Wilson, Malcolm Bradley; Ebenezer Short, J. H. Bunny, William Choate, John Hopkins; Capt. Tazewell, W. D. Conyers; Courier, Harry Hynes; Sergeant, W. A. Hoops; Sheriff, Walter Henderson; Edith Garland, Henrietta Lander; Mrs. Silas Baker, Helen Tracy; Mrs. Alfred Garland, Grace Gayler; Helen Garland, Charlotte Tittell; Katie Garland, Fanny Ward; Madge Hanford, Alice Fischer; Fanny Sinclair, Cecil Wallace; Sister Louise, May Winter. Arthur Hoops, in this cast, made his professional debut. He has been a Chicago amateur. The scenery, by Messrs. Young, Emens and Volz, was excellent, and Benson Sherwood's effects also deserve praise. George Loesch has written new incidental music for the piece. The production was under the supervision of Mr. Pitou, who has organized the company and counts upon a lengthy run at Proctor's. Messrs. Pitou and Alfriend were honored with a curtain call. The opening night house was very large and friendly.

TONY PASTOR'S THEATRE.—Merit percolates through every strata of the entertainment in vogue at this gilt edge vaudeville house. This week's bill is up to the usual high standard. The list includes Winstanley and West, musicians and dancers; Laura Bennett, vocalist; Josie Gregory, burlesquer; George E. Austin, high wire performer; Harry Kernell, Irish comedian; Adams, Casey and Howard, vocalists and instrumentalists (their first appearance here in three years); Lydia Yeamans-Titus, singer; Fred J. Titus, pianist; Capitola Forrest, dancer and high kicker; Imro Fox, conjurer; Nellie Maguire, character singer, and Kurtz, Mexican juggler, from the Orrin Bros.' Circus, City of Mexico, in some new and interesting conjuring feats. A large audience enjoyed this excellent programme thoroughly.

A LARGE AUDIENCE witnessed the production of "A Straight Tip" April 18, at the Grand Opera House. James T. Powers proved as droll as ever, and his efforts to amuse were ably seconded by John Sparks, Richard Gorman, Peter F. Daly, F. T. Ward, Albert Hart, John P. Curren, Howard Graham, Oscar Schoening, Emma Hanley, Jennie Satterlee, Della Stacy, Eloise Mortimer, Leona Ambrose, Rose Figman and Ole Folks. The Clipper Quartet introduced their specialties in the third act, eliciting much mirth and earning plenty of applause. "Money Mad" comes 25 and week.

Harlem.—At Hammerstein's Opera House, Joseph Haworth did a fair business last week. "The Lost Paradise" was put on April 18, to a good house. The Kendals next week.

COLUMBUS THEATRE.—"The Midnight Alarm" did well last week. "Money Mad" opened 18, to a good house. Lewis Morrison's "Faust" 25.

HARLEM THEATRE.—"Solon Shingle" and "The Golden Farmer" divide this week. "The Rag Pickers of New York" 25.

OLYMPIC THEATRE.—The Fay Foster Co. opened to a big audience 18. Next week, Manchester's French Folly Co. Manager Curtin will take his annual benefit May 30.

HARLEM MUSEUM.—This week: Curio hall—G. H. Schoof's collection of South American relics, Quartrelli, Chas. Howard, Little Dot, Romeo, Bringo, Olive, E. P. Wallace and M. P. Lyon's Punch and Judy. Stage—Billy and Ella Watson, John McGrath, Florence Wood and S. G. Beasley, Maud Myring, Van Osten and Clark, Frank Burke and Myrtle Edwards, John F. Fay and Geo. M. Devere.

NEW YORK STATE.

Brooklyn.—Although Lent did not apparently have so demoralizing an effect on theatricals as usual, local managers looked pleased at the arrival of Easter, and gleefully anticipate greatly improved patronage and a corresponding increase of depleted treasuries. A perusal of our Easter bills shows that offerings light and amusing in character are locally considered best suited to appease the sharpened appetites of patrons who have endured a theatrical fast.

PARK THEATRE.—Rosina Vokes, who, during the week, will present three changes of bill and nine different plays, opened April 18 to good attendance. Her first bill included "Percy Pendragon," "The Circus Rider" and "My Lord in Livery," all well rendered. Commendation was heartily bestowed. Margaret Mather closed a fairly good week 16. Next week, "The Ensign."

COLUMBIA THEATRE.—As the Kendals paid a visit to this city some weeks ago, their week's engagement, which commenced at this house 18, proves that they must be well satisfied with local appreciation of their efforts. The usual large house greeted their appearance in "A White Lie," and the warmth of reception and unstinted applause of the audience, were the acme of its favorable verdict, during the week. "The Ironmaster," "A Scrap of Paper," "Impulse" and "The Queen's Shilling" will be presented. E. S. Willard closed a fair week 16. Next week, "The Lost Paradise" and "Men and Women."

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—"Sport McAllister," in which Bobby Gaylor seems to have scored a success, was presented to a large house 18. Full of rollicking fun, it kept its audience in laughing mood from first to last. The star was well supported, Georgie Parker lending useful assistance in the fun making, and the Olympia Quartet keeping up their end of the musical element. Verona Jarbeau played to satisfactory results last week. Coming 25, "The Dazzler."

STAR THEATRE.—"Evangeline," which seems destined never to wear out, is Manager Holmes' Easter offering, and its first performance, 18, was witnessed by an audience of good size. "The Orphans of New York" did fairly last week. "The Midnight Alarm" 25.

HYDE & BEHMAN'S THEATRE.—A week of burlesque and specialty is the programme at this house, the Lilly Clay Burlesque Co. beginning a return visit 18. The opening houses gave promise of good results for the week. Tony Pastor walked off with the biscuit last week and played what must have been the most successful Brooklyn engagement in his career. Sam Jack's Creoles 25.

HUBER & GEBHARDT'S CASINO.—Full seats and a good stage performance is the chronic state of affairs here. This week's people: Stirk and Zeno, Sig. Oporto, Stewart, Kennette and Matthews, Rosermaud and Morton, Addie Dion, May Hornby and Minnie Schult.

AMPHION.—The first and probably the last Eastern District appearance of Sarah Bernhardt was made here 18. It was as short as it was brilliant, for she only condescended to play one engagement. She gave "La Tosca," and the house was of good proportions. Night of 19 began the engagement of "Mr. Potter of Texas." The indications are that "Mr. Potter" will do well. Fair business last week. Aronson's Casino Co. 25.

NOVELTY.—Edwin Arden opened 18 in "Night and Morning." The piece deals very largely with heroic deeds, with lots of excitement for the gallery gods. It ought to prove successful. The opening house was good. Coming: 27, "Ten Nights in a Bar Room."

MASSACHUSETTS.

Boston.—E. S. Willard, who made a favorable impression on Boston audiences about twelve months ago, returned to the Tremont April 18, and will remain with us some time. At his first appearance here he was comparatively unknown, but it required only a very short time to convince Boston audiences that he is an actor of unexceptionable merit, and his return will unquestionably be hailed with a warm welcome from his many admirers. He opens with "The Middleman." Sarah Bernhardt's season closed 16.

BOSTON MUSEUM.—Jerome K. Jerome's play, "The Councillor's Wife" was presented at Manager Field's nouse, 18, for the first time on any stage. The complete cast I sent you last week, but I may mention here that Chas. Barron and Geo. Wilson are assigned to parts which it is said they are especially adapted for. This comedy is owned for your city, I believe, by one of the Frohmans.

COLUMBIA THEATRE.—Harris & Atkinson promise their patrons a season of unbounded enjoyment in the production of "Gloriana," which had its first Boston performance 18 at the hands of Chas. Frohman's New York Co. In the company are Henry Miller, Mrs. Dion Boucicault, Netta Guion, Charles B. Welles, Agnes Robertson, John Gilbert, E. J. Henley, May Robson, Jos. Humphreys, Joseph Allen, Clara Bealby. "Gloriana" is preceded by "Frederic Lemaitre."

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.—Much talked about "Miss Helyett" made her bow to a Hollis audience 18. I need not rehearse the story of the play. With that your readers are familiar, and merely care to know that in the cast of comedians and singers are Mark Smith, M. A. Kennedy, Harry Harwood, J. W. Herbert, George Lyding, Gilbert Sarony, Kate Davis, Laura Clement, Adelaide Emerson and Louise Leslie Carter, as the Quakeress with a full chorus and enlarged orchestra. Chas. Frohman's stock closed their engagement in "The Lost Paradise" 16.

GLOBE THEATRE.—N. C. Goodwin Jr. and his "Nominee" jumped into the gap caused at the Globe last week by the default of W. A. Mestayer, and a very profitable jump it was, both for "Nat" and the house, for he did a rattling good business all the week, and pulled Manager Stetson out of a rather disagreeable predicament. Beginning 18 we have "Eight Bells."

BOSTON THEATRE.—Monday evening, 18, began the fourth and last week but one of "The Country Circus," which has been an unparalleled success at the Boston. In addition to his regular duties Business Manager Harry McGlenen has been busy arranging excursion parties.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—"Master and Man" closed 16 a fairly good week, the wind up of Lent tending in some measure to lessen the audiences, but, on the whole, Proctor & Mansfield have no cause for dissatisfaction at the patronage accorded their house, which has always maintained the reputation of presenting the best of attractions. The bill for the current week beginning 18, at a special Easter Monday matinee, is "Dangers of a Great City," introducing two stars new to Boston—Dore Davidson and Ramie Austin. Next week, "Dr. Bill."

BOWDOIN SQUARE THEATRE.—Donnelly and Girard come to Harris & Atkinson's new house for a week, opening 18 with "Natural Gas." "Boys and Girls" did a very good business last week. Next week, "Held by the Enemy."

PARK THEATRE.—Neil Burgess' "Circus" is having lots of business, and making lots of fun for crowded audiences.

HOWARD ATHENÆUM.—Tony Pastor and his company begin their annual Spring engagement of one week here 18, and it goes without saying that Manager Harris' house will be filled at every showing of the troupe. The only Tony has surrounded himself with a notable array of talent, including Maggie Cline, Webber and Fields, John and James Russell, the Dalys (Lizzie and Vinie), Monroe and Mack, Flexmore Sisters, Herr Crais, the Phantos, Mons. Virto, Major Newell and Prof. Thornbury, J. B. Mackie closed a good week 16. Next week, "A Hole in the Ground."

GAIETY AND BIJOU THEATRE.—Manager Keith's Easter Week offering is a fine one, bound to satisfy the most critical of his patrons. As a matter of fact, he always does that, for the simple reason that his personal supervision is given to the bookings at the theatre, and only the best in the vaudeville and specialty line are engaged by him. On the roster for the week beginning 18 are Le Clair and Leslie, C. W. Williams, Antonio Von Gofre, Mlle. Alberta, Silver Bell Quartet, Morris Cronin, Dare Brothers, the Healys, Baby Lou, Binns, Burns and Chattanooga, Smith and Campbell, Hines and Colby, Collins and Welch Patrick Murphy, Harris and Walters, Lavender and Tomson, Wylie and Sanford, and Judson and Byrne.

GRAND MUSEUM.—"The Mariner's Compass" 18 produced this week by Manager Lothrop, who has cast it to the strength of his stock, with Katherine Rober and Max Freeman in the leads. It may be of interest to remind CLIPPER readers that it was on this excellent drama that Jas. A. Herne founded his "Hearts of Oak," his most successful production. "The Mariner's Compass" is staged with new scenery and effects. In the variety supplement are Ripley and Risley, Lizzie Anderson, Yankee Moore, Nat Franklin, Tony Roberts, Irvin T. Bush, John McVicker and the stock.

PALACE THEATRE.—Col. J. H. Haverly's big troupe of "Magnificants" are booked for a week at the Palace and no doubt will draw great business. The star is the transformation dancer Bertoto, and with her are the following: The Alexandroffs, Barra Troupe, the three Droles, Celeste, Mons. Victor, James Martin, Sisters Worden, Whimsical Walton, and Capt. Hilton. The American performers are Ross and Fenton, William Jerome, Blocksom and Burns, the Larmatines, Harry Clarke, Billy Carter, Leonard and Moran, Bryant and Mack, Gles' Wonders, Hayden Sisters and Griffin and Mason.

AUSTIN & STONE'S MUSEUM.—Tennedy, the strong man, is the star in the spacious lecture hall here. Also in the hall are the Pugol Bros., and their wrestling bears; Logrenia, magician and illusionist; Prof. Chas. Smith, and his educated goat; Cordano, "one band man," and Beatrix and her monster pythons. The stage: Gus Mills, Leopold and Bunnell, Guichard Sisters, Three Continentals, Eugene Ward, Eddie Shayne, Clark and Angeline, Bolton Bros., Ben. G. Harvey, Cohan Family, Barry and Bannon, and Dean and Harrison.

THE COLISEUM.—Arrangements are so far advanced as to warrant me in announcing that there will be a genuine circus opened here May 9, for the entire season, in the very heart of the North End. Manager M. R. Sheedy is the proprietor of this new venture, and he has decided to call his resort the Coliseum. The entrance will be from Nos. 187-9 Hanover Street, in the rear of which he has secured a lot of land 80x80ft., which will be covered by a waterproof canvas, and will contain seats for about 1,000 persons. In the centre there will be a circus ring, 20x35ft. Manager Sheedy intends to present a first class performance, including acts by noted athletes, aerial artists, gymnasts and other circus features. Two shows will be given daily, and prices will range from ten to fifty cents. The location is an excellent one for an enterprise of this kind, and, as it is something new, the results of the experiment will be awaited with much interest.

WORLD'S THEATRE.—An excellent bill is offered this week. Among the features are the English Gaiety Girls, Connors and Mason, Frank Riley, Lottie Lodson, Joe Madden, Zoe (on the flying rings), Zoyarro, Moya, Louise De Lulsi, Lavine Sisters and Joe Hall.

GENERAL GOSSIP.—Manager Eugene Tompkins was at Paris last week, seeking novelties for "The Black Crook," which he will revive next season.....E. F. Albee, general manager of B. F. Keith's amusement houses—the Bijou at Philadelphia, the Gaiety Opera House at Providence, R. I., and the Gaiety and Bijou Theatre, this city—was here last week, and engaged Cyrene for a season at the Philadelphia Bijou. She will make a hit, sure .....Managers Stone & Shaw will not close Austin & Stone's Museum this Summer, the alterations they intend in the interior of the house being made between Saturday nights and Monday mornings until completed. Peter Seis, a well known attache of the Museum, sailed last Thursday for Italy, where he will enjoy a three months' pleasure trip .....Max Freeman, leading man of Lothrop's Stock, will benefit Friday afternoon and evening of this week, at the Grand Museum .... Lillian Durell, soprano, will make her Boston debut at the Bowdoin Square Theatre May 23 in "Mignon."..... Jennie O'Neil Potter will present "Woman's Eight Ages," at the Hollis, afternoon of 23 ... Last week, Manager B. F. Keith, of the Gaiety and Bijou, received from Lieut. Brainard, of the Greely Arctic expedition, 1881-84, and now in charge of the United States troops at Fort Stanton, N. M., a copy of the last edition of The Arctic Moon, published at Fort Conger, Grinnell Land, N. lat. 81 deg. 44 min., W. lon. 64 deg. 45 min., Jan. 1, 1882, by the light of an oil lamp, and printed with a pen in the midst of the 137 days of perpetual darkness and the extreme cold of that region. The copy is fairly well preserved, showing signs of what it went through in the succeeding two years, and during the terrible privations and sufferings of the small remnant of the party that were finally rescued more dead than alive on June 23, 1884. Lieut. Brainard enjoys the honorable distinction of having been farther, north than any man living..... Marie Carlyle, for the Actors' Fund fair, has been visiting in this city, and has secured donations aggregating over $1,000 in cash, besides many valuable goods for sale at the fair. Manager B. F. Keith subscribed $200. He had previously subscribed a like amount through another canvaser.

QUERIES ANSWERED.

No Replies by Mail or Telegraph.

ADDRESSES OR WHEREABOUTS NOT GIVEN. ALL IN QUEST OF SUCH SHOULD WRITE TO THOSE WHOM THEY SEEK, IN CARE OF THE CLIPPER POST OFFICE. ALL LETTERS WILL BE ADVERTISED ONE WEEK GRATIS. IF THE ROUTE OF ANY THEATRICAL COMPANY IS SOUGHT, REFER TO OUR LIST OF ROUTES ON ANOTHER PAGE. WE CANNOT SEND ROUTES BY MAIL OR TELEGRAPH.

Theatrical.

MRS. M. C., Philadelphia.—1. See the notice at the head of this column. 2. We have made a special paragraph in another column, calling attention to your case.

"DRAMATIC," Newark.—1. That play has never been published and sold. 2. Write to Elisabeth Marbury, No. 31 West Twenty-fourth Street, this city.

ADA LE P., Cincinnati.—There is no accurate guide of that sort in existence. THE CLIPPER'S theatrical pages supply the best information.

HATHAWAY.—Many seasons ago there was a troupe of that name, managed by M. B. Leavitt. It is not now in existence.

B. R. G.—1. See the notice at the head of this column. 2. It will be advertised in our letter list.

FLORA G.—See the notice at the head of this column.

C. J., Gloversville.—You will have to write to Manager J. C. Stewart Jr., in care of THE CLIPPER.

L. R. C.—We do not care to recommend any society in particular.

H. C. W.—We do not keep a record of understudies. Call at the theatre in question, and ask the manager.

W., Baltimore.—1. Sam T. Jack. 2. Send for it by mail, regularly.

J. E. O'B.—She is alive, to the best of our knowledge and belief, as we write these lines, April 18.

C. P. S., Honesdale.—We know nothing about them, and we cannot undertake to vouch for the responsibility of any troupe. That is a little beyond the province of a newspaper.

N. D. W., Tacoma.—1. We heard only that they had escaped shipwreck, and were again traveling in the interior. 2. See the notice at the head of this column.

C. F. J., Chicago.—Carefully read the notice at the head of this column.

R. H. F., Saco.—1. We do not know. Write to Mr. Golden and ask him. 2. See the notice at the head of this column.

J. W. M., Providence.—You purchased—innocently, though—a pirated version of that play, and you cannot legally produce it. You had better confer with the authoress, whom you can address in care of THE CLIPPER.

W. R. H., Little Falls.—He appeared at Tony Pastor's Theatre, in his specialty, during the season of 1875-6, playing a long engagement. The previous season, however, he had acted for a short time as general utility at Niblo's Garden.

N. C. B., Attleboro.—1. Now is the right time. 2. From $10 to $25 a week. 3. Apply at the various agents' offices, and advertise in THE CLIPPER.

PROF. W. A. H.—See the notice at the head of this column.

T. E. L., Orangeburg.—Advertise in THE CLIPPER and see answer above to "N. C. B., Attleboro."

GOLDEN EAGLE."—Gus Phillips.

"ANXIOUS."—We cannot set a definite date for its publication. It must await its proper turn.

J. H. H.—Charles H. Hoyt was born July 26, 1860.

MISS S. C. E., Hoboken.—1. We do not reveal or discuss private affairs of professionals. 2. See the notice at the head of this column. Our city theatrical news will inform you a week ahead, if they are to play here at all.

C. T. A., Ottawa.—It was published in THE CLIPPER of Feb. 14 1891. Your guess was a year out of the way.

W. McD.—He was taken sick on the night of Dec. 24, 1891.

"BOSTONIA."—The marriage has not yet been annulled, so far as we know. Our theatrical news columns will acquaint you with the result of the proceedings in due time.

JOSH, Boston.—1. The salary would not be large to start with, say, from $20 a week upwards, according to your ability. 2. We do not make cuts. In advertisements they are charged for according to the space they occupy. 3. Good eccentric comedians are always in demand. 4. We fear your chances are slim.

A. W. C., West Superior.—1. There is no charge for information imparted through this column. 2. See the notice at the head of the column.

CONSTANT READER, Philadelphia.—We earnestly counsel you to continue at your present vocation. The art you seek to acquire is difficult, and even masters of it are not very well paid.

F. R., Stamford.—See the notice at the head of this column.

N. H.—1. He was not. 2. They have a special stage entrance in nearly all cases.

G. W. H.—See the notice at the head of this column.

J. V. A., Omaha.—From $30 a week upwards, according to a variety of circumstances.

"OLD TIMER," Boston.—Johnny Pell died Jan. 24, 1866, at Boston, Mass.

J. S.—It would be worth from $60 to $200 and upwards a week, according to the success it may meet with. There is no regular scale of wages for acts of that description.

"TUD PUDDLES," Des Moines.—1, "Said Pasha" was originally sung June 18, 1888, at San Francisco, Cal. 2. "The Sea King," May 26, 1890, at Philadelphia, Pa.

BET, Northampton.—They are two numerous and varied to be enumerated in this column. With a show of the size named, there is a "boss" with several assistants.

CONSTANT READER, Manrock.—Write to him in care of the Barnum & Bailey Circus, as per route list in another column. He will probably give you all details, if he thinks your query pertinent.

Cards.

J. C., Brenham.—No player had a right to shuffle or look over the cards at that stage of the game.

F. A. K., Philadelphia.—Counted as straight flushes, the king-nine hand was the highest, but counted as simple flushes the ace hand took precedence.

WILLIAMS, Buffalo.—It calls for ten, no special agreement to the contrary being in force.

D. C. K., Reading.—1. He is out on the turned jack. 2. There could not be but one jack of any regular suit. Each knave scores when turned.

G. H. U.—In "railroad" euchre you can do most anything in and out of reason. At the regular game there is no such thing as "calling for partner's best." A player, assuming the responsibility of the trump, goes it alone without any aid from his partner, and his two opponents play against him. If he makes all the tricks he scores four points; if he does not make them, yet gets enough to save himself, he scores one. If his opponents secure three tricks or more, they score two for the euchre. There you are, in a nutshell.

G. D. H., Albany.—B wins. Both players having two to go, low and jack count out before high and game. The points score consecutively.

W. H. H., Louisville.—The hand containing the ace was the highest. A wins.

J. L. W., Titusville.—B wins. His high and low put him out before A's score for game could be counted.

F. J. L., Philadelphia.—A king-nine straight flush is higher than an ace-five straight flush. The ace in the latter hand ranks as one or low.

H. D. H., Scranton.—You are entitled to a sequence of four for the last card, they having been played as follows: 7, 8, 9 and 6. No answers by mail.

W. R. P., Piedmont.—B has no run for the last card in 10, 5, 5, 3, 4 and 3.

J. S. G., Cincinnati.—His hand is not dead. He can have one of the surplus cards withdrawn.

I. B. S., Thorold.—A must turn the "widow," the correct name for the "bitch," by the way. The other players are entitled to a draw.

J. F. S., Owego.—It must be turned. Both can have a whack at it under the circumstances. The odds are even, so what's the difference.

A B C, Chicago.—You win both bets.

Baseball, Cricket, Etc.

B. V., Brattleboro.—The official figures of the National League and the American Association for 1891 credit Hamilton of the Philadelphia Club with 115 stolen bases in 133 championship games, and Brown of the Boston Club with 110 stolen bases in 130 championship games.

R. L. M., Brooklyn.—The Eastern Association last season included the Albany, Buffalo, Lebanon, New Haven, Providence, Rochester, Syracuse and Troy Clubs.

A. E. S., Philadelphia.—The Staten Island Club won the championship of the Metropolitan District Cricket League last season.

C. A.—If the batsman is hit by the pitcher on the hands or forearm it is a dead ball, and the batsman is not entitled to first base.

Billiards, Pool, Etc.

P. J. G., Portsmouth.—The game ended when C had made eight balls and A four balls. All games of pool end when it is impossible for the low man to beat or tie any other player, and B is "away off" in the present instance.

G. A., Springfield.—The rules of rotation pool can be procured of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., this city.

J. H. F., Pittsburg.—A was right in declaring the game ended when the score stood as you describe it. C loses the play-off game.

W. J. K., Syracuse.—It is difficult, always, to decide an argument or contested point unless there are rules to govern the same, and we invariably decline to do so.

Ring.

J. J. H., Boston.—You can obtain a book from Nelse Innes, of The Boston Herald, which contains a sketch of John L. Sullivan, giving all his fights and glove contests, including that with Charles Mitchell in France. The only fight in which he has since engaged was that with Jake Kilrain.

A. A. B., Chicago.—John L. Sullivan was never knocked down in any public ring fight save when Charles Mitchell floored him at Madison Square Garden.

R. R.—Thomas Hyer and Yankee Sullivan fought on Feb. 7, 1849, at Rock Point, Kent Co., Md. A history of the battle, with the rounds in detail, appears in THE CLIPPER ANNUAL for 1892; price, twenty-five cents.

P. J. S., Tiffin.—Jack Dempsey's heaviest weight in the ring was 151lb, when he fought George La Blanche.

L. H., Rochester.—You will have to write to him direct for that information, and it is not likely that he could give it to you, either, except approximately.

F. A. W., Syracuse.—We have no record of the party named, either as a boxer or runner.

O. F. G., Blackstone.—The fight having been declared a draw, by the rules of the P. R. all bets on the result are also drawn.

D. B. E., Shamokin.—John L. Sullivan is stated to have been knocked down by the late Jack Hogan during a friendly setto at an exhibition given at Providence, R. I., previous to Sullivan having become generally known. We have no personal knowledge of the occurrence, however.

J. M. G., Telluride.—The agreement between Paddy Slavin and Peter Jackson is to fight to a finish before the National Sporting Club, in London, Eng.

Athletic.

SUBSCRIBER, Perry.—The rule of the Amateur Athletic Union bearing on the matter reads as follows: "The competitor shall stand in a circle 7ft. in diameter, on 2ft. of the circumference of which shall be placed a board 4in. high, at which the competitor must stand when the shot leaves his hand. A fair put shall be one where no part of the person of the competitor shall touch in front of the circle or on the board in making the attempt." The competitor can move as he pleases so long as he does not violate the rule here given.

A. M. H., Elizabeth.—We have searched our files for the past ten years, but fail to find any account of such a match. Tom Cannon and Carl Abs met in Germany several times last year.

P. J. G., Portsmouth.—1. No member of the team would afterwards be eligible to compete in an amateur athletic event. 2. See billiard answers.

W. D., Calgary.—The standing high jump of 5ft. 8¼in to which you refer was accomplished by T. F. Kearney, not by G. W. Hamilton. It is the best in that style of which we have any authentic record. Joe Darby, the English professional, is alleged to have cleared a height of 6f., jumping with weights and with feet tied together, at Bloxwich, Eng., July 20, 1891, but we are without proof that the performance was properly accomplished. There is no record of such a performance by him at Dublin, Ire.

READERS, Roseville.—William Perkins walked eight miles in 59m. 5s. at London, Eng., Sept. 20, 1875.

E. C. K., Brooklyn.—There is no such record.

Dice, Dominoes, Etc.

S. J. R., Jersey City.—The prize belongs to the holder of the 44 ticket. If your friend holds it, it is his. You should have rectified any error previous to the raffle.

W. McL., Brooklyn.—A loses, according to your statement.

MAX.—The sixes are high.

Turf.

CONSTANT READER, West Rutland.—Sunol's fastest trotting time for one mile is 2:08¼. Maud S.'s, 2:08¾. The time was made in trials against the record, the former trotting on a kite shaped track and Maud S. on an oval track. Each was accompanied by a running horse.

F. C., Brooklyn.—That may have been the date of the close of the Winter meeting, but we are not sure. It may have been April 2. Better write to Samuel Whitehead, secretary, 113 Hudson Street, Hoboken, N. J.

Aquatic.

N. W.—The steam yacht Vamoose was built for Mr. Hearst last year, and her fastest time, made in a trial off Milton Point, on the Sound, straightaway, Oct. 10, was 2m. 30s., made in two separate trials.

Miscellaneous.

BICYCLE, Rayersford.—F. P. Prial, The Wheel, N. Y. City; Samuel Miles, The Referee, Chicago, Ill.

SUBSCRIBER, Washington.—No record for ten hours. You will find record for work done in 2h. 30m. on page 106 of THE CLIPPER ANNUAL for 1892.

A. B., Blue Earth City.—The fastest time in which one mile has been ridden on a safety bicycle is 2m 15s., by W. Windle, in America. The best record for England is 2m. 16s., by F. J. Osmond.

A. H.—Call upon or write to F. P. Prial, the referee of the event, for the information. See answer to "Bicycle."

J. M. P., Rome.—Budde & Westermann, No. 50 Vesey Street, New York City.

F. K., Pittsburg.—Dec. 31, 1899.

WARNER.—The time varies. Consult an attorney at law.

READER, Washington.—It depends upon what it is you term a "sure thing." Be more explicit.

R. B. MCE., Medway.—We know nothing of that concern, and, therefore, cannot decide any wagers about its inner workings.

I. N., Omaha.—"Catch" statements don't go. The dollar should be refunded, as no transaction is possible under the circumstances.

C. E. W., Albany.—It is a drawn bet, there being no such action on the wager as both bettors contemplated. A contest was necessary in order to make the bet valid.

PHILADELPHIA AMATEUR.—We have had no complaints against the house.

D. B., Niantic.—Consult a dermatologist or some reputable physician.

E. A. C., Boston.—A loses, according to your statement.

H. M. H., Minneapolis.—Write to Mr. Cleveland himself. He resides in this city.

S., Lynn.—Answer next week.

W. T. W., Columbus.—He never visited America.

S., Lynn.—1. Mother Shipton lived in the reign of Henry VIII, and was famous for her prophecies. 2. Write to Dick & Fitzgerald, 18 Ann Street, this city.

Brevities.

The Searight-McKelvie match for the championship of Glasgow and £30, terminated in a one sided victory for the former by the score of Searight 11, McKelvie 1, drawn 8, showing conclusively that McKelvie has been much overrated.....Mention was made a few weeks ago about Searight's rank as a checker player, and the statements then made have been exemplified by his latest performance.....Wyllie has won on an average in England one hundred and fifty games for every one that he has lost, proving that the strong players don't meet him. As an instance, at Motherwell, recently, he won 46, lost none and drew only 4.....F. O'Malay and other noted Michigan players are working hard to bring the talent of that State together in a tournament for the State championship. On behalf of the Muskegon Checker Club, M. H. Brennan states that if the managers of that tournament will consent to hold it at Muskegon the club will give $100 to be divided pro rata among the players from points outside of that county who will enter the tourney.....Lancashire proposes to send Eley Clark to the English tourney.....It is noped that some of England and Scotland's experts will come to the Columbian Exposition tourney.....It is the opinion of the majority of checker players that Mr. Christie should reconsider his opinion not to play in the English tournament, and enter as any other contestant. At the banquet previous to the last English tourney, it was unanimously passed that whoever won the title should only hold it until the next tourney, and now Mr. Christie desires to retain the title of champion of England until defeated in a match for the title under those conditions. Mr. Christie is in duty bound to either enter the tourney or resign the title to the winner of the coming tourney.....In the McKelvie-Searight match the following is a list of the opening as drawn by ballot:

W. WRAY MORGAN JR.—Nos. 417 and 418 of C. C. P. safely to hand; many thanks! Our file is now perfect to and including No. 438, Dec. 16, 1891. Since that date and number, has there been no issue of C. P. C.?

BRO. POLLOCK.—There was another brilliant mate reported by a Dublin lady in the Belfast match; if you get hold of it first, please let us.

JAS. RENNIE, Toronto.—Notice received; will gladly give it space.

J. A. D. ENISON (?), City.—"Brevity and Brilliancy" was published by D. Appleton & Co., Bond Street; if any are to be had, it is there.

CORRESPONDENCE TOURNEY.—The Toronto Mail Chess Correspondence Club is to have a tourney for cash prizes. All competitors will be arranged in divisions of not more than three, each to play one game with each entrant in his division; but any contestant that wishes to do so may enter more than one division. Moves in the games are to be forwarded once a week. [The closing sentence we do not understand.—ED. CLIPPER.]

Keys and Solutions.

Of Enigma No. 1,829.—This "floored the crowd" for a long time; but at last it turned out to have three solutions—1. R to Q Kt 7 (as intended); 1..R × Kt, and 1..R (B 7) to Q B 7.

Problem 1,829.—Laid over for some one to report upon. Here seems to be a good place to give what our level headed contributor says to the solvers: "There is a whole lot of work and time spent in 'tinkering' a problem into presentable shape, and the chess people better appreciate (or depreciate, as the case may be), after spending a little labor in finding it out for themselves."—J. A. CARSON.

No. 1,830.—Neither, probably, requires solution.

Enigma 1,831.—Solved (this time) only by L. A. Goldsmith.—1. Kt (Q 6) × B, K to Kt 4; 2. Q to B 4 +; 2. B to B 6†; 4. Q mates: if Black 1. K to B 4; 2. P to Kt 4 +, K × P (if); 3. R to R 5!!, etc.—if Black 2. K to B 6; 3. R to B 3 +; and 4. B mates: if 1..B to Kt 4; 2. B to K 3!, B × B; 3. Q to R sq +, etc.: if 1. Q to R 2; 2. Q to B 4, K moves best; 3. Q to her 6, etc. These are the best and most difficult variations, but there are plenty left, plenty. "This is a tremendous problem."—L. A. G.

Problem 1,831 (J. A. Carson).—1. Q × B P, K to B 4; 2. Kt to K 5, P × Kt; 3. Q × P +, etc.: if 1. P × P; 2. P × P, K to Q 4; 3. Kt to B 5, B × Kt; 4. Q × B, etc.: if 1. K to Q 4; 2. K to B 5, P × P; 3. P × P, B × Kt; 4. Q × B, etc. Merely the "heads of discourse." Par nobile fratrum.

Enigma 1,832, Part I (J. A. C.).—1. R to Kt 8, B to B 3, or Q sq; 2. R to Q R 5 +, B × R; 3. P mates. * * * Part II (same).—1. B to his 3, if P to Kt 4, or B to R 2; 2. B × P, P × Kt, or P to K B 4 (if Kt P, or B, move; Q finishes); 3. Kt to B 3 +, etc: if 1. P × Kt; 2. Q to R 4, K to Q 3; 3. Kt × Q B P, etc.: and if 1. P to K B 3; 2. Kt × B 2d P +, K to B 4; 3. Q does the rest. "A delightful and amazing contribution to the chess world, everybody should see it."

Enigma 1,833 we shall give soon.

Notes by Herr Loewenthal in Era.

(a) To this point every move has the force of analysis; but here comes an unfortunate departure from the true path. Paulsen's potent reply, 12. P to Q B 4, now leads the defence to an impregnable position.

(b) Of questionable soundness. This P can seldom thus be advanced with safety before K is moved to R sq.

(c) It was better, probably, to retake with Q Kt.

(d) Had Black K been on R sq, it is worthy of remark that this fine combination could not have been made.

(?) He should rather have exchanged Rooks.

The immediate local interest has been Herr Tchigorin's visit to the metropolis. At Brooklyn, 30th ult., Herr T. met a team of twelve very strong players, some of them professionals; he drew with Emil Kemeny; lost to Mr. Eno. Major Hanham and Dr. Pollock; and won 8½ .... In the Manhattan C. C. the Russian master gave his farewell exhibition, encountering twenty adversaries at once. Of this formidable array, Messrs. Northorp, Richards and Thornton drew; Bridge, Eigemann, Major Hanham, Dr. Isaacson and Mr. Yeaton won; while Herr T. won 13½.....At the conclusion of this entertainment, Dr. Fred Mintz, in behalf the club, presented the distinguished master with an elegant souvenir of his American tour, a gold locket set with diamonds, and inscribed: "The Manhattan Chess Club to Master M. Tschigorin, April 2, 1892." Speaking of "souvenirs," a notable pair of them has been most gracefully and gratefully presented to Dr. Fred Mintz by Champion Steinitz. They were in testimony of the many favors the donor has received at the hands of the recipient; especially on account of the $1,000 testimonial recently presented to Mr. S., secured chiefly through the Doctor's untiring efforts. These souvenirs consist of an agreeable an affair consisted of a beautifully cut moonstone, representing a pin and a gold locket, set in diamonds, with the inscription: "Testimonial of gratitude to Dr. Fred Mintz, from W. Steinitz, 1891-92."

.....Dr. Pollock has finished all his games in the Brooklyn C. C.'s annual championship tourney. His score was—lost, 3; won, 15; a measure of success which bids strongly for first prize.....The highly interesting, even exciting match, Lipschutz vs. Showalter, no doubt commenced on Monday, 11th inst. The match is for $750 a side, seven games up, to be played at the Manhattan C. C., 21 West Twenty-seventh Street.....Mrs. Bruel, widow of C. H. Bruel, has presented to the Brooklyn C. C., a very artistic crayon portrait of her late husband. This prized memento of one to whom the chess public owed so much, was from the artist hand of Julius Runger.....The champion's visit to Boston appears to have been a decided success. His opening game was an "Evans" vs. Messrs Stone and Barry consulting. The allies essayed the "Stone-Ware Defence" (5..K B to Q 3), but were beaten in about forty moves, in a game which The Boston Herald characterizes as "won by the champion with marvelous precision and force".....It is noteworthy that one of the draws in New Orleans vs. Tchigorin was achieved by Chas. A. Manrian with this defence.....At our latest advices, Herr E. Lasker had only to draw with Mr. Mason to win the first prize in the notable masters' tourney in the British C. C.—a rather ticklish sort of an "only." In his personal encounter with Blackburne Herr L. won both games.

ATHLETIC.

Athletic Lawmakers in Session.

The Board of Managers of the Metropolitan Branch of the Amateur Athletic Union met at the Astor House, this city, on Wednesday evening, April 13, sixteen clubs being represented by delegates. The most important matter that was expected to be brought before the board was the charges made against Hugh Winters, John McGarry and James Rice, accused by President Curtis with having violated the amateur law by accepting cash in return for their services as boxers at the tourney of the Bridge Athletic Club. The accused took advantage of the rule of the union which provides that they shall be given fifteen days' notice before the examination is proceeded with, and the investigation had, therefore, to be postponed. The Greenwood Benevolent Athletic Association was admitted to membership, and the application of the Printers' Benevolent Association for membership was approved. George Schwegler and H. H. Morrell, of the New York A. C.; J. O'Connell, of Buffalo, and A. M. Evans, of this city, were reinstated, but the application of W. S. French, who competed at the Seventh Regiment games also, for reinstatement, was refused. Arthur Varian, of the Orange Athletic Club, was elected to the vacancy caused by the resignation of Aug. Peverelly as a delegate.

Brooklyn Christians.

The members of Class B, Central Branch of the Young Men's Christian Association, held their closing contests in the gymnasium on Wednesday evening, April 13. Summary:

Tooker is Racket Champion.

The annual competition for the amateur racket championship of America came off at Boston, Mass., April 12, 13, 14. There were but three contestants, R. D. Sears and B. S. Garmendia having withdrawn. The first contest was between H. H. Hunnewell Jr. and J. R. Wheelock, both of the Boston A. A., and resulted in the success of the former, the score standing 15—9, 15—5, 15—1. The second contest was between Hunnewell and J. S. Tooker, and the latter won a hard fought battle by this score: 15—9, 17—14, 15—7. The third and deciding match was between Tooker and Wheelock, and again did the former win, the figures being 15—3, 15—10, 15—love. The B. A. A. will therefore retain the championship cup, for the winner, although also a member of the N. Y. R. and T. C., represented the Boston Association in the tournament.

Boxers Brought to Bay.

Because of the extreme difficulty of securing the necessary evidence to convict those so-called amateurs who are strongly suspected of having violated the law by boxing for cash considerations, the Metropolitan Association of the A. A. U. decided by a mail vote that all those against whom charges are or may hereafter be preferred on such grounds should stand suspended until they themselves produced satisfactory proof of their innocence. In taking this action the association followed the example set by the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen, which has been found to work well, and it will no doubt be effective in ridding the union of the incubus under which it has so long suffered. If those officials of the tournaments and matches in which the accused men are alleged to have lost their status as amateurs, and who are really more guilty than the boxers, had the manliness to come before the board of managers and give their evidence, there would be no necessity for such action being taken; still it can hardly be expected that they would be willing to give information that must convict themselves of wrong doing.

A New Walking Record.

A cablegram gives the following particulars of a walking match between William Towers, of Leicester, and "Toff" Lynch, of London, for $500 and the championship at four miles, which came off on April 16, at the Aylestone Road Grounds, Leicester, one of the fastest paths in the United Kingdom. The conditions were that no caution was to be given the contestants and only one attendant allowed, who must not accompany his man more than fifty yards at a time. The match was won by one foot by Towers in 27m. 8s., which beats the record. Throughout the last lap the pair walked side by side for a long way. Coming into the straight Towers forged ahead a foot, and it was impossible for Lynch to get up with him. Towers held his lead and crossed the line a winner amid the greatest excitement. The best previous record for the distance was 27m. 38s., made by J. W. Raby at London, Aug. 20, 1883.

WILLIAM H. ROCAP, of the Athletic Club of the Schuylkill Navy, and an ex-champion amateur boxer, has determined to retire finally from active participation in athletic exercises. His friends have tendered him a testimonial in the form of an entertainment, that will come off at the Academy of Music, Philadelphia, on the evening of May 7.

W. W. HEFFELFINGER, the giant football rusher of Yale College, has left the City of Elms for good, and will enter the service of the Union Pacific Railroad Company as a civil engineer. It was thought that he would return to college for a post graduate course, but the blue has lost his valuable services in the athletic field forever.

THE new

John Ewing, one of the pitchers of the New York Club, who has, on account of sickness, been confined to his residence in Cincinnati most of the past Winter, attended the opening game between the Cincinnatis and Pittsburgs, April 12. He looked much improved, but has not yet recovered his wonted health.

C. H. Byrne, president of the Brooklyn Club, arrived at Baltimore April 11, and took a look at his team. He found the men in good condition, and complimented Captain Ward on his work. He speaks encouragingly of the outlook. "The players," he said, "will be expected to earn their salaries. If any man shirks work we propose to lay him off and get another who will do better. We mean business."

The Staten Island Athletic team and the Princeton College nine met April 13, at Princeton, N. J., the latter then winning by a score of 7 to 4. The batting was weak, the Princetons making only four safe hits, and the Staten Islands three.

The Cleveland Leader, commenting on the Cincinnati team, says: "Cincinnati is a team that is regarded by some as a possible pennant winner. Perhaps this is due to the prestige that Comiskey brings with himself as a manager. One thing is certain, if any good baseball is ever to come out of the men that have been engaged to battle for Cincinnati's interests, Comiskey will bring it to the surface. There will be team work in that club or some one will be fired. As a batting and fielding infield the Cincinnati four come close to the leaders. Possibly, in fielding they are equal to any four in the National League and American Association, although they do not come quite up to the mark of some others in batting. It will be a good base running team in spots. Behind the bat it is well equipped, and judging from the work done by the pitchers in practice games, will hold its own in that respect. The outfield is a trio of hard batters and average fielders. It will be a good idea for all clubs to defeat Cincinnati as early in the game as possible."

William Earley, one of the catchers of the Pittsburg Club, during a recent interview, said: "The Cuban ball players are really excellent fielders, and they can run bases. They are not afraid to go after anything they can get in front of, and they are better than the average American player on the throw. They are not very clever batters, and it is easy for a good American pitcher to fool them. Some of them are pretty clever on the 'bunt.' They have lots of enthusiasm, and play with a vim that makes it a pleasure to watch a game. They are quick to learn. While I was in Havana I picked up a lot of Spanish phrases, and one day coached a team that defeated the All America team with great ease."

The Rochester Baseball and Amusement Company was incorporated April 12 with a capital of $3,000 for the conduct of outdoor amusements at Rochester. The directors are: R. E. Mulcahey, Benjamin R. Lawrence, Charles S. Ballard, Charles Guillett and Edward C. Cullinan.

Pitcher Coughlin, recently released by the New York Club, has signed with the Syracuse Club, of the Eastern League.

Manager Shannon, of the New Haven Club, of the Eastern League, has been negotiating with "Sandy" Griffin, of last year's Omaha team, and with Mike Slattery, of last season's Cincinnati Club, of the National League, and one of them will be secured for the third outfielder of the nine.

The Amherst College team had little trouble defeating the Jaspers, of Manhattan College, April 12, in this city, by a score of 23 to 5. Stearns led in batting for the winners, his three hits including a home run and a triple bagger.

William Brown, formerly of the New York and Philadelphia Clubs, has been confined for four months to his home at San Francisco, Cal., on account of an abcess in his leg, the result of a collision with another player during a practice game played last Winter. He has now entirely recovered, but having lost thirty pounds of flesh during his enforced retirement, he does not think he will be able to play again for several months.

The New Yorks having an open date on April 13, visited Trenton, N. J., and defeated the local team by a score of 15 to 2. Bassett hurt himself the preceding day, and Fields played second base. Crane, Sullivan and Welch took turns at pitching for the New Yorks, the last named being hit for a home run by Hummell, who made two of the five hits credited to the Trenton team. Ewing and Fields led in batting, each making three safe hits.

John G. Floss, president of the Buffalo City League, has called a meeting of the league for April 19, at Buffalo, to make some changes in the schedule of championship games, and to arrange for umpires.

The Penn Charter School nine of Philadelphia, were shut out by the Delaware Field Club, April 13, at Wilmington, Del., the latter then winning by a score of 25 to 0. The Penn Charters made only two safe hits off R. Hawke.

The Wesleyan College nine had the Williams College team for opponents April 13, at Middletown, Ct., the former then winning by a score of 11 to 7. The Wesleyans did not complete their half of the fifth inning, because Williams' players wanted to catch a train, this being the first instance where the new rule has been made use of.

The Manhattan Athletic Club was easily beaten by the Yale College team April 13, at Manhattan Field, this city, by a score of 8 to 3. Murphy, the Yale short stop, accepted all of ten chances, including several difficult stops.

The Virginia University team defeated the Lafayette College nine April 13, at Charlottesville, Va., by a score of 12 to 0.

April 13 being an open date, with the Eastern Clubs, of the National League and American Association, the Philadelphias arranged an exhibition game with the Athletics, of Philadelphia, the former then winning by a score of 14 to 5. The Philadelphias pounded Devlin's left handed delivery for seven runs in the third inning. Hamilton, Allen and Reilly each made three hits.

The game between the Yale and Williams College teams played April 12, at New Haven, resulted in a victory for the former by a score of 17 to 3. Only six innings were played on account of the cold weather. The Yales scored their seventeen runs mainly off errors, making only six safe hits.

The Anthracite League of Pennsylvania is a new organization that has recently adopted by-laws, constitution and schedule of championship games. Thus far the league is composed of clubs located at Pottsville, Tamaqua, Mahanoy City, Shenandoah, Ashland and Shamokin, Pa. The championship season will begin on Saturday, May 21, two games to be played each week. All clubs are subject to expulsion for failure to play out the full schedule of championship games and forfeit $200 for non-appearance at the grounds. The teams must be composed of players from Schuylkill, Northumberland and Carbon Counties, who have not played professionally this season and must have resided in the district at least three months.

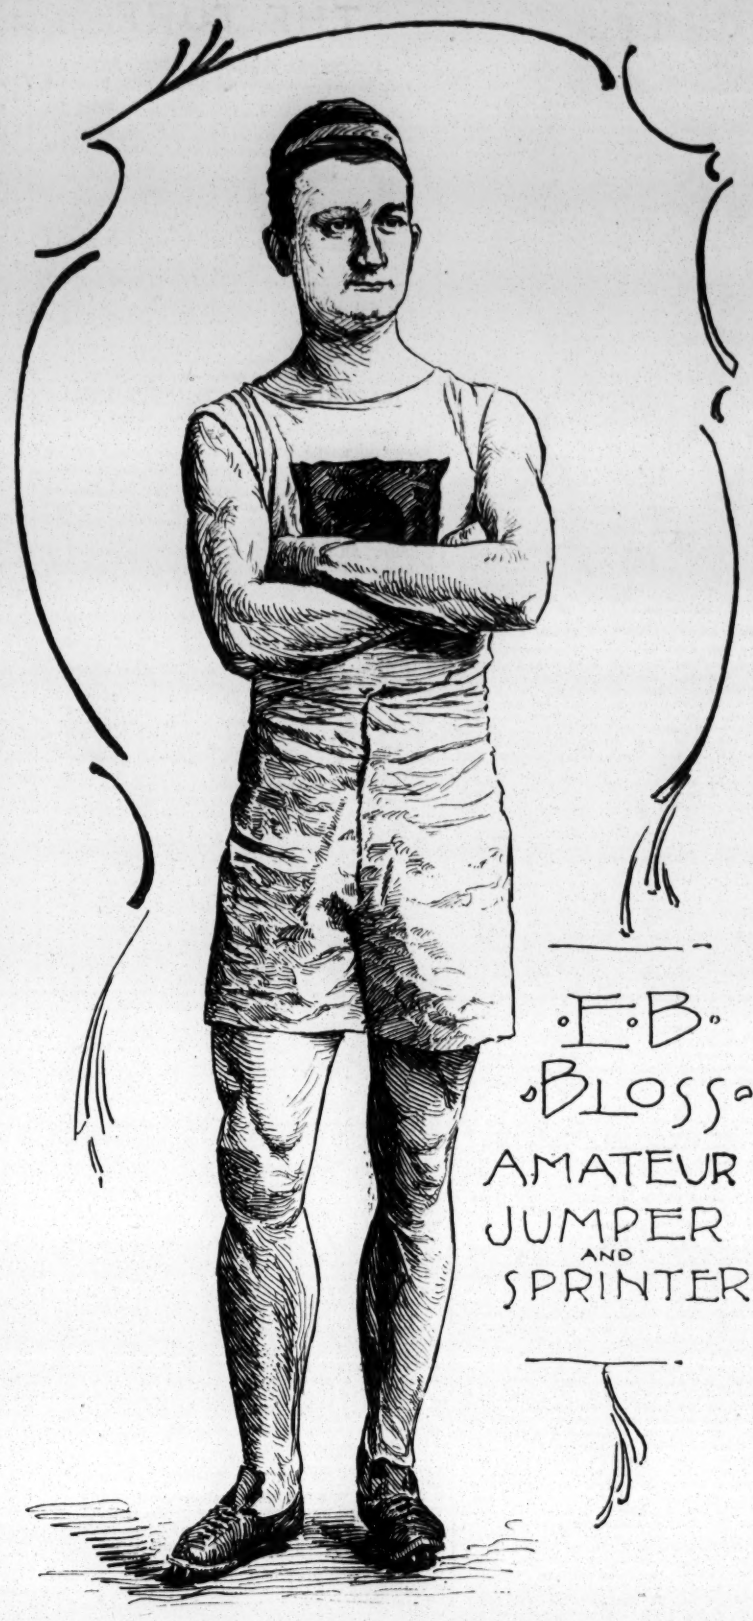
A dispatch from Cincinnati, dated April 13, said: "It may be that Hanlon will never play ball again this season. He hurt himself while going for a fly ball. He was extended, going at his best after the ball, when one of the tendons in his left leg snapped and he came to a dead halt. He looked very weak when he left the grounds in a carriage. Some of the Pittsburg players said last night that they thought Hanlon's ball days were over."

The University of Virginia team defeated the Lafayette College nine, of Easton, Pa., April 12, at Charlottesville, Va., by a score of 20 to 1. The batting of the home team was heavy, but the fielding on the part of both was poor. A fine triple play was made in the third inning by Harper, Benner and Smith of the University of Virginia.

A game between the Yale and St. John's College teams April 14, at Fordham, this city, was played in a driving rain and snow storm. The Yale College team won by a score of 8 to 5. The nines were compelled to stop playing several times during the game, owing to the snow. The home collegians put up a stubborn game, and Yale only won through timely work with the bat. Roche for six innings, pitched well, but was batted freely by the Yales in the sixth and seventh innings. Carmody pitched the remaining inning. Bowers was in the box for the visitors, and with the exception of the second and fifth innings did well. O'Rourke in the second inning in sliding for the plate, cut his hand badly. Gaynor made a brilliant running catch that started a neat double play.

The following item is going the rounds: "Five of the famous old Detroit team, champions of the National League in 1888, will play in the National League and American Association this season. No two of them, however, will be on the same team. Thompson will be with Philadelphia, Hanlon with Pittsburg, Brouthers with Brooklyn, Bennett with Boston and H. Richardson with Washington." Ganzel has been omitted from the above list. He caught in more championship games for the Detroit Club in 1888 than did Bennett, and he, too, is with the Boston Club this year.

The National League and American Association championship games scheduled for April 13 and 14 at St. Louis and Louisville were postponed on account of rain; as were all of those scheduled for April 14 at Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington in the East.



Although but two seasons before the public, the young athlete whose portrait graces this page has achieved lasting fame by his remarkably good performances as a sprinter and jumper. E. B. Bloss is a Harvard Sophomore, who was born at Titusville, Pa., twenty years ago, stands 5ft. 4in. in height, and weighs 136lb. His career as an athlete was commenced in the Spring of 1889, while he was a student at Phillips Exeter Academy, Mass. Previously to that he had never tried his powers at either running or jumping, and he greatly surprised himself, as well as others, by breaking the school records in the running high and long jumps, and the running hop, step and jump. The following year, at the Spring games, he again broke the records in the same events, and at the championship games in April of that year he got second in the running hop, step and jump, doing 44ft. In the Fall of 1890, he entered Harvard College, and at the Freshmen games broke the Harvard record for the running long jump, his figures being 21ft. 10in. Next day he broke the world's amateur record for the running hop, step and jump, clearing a distance of 44ft. 11¾in. In January, 1891, he was elected a "preferred" member of the Boston Athletic Association, of which club he is still a member. In February he ran his first race, at the games of the B. A. A., indoors, but gained only experience, which, however, proved of some benefit. On March 14 he started in the seventy yards run at Madison Square Garden, this city, and got second place in the final heat. Unfortunately, he was shortly afterwards seized with the "grip," and during the Spring was unable to do himself justice. He was one of the team representing Harvard at the intercollegiate field meeting, but he was lacking in strength, having lost twenty pounds, and failed to get better than fourth place in the long jump. Last Fall he won the 'varsity running high jump with 5ft. 8¾in., his best performance in that style of jumping. Soon afterwards, at the games held at Madison Square Garden, he got second from the 4ft. mark in the seventy yards run, his handicap being five feet less than the previous year. He did not compete again till last January, appearing at the Boston A. A. open handicap games 23, when he equaled the world's amateur record for running seventy-five yards on a board floor, 7⅝s., which time he twice accomplished. At the Boston A. A. games on Feb. 13 he broke the world's record for forty yards, 4⅝s., beating Harding, the New York sprinter, to the tape. On Washington's Birthday, at an indoor meeting held at the gymnasium of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, he created a record for twenty yards running, covering the distance in 2⅝s. His last appearance in public up to the present time was made at the closing Winter meeting of the Yale College athletes, at Lincoln Rink, New Haven, Ct., April 2, when he won the thirty yards race for an elegant silver cup. H. L. Harding, Manhattan A. C., was second. Time, 3⅝s. He has won a number of other prizes, but the foregoing comprise his principal performances, upon which he hopes to improve during the coming season.

A dispatch from Washington, dated April 15, says: "The rumors that Manager Barnie, of the Washington team, will leave the Washingtons and assume control of the Baltimores are at present without the slightest foundation. So far as is known William Barnie will continue in charge of the local team the remainder of the season, and should he sever his connection with it there is nothing except his popularity in Baltimore to indicate that he will return to his old club. When asked about the matter today Barnie said he had not received any offer from the Baltimore Club, and so knew nothing about his prospects of resuming its management. Barnie himself has very little to say regarding the probability of his release. No manager within the last ten years has been so popular here, and no one in the history of baseball in Washington has won the confidence and respect of lovers of the game as has Barnie. The Wagners would have been received coldly had it not been for him. No one knew them here, but Barnie the whole baseball public knew, and in him the Washington enthusiasts reposed the utmost confidence. The announcement that Barnie was to receive his release came upon the public as a great surprise. At first the people refused to believe it, then they began gently at first, but gradually louder, to voice their protests. Petitions were circulated and at least 2,000 names were affixed to them asking for Barnie's retention. These have all been forwarded to the owners of the club and their effect is now being impatiently waited for. The Wagners refuse to affirm or deny the report that Barnie is to be released. Their reticence, however, is regarded as a confirmation of the rumor."

The Minneapolis team had the St. Pauls for opponents in the opening game of the preliminary season April 12, at Minneapolis, the latter then winning by a score of 9 to 7. The batting of Mots, of the visiting team, was a feature. His three hits included two home runs.

Both the New York and Brooklyn Clubs will have grand and elaborate openings April 21, at their grounds in this city and Brooklyn, respectively, with all the attractions of music and profusely decorated grounds.

The Young Americas, of Philadelphia, were beaten by the Camdens April 15, at Camden, N. J., by a score of 19 to 3. Toy did the best batting, his hits embracing a home run and a double bagger.

Second basemen had plenty of fielding chances in the opening games April 12, of the National League and American Association championship season of 1892. There were ninety five chances in all, of which Dan Richardson and Pfeffer each accepted thirteen.

Pitcher Stivetts did not report to the Boston Club when the season opened. He received $700 advance money and wants more, but the club refuses to pay it.

The Rochester team, of the Eastern League, will wear white Jersey cloth uniforms with brown trimmings in the games on the home grounds, but on their trips abroad they will don brown suitings, with trimmings of a cardinal hue.

The Lehigh University and the University of Virginia teams met April 15, at Charlottesville, Va., the former then winning by a score of 9 to 6.

President Williams, of the Western League, has assigned his corps of umpires for the opening games as follow: Columbus, Corcoran; Indianapolis, McQuaid; Kansas City, Snyder; Omaha, Serad.

Nearly all the clubs in the Eastern League have made changes in their playing list, which leaves few of the teams with half the men originally assigned.

Among the players whose terms have been accepted by the New England League are those of Fielders George B. Clark of Cambridge, John H. Murphy of West Fitchburg, Daniel D. Day of Westerly, R. I., Edward J. Murphy of South Natick, Arthur C. Ladd of Hills Grove, R. I., David Pickett of Brookline, W. H. Cooke of Leominster and John H. O'Brien of Springfield; Short Stops Frank Shannon of Boston, Thomas Flynn of Providence and M. F. Hickey of Springfield; Catchers Mulhair of Nashua and E. G. Webster of Portland; Pitchers E. J. Kelly of Portland, C. H. Morse of Stoneham and E. P. Lincoln of Raynham; First Basemen J. F. McCarron of Providence, Frank C. Hall of Ipswich and Andrew McMahon of Blackmore; Second Baseman J. E. Rudderham.

Two of the pitchers who were expected to be the Brooklyn Club's mainstay in the box this season are not with the team. They are Lovett, of last year's Brooklyn team, and Haddock, of the Boston American Association championship club. Both have thus far refused to sign contracts at the terms offered by Brooklyn, and this has caused many persons to think that Brooklyn will be weak in pitchers. Captain Ward, however, does not think so, and says that Foutz's work in the opening championship game was excellent, and that Terry, Hart, Stein and Inks also will be found to be first class men. Lovett and Haddock, he says, have been offered more money by Brooklyn than by any other club, and if they do not want to play in Brooklyn at the figures offered, Brooklyn will get along without them. The manager of the club has heard nothing from either of the two men recently.

D. Conley, of Waltham, Mass., has been appointed an umpire of the New England League staff.

The National League and American Association games scheduled for April 15 between the Philadelphias and New Yorks at Philadelphia and the Washingtons and Bostons at Washington were postponed on account of wet grounds.

The opening of the National League and American Association championship season on April 12 this year evidences the people's love for the game. The six games played by the professional clubs were attended by 38,468 people, an average of 6,441. This shows how popular the sport is and how profitable it is to the managers, when it is properly conducted.

The Johns Hopkins University team was outplayed by the Columbia Athletic nine April 13, at Washington, D. C., the latter then winning by a score of 3 to 1. Hare and Fuller alternated in the box for the victors, and T. B. Brown pitched for the visitors. The Johns Hopkins team made only one safe hit during the game.

The University of Pennsylvania team was shut out by the Dartmouth College nine April 15, at Philadelphia, the latter then winning by a score of 8 to 0. Berger pitched for the home team and O'Connor for the visitors. O'Connor, who is a very swift left handed pitcher, retired seventeen of his opponents on strikes, and only three scattering singles were made off him.

The Holy Cross College nine, of Worcester, defeated Manager Burnham's Providence team April 14, at Providence, R. I., by a score of 6 to 5.

The exhibition game between the Providences and New Haven teams, of the Eastern League, played April 15, at New Haven, Ct., resulted in a victory for the former by a score of 8 to 4.

The game between the Gorhams and Troys April 15, at Troy, resulted in a tie, each team having scored nine runs at the end of the ninth inning.

Philadelphia vs. New York.

The championship season of the National League and American Association had rather an inauspicious opening in Philadelphia on April 12, when the very cold weather caused the attendance to be limited to about five thousand people, and the home team met with an unexpected defeat at the hands of the reconstructed New York team. Tiernan was unable to play with the visitors, and Fields took his place at right field. The home team took the lead in the first inning, when a base on balls given Thompson, together with a double by Hallman and a triple by Connor, yielded two runs. A double bagger by Ewing and a single by O'Rourke gave the New Yorks their first run. The visitors tied the score in the second inning on a base on balls given Fields, followed by the longest hit of the contest, a drive to left centre by Rusie, who, however, stumbled and fell after reaching first base. The Philadelphias went to the front again in the fifth, when doubles by Keefe and Hamilton and a single by Thompson earned two runs. A fumble by Hallman, after men were out in the sixth inning, was followed by three successive singles sending in two runs, and enabling the visitors to again tie the score. Another fumble by Hallman, followed by safe hits by O'Rourke and Bassett, gave the New Yorks the winning run in the seventh inning. Delehanty, in sliding to second base, wrenched his ankle so badly in the sixth inning that he had to retire and Cross took his place. O'Rourke did the best batting, hitting safely four times in succession. Rusie and Keefe pitched effectively, several of the hits being of the scratch order. Bassett and Hallman fielded finely at second base, the latter being credited with a remarkable stop that prevented the New Yorks from scoring in the third inning. Fields and Gore exchanged positions in the fifth inning, and the latter terminated the contest by a brilliant catch.

Cincinnati vs. Pittsburg.

Fully seven thousand people were present April 12 at Cincinnati, the opening day of the championship season in that city being a financial success, despite the cold weather. Captain Hanlon, of the Pittsburg team, hurt his leg at practice, and Mack took his place, going behind the bat, while Miller went to centre field. Beckley batted the ball into the crowd at right field for a home run in the first inning, when two men were on bases, and this gave the visitors a lead that they held throughout. Baldwin held the home team down to two scattering singles up to the ninth inning, when they scored four runs off four safe hits after two men were out, including a triple bagger by Holliday with three men on bases. The Pittsburgs pounded Mullane when hits were needed and thereby won the opening game, the result of which was unexpected.

The Pittsburgs won again April 13, when ten innings were necessary to decide the question of victory. The home team batted Galvin freely, but their hits were well scattered, except in the fourth and fifth innings. Chamberlain kept the Pittsburgs from making more than four scattering hits in the first eight innings. The visitors, however, bunched four safe hits in the ninth inning, when they batted out three earned runs and tied the score. In the tenth inning Farrell was given his base on balls and Beckley followed with a triple bagger to deep right that brought in the winning run before a man was out.

Baltimore vs. Brooklyn.

In the presence of fully five thousand people the Brooklyns badly beat the Baltimores April 12, at Baltimore, it being the initial championship contest of the new twelve club league in that city. The first inning decided the contest, the visitors then bunching three safe hits, which, with an error by Johnson and two bases on balls, brought in five runs. McMahon pitched wildly throughout, giving nine men bases on balls, five of whom scored runs. Foutz prevented the Baltimores from making more than seven hits, which were well distributed through six innings, and yielded only three runs. Whistler led in batting, his three safe hits embracing a triple bagger. An excusable error by Corcoran was the only one charged to the visitors. Gilbert was unable to play with the home team and McGraw took his place at third base. Ward's work at second base was the fielding feature.

Hard and timely hitting helped the Brooklyns to win again April 15, rain having caused the postponement of the game scheduled the preceding day. The visitors hit Healy hard in the first five innings, scoring seven singles, two doubles and three triples, and scoring ten runs. Cobb, who then made his first appearance in a championship contest, was substituted in the pitcher's position in the sixth inning, and held the Brooklyns down to two scattering hits that did not do any damage. He used an effective drop ball that proved puzzling. The Baltimores bunched four singles in the first inning, but Hart managed to keep their hits well scattered during the remainder of the contest. Schoch made his first appearance with the Baltimore team, taking Gilbert's place at third base. Shindle and Burns made sensational catches, the former in the third inning, taking a high fly away far behind third base, after a long run, and thereby saving three runs, and the latter, after a great run, capturing a liner within a few inches of the ground. Gunson's catching and Collins' batting were the other noteworthy features.

St. Louis vs. Chicago.

The championship season was opened April 12, at St. Louis, over eight thousand people then being present, despite the cold weather. The Chicagos secured four runs and a winning lead in the first inning, when costly errors by Glasscock were followed by three safe hits, including successive home runs by Ryan and Anson. Gleason was batted freely, especially in the seventh inning, when the visitors bunched six safe hits and scored five runs. Breitenstein took Gleason's place in the eighth inning, and was hit safely only once. Gumbert, who had been batted safely twice in the first inning, split a finger in trying to stop a hot hit in the third, and retired in favor of Hutchison. The home team hit Hutchison hard in three innings, when six safe hits helped them to eight runs, and made the score less one sided. Canavan made his first appearance with the Chicago Club, taking Pfeffer's place at second. Dahlen and Dungan led in batting, each making three safe hits, including a triple and a double. Cooney's short stopping was the fielding feature. Carroll did the best batting for St. Louis, making a home run and a single.

Washington vs. Boston.

Despite of decided chilly weather, the opening championship contest April 12, at Washington, attracted the largest attendance ever recorded at a professional game in that city. Clarkson pitched very effectively during the first seven innings, the four safe hits then made off him being too widely scattered to admit of run getting. Killen also did good work for five innings, but was then severely punished, the Bostons bunching ten safe hits and scoring a like number of runs during the remainder of the contest. Clarkson let up in his pitching, and the home team batted freely in the eighth and ninth innings, five safe hits then helping them to four runs and saving a shut out. The game was one sided, the Bostons outplaying their opponents at all points. Quinn led in batting with three timely singles. Home runs were made by Long, Clarkson and Larkin, the first named getting his when three men were on bases. Dan Richardson's second base play was the fielding feature, he accepting all of thirteen difficult chances in his position.

The home team turned the tables on Anson's team, April 16, when they won by their superior batting. G Meakin was batted hard and often, especially in the first, third and ninth innings, when the Louisvilles bunched fourteen safe hits and scored eleven runs. J. Meakin kept the Chicagos down to five widely scattered safe hits in the first seven innings, but was batted freely at the finish, the Chicagos coming within one run of overcoming Louisville's lead at the end of the eighth. Brown and Seery led in batting, the former also doing great work at centre field. A double play on a one handed catch by Dahlen was the fielding feature.

St. Louis vs. Pittsburg.

The Pittsburgs played poorly in the opening game of the series April 15, at St. Louis. In only one inning did they secure any hits off Breitenstein's left handed pitching. In the seventh inning the visitors bunched three safe hits, including doubles by Shugart and Miller, and thus saved a shut out. The home team batted Baldwin freely, especially in the second and ninth innings, when they bunched six safe hits and scored six runs. Carroll led in batting, his three hits embracing a triple and a double bagger. Corkhill took Hanlon's place at centre field, the latter being still lame and unable to play.

The Pittsburgs pounded out a victory April 16, batting Dwyer and Gleason out of the box. Dwyer was poorly supported in the second inning and he retired after five safe hits had been scored off him. A muff by Brodie in this inning, with three men on bases, proved costly. Gleason was then substituted and proved effective up to the sixth inning, when five safe hits helped the visitors to four more runs. Only one hit was made off Easton in the two innings that he pitched. The home team batted Galvin freely in the first and fourth innings, but he was splendidly supported and kept them from scoring the remainder of the contest. Shugart did the best batting.

St. Louis vs. Cincinnati.

The first Sunday championship game of the National League and American Association was played April 17 at St. Louis, fully fourteen thousand people then being present. Comiskey, who reappeared with the Cincinnati team, was warmly welcomed. The contest was close and exciting up to the eighth inning, when the Cincinnatis bunched four safe hits, including a double by Latham and home runs by Halligan and Holliday. Mullane pitched very effectively, the three safe hits made off him being distributed through as many innings. Caruthers also pitched in fine form during the first six innings, but the bunching by the umpire of several bad base decisions and calling of balls seemed to discourage him. Home runs were made by McPhee, Halligan and Holliday, and a double bagger by the last named. McPhee and Pinkney excelled in fielding.

Baltimore vs. Boston.

The Bostons badly beat the Baltimores April 16, at Baltimore, a cold, bleak wind then causing numerous fielding errors. Of the sixteen runs scored by the two teams in this contest, not one was earned. Duffy and Nichols made five of the six safe hits credited to the Bostons, the latter making the longest hit of the game. Cobb pitched finely, but was poorly supported, the visitors in the first and seventh innings scoring eight runs off only two safe hits, one being a scratch. Gunson dropped two throws to the plate that proved costly. Nichols also did good work in the box, but was handicapped by Kelly, who threw poorly to the bases, and helped the home team to a majority of their runs. The Bostons secured a winning lead at the outset, and held it throughout. A decision by Mahoney in the first inning caused considerable "kicking." Van Haltren was hit by Kelly by a ball thrown to second to head the former off, and was declared out for "interfering with ball," while Welch, who had in the meantime scored, was ordered back to third.

Philadelphia vs. Brooklyn.

The opening game of the series was played April 16, at Philadelphia, and resulted in a decisive victory for the home team. The visitors played poorly in the field, errors by Corcoran and Joyce proving very costly. Inks was knocked out of the box in the third inning, when the home team made nine safe hits, including two doubles and a triple, and scored eight runs. Stein, who was then substituted as pitcher, was batted only in the fifth inning, when Allen and Thompson got singles, Hallman hit a double and Connor made a home run with two men on the bases. Weyhing was batted freely in three successive innings, when the Brooklyns bunched nine safe hits and scored six runs. Thompson led in batting, getting four timely singles. Hallman fielded finely at second base, and Burns and Cross distinguished themselves by great catches.

Faultless fielding and timely hitting helped the Brooklyns to reverse the above result April 18. The Brooklyns got the hang of Esper's left handed delivery in the fifth inning, when six safe hits sent in four runs. Thornton then was tried in the box, but the Brooklyns batted him hard in the sixth, getting two doubles and three singles. The Philadelphias pounded Foutz freely, but he managed to keep the hits well scattered, except in the eighth inning. Thompson led off with a home run. Collins and Hamilton led their respective teams in batting.

Washington vs. New York.

The New Yorks won the opening game of the series, April 16, at Washington, after a close and exciting finish. The grounds were in a poor condition from recent rain. Knell and King pitched very effectively, the former striking out eleven men, including three in succession in the second inning. King kept the home team from making more than eight safe hits, four of which were bunched in the second inning, and yielded four runs. A base on called balls given Radford filled the bases in the second, and a hit to left centre by Hoy then sent in three runs. The visitors failed to make a solitary safe hit off Knell in the first four innings, but in the sixth they bunched three singles and a double bagger, and, aided by two bases on balls, made four runs and tied the score. In the ninth inning Fields muffed a high fly and the batsman scored, the ball bounding into the crowd at right field and being blocked. Rusie was substituted when King's turn came to bat in the last half this inning, but he failed to make the expected hit after Fields had been given his base on balls. With two men out, timely doubles by Fuller and Gore gave the New Yorks two runs and the victory. Hoy led in batting and fielding, a running and jumping one handed catch in the third inning being noteworthy.

A picked nine of local players played recently two games with the Holyokes, at Hartford, Ct., to a small attendance, the Hartfords winning second game. Score, 10 to 5. Dartmouth College team downed the Trinity College men in a six inning contest April 16, at Hartford, by a score of 13 to 2. Graves, of Trinity, made a three base hit.

By hard batting the Wesleyan College team scored a victory over the Holy Cross nine April 16, at Middletown, Ct., by a score of 7 to 6. The losers made only three hits off Frost.

The Laureates of Troy had the tables turned on them by the Williams College team, April 16, at Williamstown, the latter then winning by a score of 13 to 4. Marquette, the Laureate catcher, had his finger broken.

The reconstructed Staten Island Cricket team played the Mercurys, of this city, April 16, at Livingston, Staten Island, the former then winning by a score of 7 to 3. Tyng held the Mercury team down to four safe hits.

The Jaspers, of Manhattan College, were beaten by the Staten Island Athletic team April 16, at West Brighton, Staten Island, by a score of 4 to 1. The game was quickly played, the nine innings being completed in seventy two minutes.

The University of Virginia team defeated the Lehigh University nine, April 16, at Charlottesville, Va., by a score of 6 to 3. The game was called on account of darkness in the eighth inning.

The St. John's College and Volunteer teams played a tie game April 17, at Fordham, N. Y. At the end of the sixth inning each side had two runs, when the game was then called. Reilly landed on the ball in fourth inning with much force, and it looked as though he would reach second safely. Holland, however, ran back a long distance and caught the ball on a jump with one hand.

The Princeton College team defeated the Columbia Athletic Club April 16, at Washington, by 13 to 2 in seven innings. McKenzie made four successive safe hits, including two home runs and a triple bagger.

The Georgetown College team defeated a nine of Naval Cadets April 16, at Annapolis, Md., by a score of 7 to 3.

The Washington Club would like to obtain Tommy Burns' release from the Chicago Club. If successful Burns will be placed at third base and Hardie Richardson sent to left field.

The Haverhill team, of the New England League, shut out the Phillips Andover Academy nine April 16, at Andover, Mass., by a score of 1 to 0. A base on balls and a poor throw to second base in the third inning gave the only run. Paige pitched for the students and Johnson for the visitors. Only four safe hits were scored in the game, one being off Paige's delivery, while three were off Johnson's.

The Baltimore Club has two open dates—April 27 and 28—in its coming trip. On April 27 the team will probably return to Baltimore to play off a postponed game of the first series with Brooklyn.

The Southern League opened its championship season April 14. The games played last week resulted as follow: April 14, at Chattanooga, Chattanooga, 3; Birmingham, 1. At Macon, Atlanta, 23; Macon, 1. At Montgomery, Montgomery, 28; Mobile, 1. At New Orleans, Memphis, 8; New Orleans, 7. April 15, at Chattanooga, Chattanooga, 4; Birmingham, 2. At Macon, Atlanta, 7; Macon, 4. At Montgomery, Mobile, 16; Montgomery, 5. At New Orleans, New Orleans, 13; Memphis, 10. April 17, at Birmingham, New Orleans, 9; Birmingham, 7. April 18, at Chattanooga, Chattanooga, 5; Macon, 2.

Alonzo Knight, the veteran player and umpire, has been appointed an umpire in the Pacific Northwest League. He left Philadelphia April 18 for Tacoma, where he will umpire the opening series.

Donovan has been released by the Washington Club, and Hardie Richardson will play left field, while Dowd will be tried at third base.

In a game played April 16, at Albany, N. Y., Fields made four safe hits, including three triple baggers.

The Elmira Club was incorporated April 14 in Albany. The club expects to realize a handsome profit from the benefit ball to be given April 22. Wheelock has been appointed captain of the team. The Metropolitans will play at Elmira April 20 and 21. Vin. Dailey has signed and will take the place of Sullivan, who failed to comply with the rules. The Elmiras have selected black uniforms with white trimmings. Manager Mutrie expects to win the championship.

The championship games scheduled April 18 at Baltimore, Washington, Cincinnati, Louisville and St. Louis, were postponed on account of rain.

It is said that the shutting out of the Cincinnati team without a run on April 15 is the first time that Pitcher Young, of the Cleveland Club, ever performed the feat in his professional career.

Captain Anson, of the Chicago Club, claims that all postponed games have to be played off on the following day or days of the series in which the postponement occurs. President Young is also said to interpret the rule in the same manner, thus necessitating the much complained of double game programme.

Edwin F. Bligh, an ex-professional catcher, whose picture is above given, died of peritonitis, on April 18, at his home in Brooklyn. He was born June 30, 1864, at Bath, and it was in 1886 that he first came into prominence. He was then catching for the Nassau Athletic Club's team, when seen by Manager Barnie, of the Baltimore Club, of the American Association, who offered him an engagement which was accepted. He did good work behind the bat for the Baltimore Club while connected with it in 1886. At the close of that season he was offered a good position with a local business house and he accepted it and therefore retired from the diamond professionally, for the 1887 season. In 1888, however, he joined the New Orleans Club, of the Southern League, and headed the list in the official fielding averages for catchers that season. His release was sold to the Cincinnati Club, of the American Association, about the middle of the season, and he remained with the latter until the close of 1888. In 1889 the Columbus Club, of the same association, secured his services and he remained with that club throughout the season, making a very creditable record for himself as a catcher. In 1890 Manager Chapman obtained his release from the Columbus Club and at once signed him for the Louisville team, which finally won the championship of the American Association. Failing health, we believe, caused his retirement from the professional arena last season. He was an excellent catcher, being a swift and accurate thrower to the bases, a good batsman and a very clever base runner.

A dispatch from Pittsburg, dated April 18, says: "The Pittsburg Club has another fight on hand. On April 12, its management telegraphed President Young from Cincinnati, asking that George Wood be placed on Pittsburg's list of players. Wood was wanted to take the place of Hanlon, who was injured in the opening game. Wood was placed on Pittsburg's list as per request, and in President Young's latest bulletin the player's name appears among the list of men assigned to the Pittsburg Club. In the meantime the local club and Wood had some difficulty in agreeing on terms. While the negotiations were pending Wood was signed by Baltimore. Temple today telegraphed both President Young and the Baltimore Club, claiming the man. Baltimore hasn't replied as yet, but Young answers: 'Have written to Baltimore, but received no answer.'" This is supplemented by a dispatch from Baltimore, dated April 18, which says: "Vonderhorst, of the Baltimore Club, today received a telegram from Temple, of Pittsburg, claiming to have a prior contract with Wood and notifying him that he insisted upon his rights. Vonderhorst immediately sent Waltz to Washington, where President Young informed him that Pittsburg had no contract with Wood. Vonderhorst will hold on to his new fielder."

A dispatch from Washington, dated April 18, says: "William Barnie, the manager of the Washington Club, has been released. For some time rumors have been flying that the Wagners contemplated such a step, but whenever questioned concerning the matter they maintained that such a move was not even contemplated. This morning Barnie visited the ball park, and there met J. Earle Wagner. A stormy interview over the loss of yesterday's game followed. Barnie denounced Wagner in the strongest terms for signing Donovan without his consent. During the interview it is alleged Wagner accused Barnie of giving information to newspapers that reflected upon the owners of the club, and finished by requesting his resignation. This Barnie refused to give, declaring that under no consideration would he resign. If they preferred his absence to his presence they would have to discharge him. This the Wagners did this afternoon in the following brief letter: 'You are hereby notified that your services under your contract of March 5, 1892, are no longer required by this corporation after this date, April 18, 1892.' Wagner left at once for Philadelphia, where he will close a contract with Arthur Irwin to manage the Washington team."

The game scheduled between Milwaukee and Indianapolis, April 17, at Indianapolis, was postponed. The sentiment against Sunday ball playing there is so much that the management decided, before joining the Western League, to play no Sunday games on the home grounds. This was mutually accepted by the other teams of the League. Manager Cushman decided to protest the game, but changed his mind after weighing the matter carefully. Away from home the team will play as scheduled.

While the Boston team was playing at Baltimore April 16, Thomas Tucker had his pocket book, containing a ring and a scar

The prospective appearance of Riley and the running off of the Turf Exchange Stakes drew a fine attendance 16. The crowd saw a decidedly good day's racing under cloudy skies and on a fairly fast track. Cambridge Defeats Oxford.

The best of good weather prevailed on the occasion of the annual competitive meeting between the picked athletes of Oxford and Cambridge Universities, which took place at London, Eng., on Friday afternoon, April 8. The sun shone warm and bright, there was no wind, and the grounds and running path were in capital condition. Thus all the conditions were favorable for excellent performances, and the meeting produced some most exciting and closely disputed contests, the special feature of the occasion being the creating of a new British amateur record for the running long jump, C. Amateur Team Race.

The teams of the Birchfield Harriers and Essex Beagles, the dead heaters at the recent race for the national cross country championship of England, met in a match race of ten miles, on the flat, at the Paddington Recreation Grounds, London, afternoon of April 2. The attraction proved sufficient to bring within the gates an immense crowd of lovers of athletics. The result of a capitally contested event was in favor of the Birchfields, who scored 35 points against their opponents' 43. The individual winner was C. E. Willers, of the Essex Harriers; who is not yet out of his teens, his time being 54m. 14s.; T. Birch, Birchfield, second, 54m. 21⅘s; A. Mabbett, Birchfield, third, 55m. 42⅘s.; C. W. The Annual Racket Matches between the representatives of Oxford and Cambridge Universities were decided at the Queen's Club, London, Eng., on April 5, 6. On the opening day the doubles were contested, the Oxford players, F. S. Cokayne and A. D. Erskine, defeating the Cambridge pair, W. S. M. Burns and G. J. V. Weigall, by four games to love, the score standing thus: 15—8, 15—1, 15—8, 15—8. The singles were decided on the second day, and this time the Cambridge representative, C. P Dixon, vanquished F. S. Cokayne, of Oxford, by four games to one. Score: 9—15, 15—8, 15—6, 13—8 to 13—0. The last was a finely contested game, as the score was 1 all, 4 all, 6 all, 9 all and 13 all. A set to three was therefore necessary, and Dixon proved successful in 11m. 40s.

GUS LAMBERT, wrestler, boxer, and a little of everything in the athletic line, is again spending his time in England. On the evening of March 29 he appeared at the South London Palace, London, in a wrestling display with the well known Antonio Pierre, who was fulfilling an engagement at that house, and was supposed to have offered $100 to anyone who could "toss" him in Græco-Roman fashion. It did not take Lambert long to upset the Frenchman, whom he downed in the first bout, after being in holds but eight minutes.

THE ANNUAL RACE for the cross country championship of Ireland took place at the Haddington Harriers' course at Clonsheagh, a mile and a half from Dublin, on Saturday, April 2. But four teams took part in the race, and the Haddington Harriers came in first, with 55 points; Belfast Harriers second, 70; Dublin University third, 99; County Dublin Harriers fourth, 134. The first man home was W. McGuirk, of the winning club, in 35m. 52⅘s.; T. P. McCabe second, F. Carr third.

PROF. H. C. BARRETT, the well known instructor in physical exercises, died at his residence in Philadelphia, April 15, from the effects of injuries received by falling from a cable car a few days previously. He was born in that city fifty three years ago, being a son of Thomas Barrett, who for many years kept a gymnasium at Arch and Ninth Streets, and for several years past has filled the position of teacher of gymnastics, etc., at Kirkbridge's Pennsylvania Hospital for the Insane. For fifteen years he had charge of the gymnastic department at the Young Men's Christian Association, in Association Hall, and for some time was the athletic correspondent of THE CLIPPER in the City of Quakers. For a while, about eighteen years ago, he taught gymnastics at Moline, Ill.

THE ANNUAL RACE of the Suburban Harriers was run on Saturday afternoon, April 16, over the Fort George course, this city. Four score amateur athletes, representing different clubs, participated in the event, the scratch man being Willie Day, of the New Jersey Athletic Club, who failed to win, but took the prize offered for the best time over the five mile course. The first man to finish was T. J. O'Donnell, of the Xavier Athletic Club, 1m. start, whose time was 31m. 7s.; H. Halstead, Wayne Athletic Club, 2m. 15s., second, 31m. 36s.; G. McGinniss, Star Athletic Club, 5m., third, 34m. 29s.

TWO FOOTBALL MATCHES were contested in this vicinity on Sunday afternoon, April 17, each of which was witnessed by a goodly crowd of lovers of outdoor sports. The Little Rock and Yorkville Clubs met at the grounds of the former at Morrisania, and the result was a victory for the Little Rocks by a score of 18 points to 8. The other match was between the teams of the Shamrock and Emmett Clubs, was of the Gaelic variety, and took place at Ridgewood Park, Brooklyn, the Shamrocks winning by a score of 1 goal and 4 points to 4 points.

....Melach, the famous Great Dane dog, who has won numerous prizes at bench shows in different parts of the country, and who was valued at $5,000, has been stolen from the residence of his owner at Auburn Park, near Chicago, Ill.

THE RING.

The Fitzsimmons-Hall Match.

We present below the articles of agreement for the interesting match between those antagonistic Australians, Jim Hall and Bob Fitzsimmons. From the document our readers will gain a full understanding of the match as it stands, as well as obtain a further insight into the loose methods adopted in such important matters by the gentleman who was intrusted with the job of drafting the agreement, and who made a record for himself in drawing up the articles for the greater match between Sullivan and Corbett. The fact that he failed to name the amounts of stake money which the parties to the agreement are each to deposit on certain dates not only shows his unfamiliarity with such matters, but causes trouble that might easily have been avoided, and might be the means of breaking off a match which the sporting public desire to see settled within the ropes.

NEW YORK, April 12, 1892.

We, the undersigned, Robert Fitzsimmons, of San Francisco, Cal., and James Hall, of Chicago, Ill., do hereby agree to engage in a glove contest to a finish, at catch weight, before the one of these three clubs which offers a purse of $12,000 or more, namely, the Olympic Club of New Orleans, or the California or Pacific Club of San Francisco. In case two of the clubs offer the same purse, the place of contest shall be decided by mutual agreement. The club selected shall name the referee. The rules are to be those of the club selected. We further agree to wager the sum of $5,000 each, the club selected to act as stakeholder. The first deposit is to be made when the club's articles are signed; the second deposit to be made thirty days before the date of the contest. The date is to be chosen by the club. It shall not be before Nov. 1 nor later than Dec. 31, 1892. The clubs named herein are given until April 25 to bid for the contest.

(Signed).

JAMES F. CARROLL, for Bob Fitzsimmons.
CHARLES E. DAVIES, for James Hall.
Witness for Fitzsimmons, J. B. Choynski.
Witness for Hall, J. C. Kennedy.

A Good Boxing Show.

The special boxing entertainment held by the Clinton Athletic Club, April 16, at the Metropolitan Opera House, this city, was one of the most interesting shows of its kind that has been held for some time. Each contest was an out and out fight, and the few who were present were well repaid for their visit. A large and enthusiastic crowd had been expected, as the programme warranted it, but it was a slim house, and the managers are out about $300, according to the statement of Mr. White. The entertainment opened with a lively bout between "Chuck" Connors, Down Town A. C., and Mike Harris, Clinton A. C. The men were well matched, and fought as though they were trying to settle some old grudge. They were both out for blood, and they were not long in finding it. They fought so evenly during the first three rounds that the judges were unable to pick the winner, so the referee ordered one more round of two minutes, which resulted in Harris being declared the victor. The next pair were George Harmon, Down Town A. C., and Mike Hughes, Jackson A. C. They are both fairly clever and exceptionally hard hitters, and after three bloody rounds the judges again disagreed, and the referee decided Hughes the winner. The battle of the evening was between Jerry Barnett, Downtown A. C., and Billy Welch, Nonpareil A. C. They are bitter rivals, and have confronted each other on many occasions. Barnett is a scientific boxer, and an exceptionally clever man. Welch fought principally on the mad bull order, and Barnett stood him off well. Every round was desperately fought, and both men were weak and groggy at the end of the contest, which seemed a pretty even thing to the spectators, but the judges decided in favor of Barnett. Jim Holmes, Greenwich A. C., had a walk over in his bout with Jerry Sullivan, Clinton A. C. The latter was punched about like old shoes, and was knocked down so often that the referee stopped the bout and declared Holmes the winner. The setto between Hughey Boyle, of Elizabeth, and Charley Kelly, of this city, was very interesting, and resulted in favor of Boyle, who is by far the cleverer of the two. A lively bout then took place between Dan Reardon, Downtown A. C., and William Davis, Clinton A. C. After three hard rounds were fought the judges disagreed and a fourth round had to be fought, which ended in Reardon getting the decision. As Joe Harmon, of the Pastimes, failed to put in an appearance to meet Eddy Pierce, of the Nonpareils, the entertainment was brought to a close by a special bout between the old 110lb rivals, Sam Kelly, West Side A. C., and Tim Murphy, Pastime A. C., both clever and evenly matched. Their contest was greatly enjoyed by the spectators and there was considerable fault found by Kelly's friends when the judges awarded the bout to Murphy.

A Drawn Fight.

The fight between Frankie McHugh and Mickey Norton, both of Cincinnati, took place at the rooms of the Columbus (O.) Athletic Club on April 15. The purse was $200, with $300 added by the club, together with the entire receipts. A large contingent of Cincinnati people witnessed the fight. McHugh entered the ring weighing 112lb, and was seconded by Billy Patterson and James McGwine. Norton tipped the beam at 113lb, and had behind him Ike English and Charley Wittmer. James Murphy, of Cincinnati, was selected as referee, while Joe Hughes held the watch for McHugh and John McDonald for Norton.

The fight lasted thirty-seven rounds, and ended in a draw, but very little fighting being done after the nineteenth round. McHugh hurt his left arm badly in the beginning of the battle, which incapacitated him for forcing the fighting, which had been his tactics previously. Horton, by the admission of his handler, had been overtrained to get him down to the requisite weight, and lacked strength. He assumed the defensive from the start. There was good fighting in the first, second, fourteenth, fifteenth and nineteenth rounds, ourside of which it was rather a tame affair, but one blow being struck from the twenty-second to the thirty-seventh round. The purse and receipts were divided between the contestants.

JIM HALL AND JOE CHOYNSKI have given so much satisfaction by their nightly boxing bouts at Niblo's Garden, this city, that they will remain "as you were" another week, with the exception that they will appear on alternate nights, when they invite any one to try his powers with them. A bout between Choynski and Ed. Smith, the Denver boxer, has been arranged to take place at the Ariel Club, Philadelphia, on the evening of April 23, and on the 25th Hall and Billy Leedom will cross daddles for the entertainment of the members of the same organization.

THE CLIPPER ATHLETIC CLUB are to have a boxing tourney at the Lyceum Opera House, on East Thirty-fourth Street, this city, on Saturday evening, April 23, when the following couples will don the mittens and display their cleverness, likewise their hitting powers: F. Gratz, Clipper A. C., vs. Joe Harmon, Pastime A. C.; W. Ahearn, Star A. C., vs. J. Hannigan, West Side A. C.; W. Joh, Clipper A. C., vs. E. Pierce, Nonpariel A. C.; C. Rose, Hanover A. C., vs. B. Mullins, West Side A. C.; Tim Murphy, Pastime A. C., vs. Jimmy Rose, Manhattan A. C.

AN OFFHAND SCRAP, the combatants fighting in the old style, took place in this city April 16, between a couple of novices named Tommy Connelly and George Seward. They fought in desperate fashion, without any show of science, from the moment they faced each other till the ninth round, in which Connelly managed to land a hot 'un in the right place and Seward's name was Dennis. The winner was the heavier man of the two by probably a dozen pounds. The gate money was at stake, and about one hundred admirers of the game were on hand.

A DISPATCH FROM CHICAGO, ILL., April 18, states that the Olympic Club, of New Orleans, have telegraphed Bob Fitzsimmons that the club had raised the purse for the fight between Fitz and Hall from $10,000 to $12,000, as required by the agreement between them. Unless one of the other clubs mentioned in the articles increases the amount, it is pretty certain that the Olympics will get the contest.

JERRY MURPHY, the clever boxer, for years past the sparring partner of Jimmy Kelly, with whom he has repeatedly appeared in all the principal cities and towns throughout this country and England, as well as the "ould dart," has opened a boxing academy at Grand Street and South Fifth Avenue, this city. Those who apply to Jerry for instruction in the fistic line can rest assured that they will quickly gain the desired knowledge.

THE FEATURE of the evening at the special boxing entertainment to be given by the Park Athletic Club on April 21, at the Clermont Avenue Rink, Brooklyn, will be the bout between Charles Kammer, West side A. C., and Nick Callan, National A. C. There will also be five other bouts at various weights.

FRANK MACKIN, colored, and Billy McMahon fought twenty rounds to a draw near Kankakee, Ill., on April 17. Both men were so weak that they could hardly stand, and the referee, with the consent of all parties, declared it a draw.

BILLIARDS.

LAFAYETTE HARRISON, well known to the veterans in the billiard world, died in an hospital in this city on Sunday, April 10, aged about seventy years, and was buried in Evergreens Cemetery, Elizabeth, N. J. Harrison built Irving Hall in 1859, on ground leased of the Taylor estate. The first public billiard tournament ever given in New York was played in that hall in 1863, and many match games and tournaments were played there during his regime. He was dispossessed in 1869 for non-payment of rent. From that moment he lost his grip as a business man, and soon became a wreck of his former self. He was born in Philadelphia the day Lafayette was received there with great pomp and ceremony, hence his name. He leaves a wife and two sons, Irving and Lafayette F. Harrison Jr.

THE MATCH for the championship of Pennsylvania between Edward McLaughlin and W. M. Dodds takes place at St. George's Hall Thirteenth and Arch Streets, Philadelphia, on Wednesday evening, May 4. The contest will be for $150 a side and the Stroup Medal, 800 points, 14in. balk line, on a 5x10 Brunswick-Balke-Collender table.

IN RESPONSE to the challenge of Albert G. Powers for a four handed game of continuous pool between Powers and Werner on one side and De Oro and Manning on the other, Charles Hallett, Manning's backer, deposited $250 with the Brunswick Balke-Collender Co., as evidence of his willingness to make the match proposed. Up to this writing nothing further has been heard from Powers and Werner, and Manning informs us that he will withdraw his $250 and challenge Champion De Oro for the B. B. C. Co. emblem and the usual stake of $150 a side.

ORVILLE ODDIE JR. defeated Frank Keeney, April 6, at eight inch balk line game on a 4½ ft. table, for a supper for a party of six, in Brooklyn, N. Y. Oddie played 600 to Keeney's 480, and won by a score of 600 to 301. Average by Oddie, 9 51-61; best run, 62; best run by Keeney, 28. Time, 4h. 10m.

ILLINOIS.

Chicago.—At the Chicago Opera House, the first production in this city of "Candy" was given last week by the Lilliputians. The attendance was large. The piece was elaborately staged, and not the least of its attractive features were the four ballets. The present engagement will be their last in Chicago, for the company sail in June for Germany. The company remain two more weeks.

GRAND.—Frank Daniels last week caused the orchestra to be shoved under the stage, as is the custom when the house gets too small to hold the crowds. Sol Smith Russell April 17 for three weeks.

MCVICKER'S.—Denman Thompson remains two weeks longer. His patronage last week was excellent. Rose Coglan May 1.

HOOLEY'S.—"Niobe's" second week was a repetition of the first. The production has achieved an unqualified success, and the result is that Mr. Hooley's pretty house during the engagement is the most popular resort for society during Lent. The play will remain another week.

COLUMBIA.—Charles Frohman's Comedians returned last week with "Mr. Wilkinson's Widows," and were royally welcomed. The engagement is for three weeks, and, judging by the first week's attendance, it will prove profitable.

HAYMARKET.—Bobby Gaylor was a drawing card last week. It was his first appearance this season on the West Side, and big houses was the result. The singing of the Olympic Quartet was a decided feature. "Mr. Barnes of New York" 17, "The Police Patrol" 24.

HAVLIN'S.—"The Police Patrol" drew fair houses last week with large openings. "The Pay Train" 17, "A Knotty Affair" 24.

ALHAMBRA.—Daniel Sully attracted excellent audiences to Mr. Jacobs' South Side house. "The Pulse of New York" 17, "The Dear Irish Boy" 24.

WINDSOR.—James O'Neill's "Monte Cristo" seems to have lost none of its popularity, as was shown at its North Side presentation last week. "A Fair Rebel" 17, "The Soudan" 24.

ACADEMY.—"Kidnapped" sufficed to please the patrons of this West Side house week ending 16. "The Dear Irish Boy" 17, "The Danger Signal" 24.

CLARK STREET THEATRE.—"The Paymaster," with Charles C. Maubury in the lead, and a corps of serpentine dancers was last week's attraction to good business. "The Danger Signal" 17.

PEOPLE'S.—"Carmencitada," the new production in which Delaur and Debriment appear at the head drew well last week. The company includes some good specialty performers and the show is enjoyable. Bob Fitzsimmons' Co. week of 17, John L. Sullivan 24.

CASINO.—Jack Haverly's Minstrels made a hit last week in "Bill Trovatore." The attendance continues excellent.

MADISON STREET OPERA HOUSE.—Sam Jack's Gaiety Co. is observing Lent in high old style before large audiences. Shapely girls and a lot of clever specialists made last week's cast a good one. "La Norseman" will be given 17, the Lilly Clay Co. 24.

LYCEUM.—The International Specialty Congress was last week's attraction. The company included Geo. H. Woods, Petrie and Elise, Bartlett and May, the Tybells, Maggie Ferguson, Cuponti and Oatley, Connors and Gibson, McGuire and McGill, and Bob Harrison. The Metropolitan Bright Lights 17.

PARK.—This week: Bijou Quartet, the Ty Bells, Allen and Hale, Lotta La Rose, Harmon, the McAvoys, Jayne and Reed, J. B. Houlihan, H. W. Eagan, and J. W. Kelly.

OLYMPIC.—This week: Reilly & Wood's Big Show.

ESTEAN'S DIME MUSEUM.—This week: Curio—Maine Lady Woodsawers. Stage—Frank La Varnie, Jessie La Soeur, Leonzo, Morris Sisters, and Thompson and Duclos.

STANDARD.—The Bijou Opera Co. is becoming a Halsted Street fixture. Business last week was remunerative. "The Princess of Trebizonde" week of 17.

KOHL & MIDDLETON'S CLARK STREET MUSEUM.—This week: Curio—Barney Nelton, Gypsy orchestra, Charles Adams and Belmont's educated horses. Stage—Courtright's Minstrels, and Connors & Gibson's Vaudevillers.

THIRTY-FIRST STREET MUSIC HALL.—This week: Nettie Baker, Moreland and Thompson, Ella Caldwell and Kittie Burke.

ENGEL'S OPERA PAVILION.—This week, "Faust on Time" is continued, with the cast unchanged.

NOTES.—Henry E. Abbey and Maurice Grau were in in the city several days last week. They have made arrangements to produce all their attractions at the auditorium during the World's Fair season.....The new Calumet Theatre, South Chicago, was opened 17 by W. C. Anderson's "Two Old Cronies" Co. The theatre seats 1,100. Geo. H. and Thomas W. Broadhurst are the lessees and managers. Both are well known managers, the former having been treasurer of the Academy of Music, at Baltimore, and manager of the Harris Theatre, Minneapolis, and the Metropolitan, Grand Forks, Dak. Thomas W. was for a long time financial manager of the Harris Circuit. South Chicago is a live manufacturing town, being the location of the Illinois Steel Co. and several big shipyards, and there is a wad of money distributed every month.... Buffalo Bill has invested $300 in souvenir silver spoons, the design of a Chicago girl. Buffalo Bill has one a buffalo is the engraving.. Tom Prior's benefit is fixed for 21, and G. A. Fair's for May 8. These representatives of the Chicago Opera House and Haymarket, respectively, should be given a great send off. Richard Gunning is Mr. Prior's successor as business manager of the Chicago Opera House.... Assignee Singer, of the insolvent Baker's, now Havlin's, Theatre estate, has sold the equity of the Bakers in the property, to Frank C. Schoenthaler, for $7,125. The sale does not affect Mr. Havlin's lease of the house. The sale is the outcome of several years of litigation.

ALWAYS A HIT.

EDW. J. HEFFERNAN,

THE CHARACTER COMEDIAN,

Now STARRING, as O'Donovan Duff, with W. C. Anderson's "TWO OLD CRONIES." Close the Present Season April 30. Will be at Liberty to Consider Offers thereafter.

A FEW PRESS COMMENTS.

E. J. Heffernan, as Duff, scored a success on his first appearance in the role here.—PHILADELPHIA RECORD.

Mr. Heffernan makes the comedy hit as O'Donovan Duff.—INDIANAPOLIS JOURNAL.

Since the "Two Old Cronies" was seen here at the Grand Opera House there have been some changes, and in one instance it has been greatly improved, by E. J. Heffernan, once a member of the popular variety team of Heffernan and McDonald, who plays O'Donovan Duff, an Irish character part, excellently, and introduces humorous touches which were not thought of by his predecessor.—BROOKLYN CITIZEN.

E. J. Heffernan, who impersonates the jolly Irishman, O'Donovan Duff, was equally as well received. His full, rich brogue did not bear the taint of forced imitation, as is usual with dialect comedians. His acting was decidedly above the average, and contributed largely to the success of the performance.—NEW ORLEANS STATES.

Mr. E. J. Heffernan, as O'Donovan, has comedian mannerisms which are delightfully unlike those of his Teutonic crony. O'Donovan, as delineated by Heffernan, is essentially Irish, necessarily witty, yet the actor in this case does not look to his Celtic guise as a justification for loudness, vulgarity and billingsgate. Heffernan's O'Donovan is quiet, humorous and refined.—NEW ORLEANS TIMES-DEMOCRAT.

Miss Deaves and Mr. Wilson are immense in two of the leading characters, and in the third, Ed. J. Heffernan lends a rich and unctuous brogue, which makes it funnier than ever, in contrast with the sonorous Teutonicisms of the German Professor.—CINCINNATI COM. GAZETTE.

E. J. Heffernan is the first to make an Irishman of O'Donovan Duff, and his mannerisms are so utterly unlike those of his Teutonic crony as to form a most amusing contrast and provoke shouts of merriment.—CINCINNATI ENQUIRER.

DEATHS IN THE PROFESSION.

LAFAYETTE F. HARRISON.—This veteran manager died on Sunday, April 10, in this city. He dropped away from his customary haunts around Union Square 9, to go to a hospital, and next day was dead. He was buried 13, at Evergreens Cemetery, Elizabeth, N. J., by his wife and sons, and not even William Steinway, who had supported him for years, knew anything about his death. Mr. Harrison built and managed Irving Hall. He had been in the musical profession all his life. He was born at Philadelphia the day the great Gen. Lafayette was received there, nearly seventy years ago, and he was named after him. It was in 1860 that he put up Irving Hall on ground leased from the Taylor estate. He started it as a concert and ball room, but he was early hampered by the outbreak of the war. The German Liederkranz ball was held there in 1863, as in fact were all the important dances and concerts, the Academy of Music, the only other building available, being too large for most of them. Mr. Harrison built a bridge across from Irving Hall to the Academy and many entertainments were held jointly in both buildings. When Mme. Parepa was brought to this country under the management of H. L. Bateman, in 1865, her concerts were given at Irving Hall. In 1866 Steinway Hall was constructed, and Mr. Harrison took charge of it, at the request of Mr. Steinway, for the first year. In 1867 Mr. Harrison engaged Mme. Parepa and produced her with Leopold de Meyer, a famous pianist, who had visited this country in the season of 1844-45. It proved a poor venture after the first few concerts, as Meyer was old and could hardly play his own compositions. In 1867 he engaged Mme. Parepa, who had now become the wife of Carl Rosa, for another season, but she became sick and could not sing. All the other singers had been employed. This was a severe blow to Mr. Harrison. He continued to manage the place until twelve years ago. Among those whom he managed were Theodore Thomas, Levy the cornetist, Harry Sanderson, S. C. Campbell, S. B. Mills and William Castle. Twelve years ago he was dispossessed from the hall for non-payment of rent, and from that time his grip was lost and he was unfit for work. His lank, thin figure was a familiar sight about Union Square. He was always an honest man, but drink ruined him. For ten years he was unfit for work, and he depended entirely upon his old friends, Mr. Steinway paying him a gratuity of $5 a week and giving him other money. When he had spent all he had for liquor he would wait outside until Mr. Steinway came out and promise repentance, meaning in good faith to drop drink. But the poor old gentleman was never able to do so. His knowledge of things musical made him useful occasionally to managers and he earned a few odd dollars. The dead man leaves two sons—Irving and Lafayette F. Harrison Jr.

JAMES MCCARROLL, a newspaper and magazine writer, died April 10, at his home, No. 99 Clinton Place, this city. He was born in 1815 at Lanesboro, County Longford, Ire., but went at an early age to Canada, where he soon engaged in literary work. He was a contributor to The Morning Chronicle, of Quebec, and was at one time the musical critic of The Leader and The Chronicle, of Toronto, a post for which he was qualified by his practical knowledge and experience. On leaving Canada, where he had held several offices under the government, Mr. McCarroll came to this city, and many scientific articles from his pen appeared in the daily papers here. At the same time he assisted in the compilation of "The People's Cyclopædia" and "Appleton's Cyclopædia." Laterly he was connected with Belford's and was co-editor of "Humanity and Health." A great quantity of this work proceeded from his pen; poems, of which a volume has been published; essays, reviews, dramas, novels, etc. He was also a lecturer, a musician, a musical composer and an inventor.

THE death is announced of Joseph Goss, only and younger brother of the late Sir John Goss. He was born in 1800, at Poole, Dorset, Eng., where at the time his father, Joseph Goss, was organist of the parish church. In 1822 he went to London, and lived with his elder brother until the death of his father, when he returned for a time to Poole. Mr. Goss was well known in Brighton as a successful teacher. His avocations left him little time to write. He succeeded Henry Smart as organist at St. Phillip's Church, and played there many years. In 1876 he retired from the profession, and died at Surbiton, a few days after completing his eighty-third year. Joseph Goss was a well read man, an expressive player and a delightful companion.

AMEDEE ARTUS, a famous orchestra leader at Paris, Fr., died last month, at Perpignau, Fr., aged seventy years.

MLLE. HACHE, a well known French actress, widow of Charles Wideman, died recently at Paris, Fr. She had played at the Paris Gaiete, Varieties, Porte-St. Martin and other houses.

MME. GARDONI, widow of the celebrated tenor, died at Paris, Fr., recently, aged sixty years. She was a daughter of Sig. Overini, the noted baritone.

HARRY TOOLE (HALL), husband of Maggie Day, both English music hall performers, died March 17, at Birmingham, Eng., aged twenty-three years.

CHARLES KNIGHT, property man at the Theatre Royal, Middlesbrough, Eng., died recently.

SIG. CARAVOGLIA, ex-opera singer and professor of vocal music, died March 27, at London, Eng.

MARTIN M. VERO, comedian, died at Larkall, Scot., March 26.

RITA BOOTH, who is said to have been the daughter of John Wilkes Booth, and who for some years had been the wife of Al. Henderson, a well known orchestra leader, died April 12, at Binghamton, N. Y., where she was playing in the company of Floy Crowell. The body was brought to this city. Rita Booth was a clever character actress. She wore always a medallion locket containing the likeness of the ill fated Wilkes Booth. She was born about 1858, we believe, and her mother is said to have been a once noted actress in the Boston Museum stock in the old days. Ogarita Booth was the deceased's full name. She leaves a child, aged about seven years. Her husband recently led the orchestra with the "Ole Olson" Co. He and his wife had signed for this Summer with the Jennie Winston Opera Co.

MARC EIDLITZ, a well known builder, and a brother of the architect, Leopold Eidlitz, died April 15 at his residence, 123 East Seventy-second Street, this city, aged sixty-seven years. He was born at Prague, Austria, and came to the United States when about twenty years old. He became widely known among the German Americans of the city. Besides constructing many handsome houses he built the Metropolitan Opera House, the Astor Library, the Eden Musee, Steinway Hall and other well known buildings.

PROF. SAMUEL JACKSON, the well known pyrotechnist, died at his residence, 1,414 Ellsworth Street, Philadelphia, April 14, of heart failure. He was born at Haddonfield April 12, 1814, and began the pyrotechnical business in 1837. He was widely known throughout the United States, having given large displays in different sections of the country. His greatest effort was given during the Centennial Exhibition, and the last one of any consequence was July 4 1888, on Girard Avenue Bridge, Philadelphia. He was a member of Montgomery Lodge, No. 19, F. and A. M., and the Union Republican Club. A widow, two sons and two daughters survive.

CHAS. E. LOCKWOOD died at Paris, O., April 1, and was buried at Shelburn, Ind., 3. He was a musician in Andrews & Sells' Band in 1880, a member of the Sullivan, Ind., Cornet Band, and a K. P., both organizations attending the funeral. He was twenty-four years old, and was unmarried.

ROYA SICBELL WOODS, acrobat, late of the Hyers Sisters' Co., died at Chicago March 26.

EGBERT CROSBY HOWES died at his residence, Brewster, N. Y., on April 10, in the sixty-second year of his age. Mr. Howes, at the time of his fatal illness, was engaged in the show business in New York City. He was sick in bed at his hotel 3, when he was suddenly seized with a desire to return home. He undertook the trip to Brewster unattended, and arrived on the evening train. His illness was believed to be due to a severe cold, which he thought would easily yield to home treatment. His physician found him suffering from pneumonia, which caused his death. Mr. Howes was born at Brewster, being a son of Nathan A. Howes and Clarissa Crosby Howes. The children of that family were thirteen in number. The deceased was the eleventh to die. The survivors are Elbert C., the twin brother of the deceased, and Ann Augusta, widow of the late Francis K. Foster. Egbert married Jennie Gee, who survives, together with four children, Jennie, wife of George F. Ives, of Danbury; Alice, wife of Willis F. Hine, of Brewster; Lydia and Bertha. William, the only son, died about a year ago. Mr. Howes was a showman, as was his father before him. The lives of father and son stretch over a period of eighty-odd years of show business—one or the other of them having been connected with a show from 1811 until the present time. They were in touch with the exhibition business as it has been presented to the public from 1811, when Nathan A. Howes, then a mere lad, began walking a tight rope at Haviland Hollow for one dollar a day, until the advent of 1871 of Howe's Great London Circus (Egbert and Elbert were the proprietors), and the more recent business changes and consolidations out of which has partly grown such stupendous affairs as Barnum & Bailey's Greatest Show on Earth, and Forepaugh's Circus. At one time or another, Egbert Howes had been connected with many big shows. He was exceedingly popular with acquaintances at home and also among showmen, to all of whom the announcement of his death will awaken kindly memories of his patience under every trial, of his matchless devotion to the wife and children who bore his name, and his thorough integrity and manliness. The interment was at the Milltown Rural Cemetery, Brewster.

MAGGIE MOORE (Mrs. Annie E. Smith), sister of S. Dilkes and Sallie St. Clair, died suddenly on March 18, at Fall River, Mass. Her husband, F. L. Smith, a non-professional, arrived at Fall River 21, and took charge of and removed the remains to Philadelphia, for burial in the Glenwood Cemetery.

MRS. AUGUSTA GOLDEY, whose death we announced some months ago, was not, as we then believed, the Miss Augusta whose dancing made her famous in this city in the '60s. Her husband and other relatives unaccountably failed to impart accurate information as to her career. We now learn, through Mrs. T. Miner, of Chicago, Ill., that the deceased was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Rabineau, who are also dead. She was born in New York City Jan. 19, 1849, and was consequently forty-two when she died. Her sister, two or three years older, known as Mlle. Marie, died at Alexandria, Va., Dec. 4, 1863, aged seventeen years. They were both known in those days as the Rabineau Sisters, Augusta and Marie. In the Summer of 1869 Augusta played a successful engagement at Crosby's Opera House, Chicago, with Mlle. Ricci, Alice Oates and others, appearing as Oberti in "The Forty Thieves."

NOTICE TO MANAGERS OF COMEDIES AND DRAMAS.

MISS PEGGY PRYDE,

"THE BEST ACTING SOUBRETTE IN THE COUNTRY."—(Vide Press).

Fifteen Years' Experience in All Leading English Theatres. Now Touring America With Pronounced Success.

Miss Pryde wishes Managers to know that she will not return to England this season, as contemplated, but would like to arrange for a starring tour, or principal comedy role, in a good comedy or drama. Managers desiring a sure winner for next season, address

MISS PEGGY PRYDE, care of THE CLIPPER.

A FEW SELECTIONS FROM MANY FLATTERING VERDICTS:

The best feature of the show was in the person of Peggy Pryde; she is one of the cleverest English character singers, as the bills said, and for once the bills were right, as the announcement was borne out in every way. In one of her catchy songs the occupants of the gallery were not slow in catching on, and even in the boxes and stalls there were many who caught themselves singing the chorus with the charming little lady; her best effort, however, was an impersonation of a London newsboy, and this also met with quick recognition from all parts of the house.—THE BOSTON DAILY GLOBE.

All members of the olio were well received with the exception of Miss Peggy Pryde, who, to use a current expression, was more than well received. She was given a regular ovation, and could not have been accorded a warmer reception had she been some old Boston favorite receiving an old time Howard welcome. She was introduced to the Howard patrons as a daughter of Jenny Hill, and naturally they expected a great deal of her; she, however, fulfilled their highest expectations and won instant favor. She possesses a pleasing voice, is an exceptionally fine dancer, and her vivacious manner completely captured her audience; she was recalled time and time again and finally appeared in her great character, "The Newsboy of London." In this impersonation she shows what a versatile little actress she is, and proved she was worthy of all the plaudits she received.—THE BOSTON HERALD.

The event of the programme was the Philadelphia debut of Peggy Pryde, who fully established herself as one of the foremost English character commediennes that have visited this continent. Miss Pryde was seen in different character imitations, such as are seen nightly in London music halls, but far more artistic are her specialties than those of her rivals; we have seen she is a clever vocalist with abundant chic that captivates her auditors, a superb dancer, and in her famous specialty "The Newsboy of London," demonstrated that she can evoke sympathy, as well as smiles; she is a soubrette of rare talents and much versatility.—THE PHILADELPHIA PRESS.

Reilly & Wood packed the theatre; particular interest of course centered in Peggy Pryde; the little lady who possesses a plump figure and an English face, a nice voice and superb energy, was regarded rather curiously as she came on for her first character song; she won admiration as she proceeded, and her fifth and last song, "The Newsboy," a dramatic, descriptive song in costume, was received with stormy applause. She has a fine, clear speaking voice and splendid singing voice, dances with startling agility and engaging grace, and never calls a spade a pickaxe. THE KANSAS CITY TIMES.

Miss Peggy Pryde has proved one of the best drawing cards that they could have procured. Her style is entirely different from what we are accustomed to, and is decidedly refreshing. She is quick as lightning in her movements, and scarcely appears before the audience when she commences her song, which is always accompanied by expressive and appropriate gestures. Her character sketches are deserving of the greatest praise, notably that of the newsboy of London, her rendition of which always excites admiration and applause. She has a voice of peculiar quality, somewhat shrill, but, withal, quite pleasing; but her charm does not lie in her voice; it is her wonderful vivacity, and the power of properly interpreting different characters that captivates her audiences. She is decidedly English in appearance, manners and accent, and has that element of dash about her that will make her "go" anywhere.—THE MONTREAL HERALD.

Peggy Pryde, a remarkable clever and skillful commedienne, who recently came from England, fairly dazzling us with her cleverness; she was the most interesting member of the company. She appeared in her sketch, "The Newsboy of London," which deserved the hearty applause it received.—THE PITTSBURG POST.

Miss Peggy Pryde, the London Music Hall singer, was warmly received, and before she finished her first song, was a favorite with everybody in the house; she possesses a pleasing voice, is an exceptionally fine dancer, and her vivacious manner charmed everybody. Her "Newsboy of London" is as clever a piece of descriptive acting as you could see anywhere, and was worthy the applause it received.—THE PITTSBURG LEADER.

Miss Peggy Pryde was the star, and she is justly celebrated. No artist who has come over here ever created a more favorable impression or proved a greater sensation. She is pretty, shapely and vivacious, possesses a pleasing musical voice, and a sweet, expressive face, sings, acts and dances with an art that is positively captivating. Miss Pryde rendered several of her successes, including "The London Newsboy." Never before has so excellent olio been presented. Miss Pryde stands foremost and unapproachable.—THE WASHINGTON AXA.

Peggy Pryde is the most noticed and best little vaudeviller in the show. Miss Pryde is an English girl, slight in figure, and so utterly London in her style of speech that you can shut your eyes and hear the merry peal of Bow Bells. Miss Pryde's songs are funnily descriptive and spiced with short talks to the audience. Her descriptive song "The Newsboy of London" was cleverly arranged and prettily acted. She is the best acting soubrette from England in many a day.—THE WASHINGTON DAILY GLOBE.

CROWNED WITH THE BRIGHT TRANSCENDENT GLORY OF SUCCESS.

A convocation of Colossal Companies controlled, conducted, owned and managed by one man, organized to make money and dispense pleasure, and doing both.

Always leading the pace for those who care to follow, showing prodigal profusion in princely paraphernalia.

Most Magnificently Mounted Attractions.

All former records broken; making new ones now for untried imitators prior to the humiliating hegira of the same.

Proclaimed the preponderating paradigm for all by press and public.

MADISON STREET OPERA HOUSE

HEADQUARTERS.

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

More Burlesque celebrities under one management and playing to phenomenal business than is now or ever has been recorded in theatrical annals.

An army of Artistic Amazons, armed "cap a pie," in the golden panoply of bewildering invincible burlesque.

To the Victor Belong the Spoils.

A peerless phalanx of siren satirists, shooting folly as it flies and piercing the flimsy Aegis of pretention. Ironical Iconoclasts who unmask the unreal and hold up the mirror of truth to nature.

200 A GORGEOUS TRAIN OF BEAUTIFUL BURLESQUE ARTISTS. 200
DAUGHTERS OF THE GODS, AND MOST DIVINELY FAIR.

Old ideas cast aside like old gloves. New ones are always on hand.

When seeking the front rank of histrionic talent, cast your optics just abaft my footlights.

Forever Attaining a Higher Plane.

All companies appearing under my potent banner have been touched by the magic wand of success.

SAM T. JACK.

When organizations are "in the swim," good management leads them safely into the port of prosperity.

Consequent upon the unprecedented and wonderful continuity of the multifarious and phenomenal attendance at the Madison St. Opera House, Chicago, Ill., seats are now in demand three weeks in advance.

Its Motto: Success From Failure.

My New Organizations are not the refuse of the old ones, but tip-top talent whipped from the shining foam of time-tried experience.

For 1892-3. House is situated upon, and road companies booked away up, "Easy Street," whither they are now moving "Right Behind the Band."
